Band 'Drafts' Thank You's For Money

The Cornhusker Marching Band already is drafting thank you letters to major contributors to its Fiesta Bowl fund drive.

Band members, however, are not writing the letters. Bright and early Wednesday they were on the Astroturf spelling out the names of firms and individuals contributing $1,000 or more.

By Wednesday afternoon, boosted by several $1,000 contributions, the total had reached $30,271. The amount needed is $42,000.

That amount must be pledged by Friday when the band is to ink the contract for a charter plane to Tempe, Ariz., and the Dec. 26 gridiron battle with Arizona State University.

University of Nebraska Foundation Vice President Edward Hirsch said that the band fund received its largest volume of mail Wednesday. May Broadcasting Co. of Omaha and Ak-Sar-Ben were counted among large donors reported Wednesday, with gifts of $1,000 each. As previously announced, the Hastings Equity Grain Bin Manufacturing Co. also contributed $1,050.

In addition, Hirsch said, the composers of Nebraska's fight song, "Hail Varsity" — Joyce Ayres of Lincoln and Wilbur Chenoweth of Santa Monica, Calif. — have collaborated once again, this time with contributions of $50 each to the band fund.

Death Penalty Hit . . .

Petitions Oppose Stewart Sentence

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha has submitted 8,004 signatures to the Nebraska Supreme Court asking that 17-year-old Rodney Stewart's death sentence be lifted.

The petitions were delivered to Chief Justice Paul White late Tuesday but have not been made part of the official court record.

Chambers said he realized the petitions have no legal effect on Stewart's appeal.

" . . . Nevertheless, (the petitions) are submitted as concrete evidence of the widespread opposition to the taking of life by the State of Nebraska," Chambers said.

Stewart was sentenced to death Aug. 20 by District Judge Theodore Richling after a Douglas County jury found him guilty of first degree murder in the Jan. 25 death of Thomas Ehlers, 19, also of Omaha. The shooting occurred during a marijuana transaction.

Evidence at the trial indicated Stewart had planned to shoot Ehlers and Daniel Evans, 19, when they met for the transaction. Prosecutors indicated that Stewart had taken gasoline to the rendezvous with Ehlers and Evans in order to cover up the shooting by setting fire to their van.

Douglas County Atty. Donald Knowles did not request the death sentence. In sentencing, Richling declared Stewart's age "can't excuse his act." Stewart, he said, acted as judge, jury and executioner in the shooting.

The last person who died in Nebraska's electric chair was mass-slayer Charles Starkweather in 1959. Since then, two others, Duane Pope and Thomas Alvarez, have been sentenced to death; however, their executions were set aside in 1972 when the U.S. Supreme Court struck existing death penalty laws.

The Legislature subsequently passed a new capital punishment law to meet the court's objections. Stewart is the first person sentenced to death under the law, and his sentence will provide a forum for testing the new law.

Under the new law, all death sentences are automatically reviewed by the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Chambers' petition said: "The U.S. Supreme Court has condemned the 'wanton and freakish' use of the death penalty which ignores religious doctrines of compassion and human redemption. Discriminatory and totally unjustifiable, the death penalty is murder by the state, used against those already suffering from the effects of poverty and racial injustice.

"Between 1968-74, there were 318 homicides in Nebraska, 217 of them in Omaha. No death penalty was imposed. Clearly, Judge Richling's unjust decision is arbitrary, discriminatory, 'wanton and freakish', and ought to be overturned.

Chambers said people from all walks of life have signed the petition.

Bonnie Prince Charlie A Rat?

LONDON (AP) — "Prince Charles, you are a rat," the 27-year-old heir to the British throne was told on Wednesday.

The Prince was being installed as a companion rat in the Grand Order of Water Rats, a show business charity organization.

Soon to take command of a Royal Navy minesweeper, the prince told his audience of comedians:

"I strongly advise you to increase your insurance if you are considering sailing in the North Sea next year or if you happened to own an oil rig in Scottish waters."

The prince's vessel will operate mainly in the North Sea.

GUY . . . announces Andretta given immunity.

Teamster Says 'I Was Framed'

DETROIT (AP) — New Jersey Teamster Stephen Andretta, protesting that he was framed, was ordered Wednesday to testify before a federal grand jury probing the disappearance of former Teamsters President James R. Hoffa.

In an unrelated development Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, one of the men Hoffa said he was going to meet when he disappeared, was indicted in New York City on charges of running a kickback scheme involving union funds.

The two developments came just before U.S. Attorney Ralph Guy of Detroit told a news conference, "There are no indictments in the immediate, forseeable future in the Hoffa case . . . but the FBI investigation is definitely very viable."

U.S. District Court Judge Ralph A. Freeman ordered Andretta to testify Thursday under immunity. The immunity grant means he must answer any question put to him in the grand jury room, with no recourse to the Fifth Amendment. Failure to answer could result in contempt of court charges.

Andretta pictured himself as a stranger in Detroit, unfamiliar with court practices, and with a police record that consisted of only five or six traffic tickets.

"With this kind of background, I feel there is an attempt being made to frame me and put me in the middle," he told the court.

Sources close to the investigation have been quoted by authorities as saying that Hoffa was killed in Detroit and that his body was trucked to New Jersey and was buried in a Jersey City landfill.

Guy, the U.S. attorney, declined to answer any questions about published reports that a secret government witness has identified one of three Teamsters who appeared in an FBI lineup Saturday as being responsible for the disappearance and slaying of Hoffa.

However, a nonlaw enforcement source close to the Teamsters Union told The Associated Press that "the word for the past 24 hours has been that the witness identified one of the three (in the lineup)."

Guy also refused comment on the indictment of Provenzano and two other men on charges of conspiring to kick back money from a Teamsters pension fund loan to a union official. The indictment was returned in New York federal court Tuesday and was unsealed Wednesday.

He also would not say whether the grand juries here and in New York City had been working together.

Provenzano, 58, secretary treasurer of Teamsters Local 560 in Union City, N.J., appeared as a witness before the Hoffa grand jury Sept. 5. His attorney, William E. Bufalino, said Provenzano used his Fifth Amendment right against possible self-incrimination.

Provenzano was one of three men Hoffa told his family he was on his way to meet the day he dropped from sight late last July.

Bufalino also was the attorney of record for the three union members who were placed in a court-ordered FBI lineup Saturday. That lineup was held so a secret witness, whose identity has been guarded jealously by the FBI, could view them in an attempt to corroborate an informant's grand jury testimony.

The Teamsters trio — Salvatore Briguglio, his brother, Gabriel, and Thomas Andretta — reportedly were named by a mystery witness as being involved in the abduction-slaying. Stephen and Thomas Andretta are brothers.

The indictement identifies Paladino as saying he could arrange for loans from New York State Teamsters Union employes welfare and pension funds at an interest rate of 12% plus a 13% kickback to be divided in part by persons controlling the funds.

Finance Group Rejects Ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee approved on Wednesday a bill to continue this year's temporary tax cuts for another six months.

Despite a presidential veto threat, the panel refused to tie the tax reduction to a cut in federal spending.

The tax cut, which is slightly more generous to poorer and larger families than the bill voted last week by the House, was approved by the Finance Committee 14 to 4

On an 11 to 5 vote minutes earlier, the committee rejected an effort by Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., to condition the tax cut on a dollar-for-dollar reduction in federal spending.

Earlier in the day, President Ford renewed his threat to veto any tax cut not tied to a federal-spending reduction. Shortly after that word reached Capitol Hill, Senate Democrats voted unanimously to reject Ford's conditions.

Democrats say Congress will be able to muster the required two-thirds majority and override the expected veto.

The Senate is expected to consider the tax-cut bill early next week. Expected approval would send the measure to conference with the House, and the bill could go to Ford by Wednesday.

Should he veto the bill immediately, Congress could attempt to override before adjourning about Dec. 19 for the holidays. Democrats have emphasized that if Ford attempts to block their Christmas recess in order to force action on the bill, they will send him the identical measure a second time.

The Senate version of the tax cut basically continues the antirecession reductions voted by Congress last spring. But the new bill increases standard deductions, for those who do not itemize, and increases the existing $30 credit for every taxpayer and each dependent to $45.

Since the bill covers only six months, expiring July 1, the value of the tax reductions would be cut by one-half unless Congress later extends the cuts.

However, because the new cuts would expire in the middle of an election year, Congress is likely to extend them for another six months.

The Senate bill would reduce taxes in the first six months of 1976 by $6.24 billion, compared with $6.47 billion voted by the House. Of the Senate amount, all but $590 million, representing a cut for small business, would go to individuals.

Congressional tax experts say that a family of four with $15,000 income would expect to pay $1,101 in taxes if the Senate bill is passed and then extended for the remainder of 1976. That would be $270 less than if the current, temporary reductions expired.

A single person making $15,000 would save $45; a married couple with no dependents at that income level would save $90.

The most significant difference between the Senate and House bills is an extension of the "work bonus" for poor working families with children included in the Senate version.

Under this provision, a working family with children is allowed to escape taxation on 10% of its earned income up to $4,000, and lesser amounts on income between $4,000 and $8,000.

Other features of the Senate bill:

— Increases the minimum standard deduction to $1,800 for single persons and $2,200 for joint returns, from the current $1,600 and $1,900 respectively.

— Increase the $30-per-person tax credit to $45.

— Extends for six months the corporate tax-rate changes voted earlier this year.

Only three of the seven Republicans on the committee — Curtis, Paul Fannin of Arizona and Clifford Hansen of Wyoming — voted against the tax cut. They were joined by Democrat-Independent Harry Byrd Jr. of Virginia.

Government Agency To Take Over Humane Society's Jobs Proposed

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

A plan recommended to the City Council Wednesday calls for the creation of an animal control division within city government to handle many of the jobs now being performed by the Humane Society.

The Pet Advisory Committee forwarded a report to the council calling for the formation of such a division to enforce leash laws, administer the rabies control program and pick up dead animals.

The committee's recommendation apparently stems from a great deal of dissatisfaction with the way the Humane Society is being run. If the report were adopted, the society's job would be greatly reduced.

The Humane Society is privately controled and is governed by a 14-member board of directors. The city contracts with the society to provide certain services, services which have been criticized during the past year.

Unhappy With Patton

Committee members stressed that they aren't displeased with the Humane Society's treatment of animals, but are unhappy with the society's director, Bernard Patton.

Committee chairman Dr. Ed Lyman, who is director of the City-County Health Department, pointed out that Patton refused to cooperate with the committee. Patton even refused to give informatimn to Humane Society board president Dr. Robert White, Dr. Lyman said.

Because Patton refused to work with the committee, member Bill Dick concluded, "We have no choice but to make these recommendations."

The Humane Society presently is charged with picking up stray animals, impounding them and if necessary, disposing of them. The city earmarked $25,000 to the agency this year to administer the rabies control program and pickup dead animals.

City-Run Program

The Pet Committee proposed that a city-run animal enforcement program be created, financed by revenues collected from license fees and pound charges.

The officers in that division would be given the authority to issue citations to pet owners for violation of the animal control laws, a job currently being handled by the Lincoln Police Department.

The committee estimated it would cost $104,000 the first year to set up such a program in either the health or police departments. A total of $70,000 would be collected to help finance that program, committee members estimated, from license fees and pound receipts.

The committee also recmmmends that pound fees be hiked from $6 to $10 for the first offense to generate more revenues.

Under the plan, the city still could contract with the society to impound animals.

While the committee members liked that idea, Humane Society board president Dr. White didn't buy the whole program.

Dr. White said the city would be duplicating services now provided by the agency and that the money could be better spent to upgrade the society's staff. Wages paid employes are too low, he acknowledges, to attract qualified help.

Dr. White asserted that part of the agency's problem is "poor public relations" with the public and city officials.

White Trying

Dr. White, who took on the job last summer, has been trying to make changes. However, he declined to comment on reported controversy among board members over whether Patton should be replaced and on other policy changes.

In defense of Patton, Dr. White said "Bernie's hands are tied" because the Police Department, not the Humane Society, has the authority to issue citations.

Since the board of directors feels that the society's "first interest is in animal welfare," Dr. White proposed that if the City Council wants a law enforcement agency, "the city will have to fork over the money for the agency to do that job."

Other Pet Committee members asserted that the society's board of directors has had more than enough time the past few years to present an animal control program to city officials. But, they haven't, Dr. Lyman said.

Scientists Say Cylcamates Not 'Strong' Cancer Agent

Washington (UPI) — A panel of scientists said Wednesday that evidence shows the artificial sweetner cyclamate is not a strong cancer-causing agent, as was feared in 1969 when it was ordered off the market.

Although they emphasized their conclusion was preliminary, three of the scientists said the test evidence available was not sufficient to label the cyclamate as a cancer causer.

Two other panelists hedged a little and said there was a possibility cyclamate may be a weak cancer-causing substance. They said there was no way to prove it is completely safe.

The committee was formed by the National Cancer Institute at the request of the Food and Drug Administration. Twenty tests from laboratories around the world were examined.

Dr. Arnold L. Brown, the committee chairman and professor of pathology at the Mayo Medical School in Rochester, Minn., said the testing techniques used were too weak to measure whether or not cyclamate could cause a low rate of cancer.

"We can be pretty confident, in fact we are confident, that this is not a strong carcinogen (cancer causer) like tobacco smoking," Brown said.

Friendly Skies Close Until Christmas Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Airlines, the nation's largest air carrier, cancelled all scheduled flights through Dec. 24 following the indefinite suspension of federally mediated talks with striking Machinists Union representatives Wednesday, a United spokesman said.

The shutdown raises the possibility that many holiday travelers will find airline seating difficult to obtain during the peak holiday season. United transports an average of 90,000 passengers a day.

National Airlines also is shut down by striking flight attendants. Its strike began Labor Day.

A United spokesman said that all charter flights have been scrubbed through Jan. 1. United has a substantial charter business, including flying 19 of 26 National Football League teams which now will be forced to find an alternate carrier.

The United strike began at midnight Friday in a dispute involving both economic and non-economic issues, a Federal Mediation Board spokesman said.

The International Association of Machinists has some 18,000 members employed by United.

New York (AP) — Booth Newspapers announced an increase in its dividend from 25 cents to 30 cents a share.

The newspaper chain, which also publishes Parade magazine, said the increased payment would be made Jan. 5 to shareholders of record Dec. 22.

Petitions Oppose Stewart Sentence

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha has submitted 8,004 signatures to the Nebraska Supreme Court asking that 17-year-old Rodney Stewart's death sentence be lifted.

The petitions were delivered to Chief Justice Paul White late Tuesday but have not been made part of the official court record.

Chambers said he realized the petitions have no legal effect on Stewart's appeal.

" . . . Nevertheless, (the petitions) are submitted as concrete evidence of the widespread opposition to the taking of life by the State of Nebraska," Chambers said.

Stewart was sentenced to death Aug. 20 by District Judge Theodore Richling after a Douglas County jury found him guilty of first degree murder in the Jan. 25 death of Thomas Ehlers, 18, also of Omaha. The shooting occurred during a marijuana transaction.

Evidence at the trial indicated Stewart had planned to shoot Ehlers and Daniel Evans, 19, when they met for the transaction. Prosecutors indicated that Stewart had taken gasoline to the rendezvous with Ehlers and Evans in order to cover up the shooting by setting fire to their van.

Douglas County Atty. Donald Knowles did not request the death sentence. In sentencing, Richling declared Stewart's age "can't excuse his act." Stewart, he said, acted as judge, jury and executioner in the shooting.

Teamster Says 'I Was Framed'

DETROIT (AP) — New Jersey Teamster Stephen Andretta, protesting that he was framed, was ordered Wednesday to testify before a federal grand jury probing the disappearance of former Teamsters President James R. Hoffa.

In an unrelated development Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, one of the men Hoffa said he was going to meet when he disappeared, was indicted in New York City on charges of running a kickback scheme involving union funds.

The two developments came just before U.S. Attorney Ralph Guy of Detroit told a news conference, "There are no indictments in the immediate, forseeable future in the Hoffa case . . . but the FBI investigation is definitely very viable."

U.S. District Court Judge Ralph A. Freeman ordered Andretta to testify Thursday under immunity. The immunity grant means he must answer any question put to him in the grand jury room, with no recourse to the Fifth Amendment. Failure to answer could result in contempt of court charges.

Andretta pictured himself as a stranger in Detroit, unfamiliar with court practices, and with a police record that consisted of only five or six traffic tickets.

Sources close to the investigation have been quoted by authorities as saying that Hoffa was killed in Detroit and that his body was trucked to New Jersey and was buried in a Jersey City landfill.

Guy, the U.S. attorney, declined to answer any questions about published reports that a secret government witness has identified one of three Teamsters who appeared in an FBI lineup Saturday as being responsible for the disappearance and slaying of Hoffa.

However, a nonlaw enforcement source close to the Teamsters Union told The Associated Press that "the word for the past 24 hours has been that the witness identified one of the three (in the lineup)."

Guy also refused comment on the indictment of Provenzano and two other men on charges of conspiring to kick back money from a Teamsters pension fund loan to a union official. The indictment was returned in New York federal court Tuesday and was unsealed Wednesday.

He also would not say whether the grand juries here and in New York City had been working together.

Provenzano, 58, secretary treasurer of Teamsters Local 560 in Union City, N.J., appeared as a witness before the Hoffa grand jury Sept. 5. His attorney, William E. Bufalino, said Provenzano used his Fifth Amendment right against possible self-incrimination.

Provenzano was one of three men Hoffa told his family he was on his way to meet the day he dropped from sight late last July.

Bufalino also was the attorney of record for the three union members who were placed in a court-ordered FBI lineup Saturday. The Teamsters trio — Salvatore Briguglio, his brother, Gabriel, and Thomas Andretta — reportedly were named by a mystery witness as being involved in the abduction-slaying. Stephen and Thomas Andretta are brothers.

The indictement identifies Paladino as saying he could arrange for loans from New York State Teamsters Union employes welfare and pension funds at an interest rate of 12% plus a 13% kickback to be divided in part by persons controlling the funds.

Finance Group Rejects Ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee approved on Wednesday a bill to continue this year's temporary tax cuts for another six months.

Despite a presidential veto threat, the panel refused to tie the tax reduction to a cut in federal spending.

The tax cut, which is slightly more generous to poorer and larger families than the bill voted last week by the House, was approved by the Finance Committee 14 to 4.

Government Agency To Take Over Humane Society's Jobs Proposed

Since the board of directors feels that the society's "first interest is in animal welfare," Dr. White proposed that if the City Council wants a law enforcement agency, "the city will have to fork over the money for the agency to do that job."

Other Pet Committee members asserted that the society's board of directors has had more than enough time the past few years to present an animal control program to city officials. But, they haven't, Dr. Lyman said.

Scientists Say Cylcamates Not 'Strong' Cancer Agent

Washington (UPI) — A panel of scientists said Wednesday that evidence shows the artificial sweetner cyclamate is not a strong cancer-causing agent, as was feared in 1969 when it was ordered off the market.

Although they emphasized their conclusion was preliminary, three of the scientists said the test evidence available was not sufficient to label the cyclamate as a cancer causer.

Two other panelists hedged a little and said there was a possibility cyclamate may be a weak cancer-causing substance. They said there was no way to prove it is completely safe.

The committee was formed by the National Cancer Institute at the request of the Food and Drug Administration. Twenty tests from laboratories around the world were examined.

Dr. Arnold L. Brown, the committee chairman and professor of pathology at the Mayo Medical School in Rochester, Minn., said the testing techniques used were too weak to measure whether or not cyclamate could cause a low rate of cancer.

"We can be pretty confident, in fact we are confident, that this is not a strong carcinogen (cancer causer) like tobacco smoking," Brown said.

Friendly Skies Close Until Christmas Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Airlines, the nation's largest air carrier, cancelled all scheduled flights through Dec. 24 following the indefinite suspension of federally mediated talks with striking Machinists Union representatives Wednesday, a United spokesman said.

The shutdown raises the possibility that many holiday travelers will find airline seating difficult to obtain during the peak holiday season. United transports an average of 90,000 passengers a day.

National Airlines also is shut down by striking flight attendants. Its strike began Labor Day.

A United spokesman said that all charter flights have been scrubbed through Jan. 1. United has a substantial charter business, including flying 19 of 26 National Football League teams which now will be forced to find an alternate carrier.

The United strike began at midnight Friday in a dispute involving both economic and non-economic issues, a Federal Mediation Board spokesman said.

The International Association of Machinists has some 18,000 members employed by United.

Blacks, Whites Battle At South Boston High

BOSTON (AP) — Black and white students fought in the corridors of South Boston High School on Wednesday, the first day after a federal judge had placed the racially troubled school under his jurisdiciton.

The school disturbance followed an early morning firebombing of the headquarters of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People soon after antibusing leaders warned that the court decision could touch off new trouble.

Police said a witness reported that four white men drove up to the NAACP office shortly after midnight, and a firebomb was thrown through the front window.

On Tuesday, U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity took over control of the school, which has been a focal point of antibusing sentiment, and named a receiver to run it. He barred the Boston School Committee from having any say over what happens there.

Garrity said said black students at the school were denied their right to a peaceful, integrated education.

The NAACP had filed suit requesting that South Boston High be closed, but Garrity took the less harsh course. He named Joseph McDonough, a career school administrator and younger brother of the president of the School Committee, as chief administrator of the school.

Attendance was off about 20% from Tuesday's level at South Boston High, but both black and white students entered the building without incident. Leaflets urging white pupils to boycott class were distributed, but largely ignored.

However, soon after classes began, fights erupted between blacks and whites. A girl who left the school shortly said chairs were thrown and windows broken.

"It's wild in there. They're going crazy," she said.

Three black students were arrested. A 17-year-old boy was charged with assault and battery on a police officer, and two girls, aged 15 and 17, were charged with disrupting a school assembly. Two black youths were taken to Boston City Hospital, and one required 20 stitches to close a wound, school authorities said.

All other Boston schools were quiet. However, about 75 of 333 white pupils at Charlestown High staged a walkout at midmorning. One youngster said the walkout was to protest the court decision.

Attendance at South Boston High on Wednesday totaled 405, including 144 blacks. Attendance on Tuesday, before the court decision, was 493, and 143 of them were black. The expected enrollment before school opened was 1,280, including 432 blacks.

Paper And Glue Bridge Holds 2½-Ton Rolls-Royce

A television crew films a commercial at Hollywood-Burbank Airport showing a 2½-ton Rolls-Royce being driven across a bridge of paper and glue. This bridge of triplewall corrugated packaging was built by the St. Regis Paper Co. and was 12 feet high and 110 feet long. It weighed 7,500 pounds and took nine days to build. Specially constructed presses laminated the corrugated paper for the span. Only paper and glue were used.

'Radical Transformation Of Civilization' Called For

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A global assembly of Christians called on Wednesday for a "radical transformation of civilization" to free it from forces seen as spoiling the earth and blighting its people.

A "new spirituality of intention, thought and action" is the crying need, the World Council of Churches declared in the closing message of its 18-day assembly.

In other documents approved in the final hours, the assembly said the world is on a "catastrophic course leading to mass starvation, global depletion of resources and global environmental deterioration."

Humanity now faces the responsibility of "a deliberate transition to a sustainable global society" with simplified technologies and morally guided science to "sustain a decent quality of life for all people," the assembly said.

"We must assert our autonomy and control over the machines we have created."

The delegates, representing 286 Protestant, Eastern Orthodox, Anglican and Old Catholic denominations totalling 500 million believers, urged struggle against denial of human rights, racism, sexism, economic maldistribution, exploitation of the poor, political manipulation, military power and class domination.

To serve God is to work "to hasten the day when justice will flow like water," the assembly said.

"Our motivation is that we are looking forward to the kingdom that has been promised to us and that we have been called to witness to it."

Citing technological "giantism" and "consumerism" as draining nature and depressing humanity, the assembly said:

"It is the despiritualizing impact of this process which dismays us. We have been alienated from our neighbor, nature, cosmos and God. For many, a glory has passed from the earth . . .

"Christ calls us to conversion, to a radical recognition of our human predicament, and to a new orientation in which we would be open to each other, to nature and to God. He calls us out of bondage of our obsessive self-seeking to a true liberty of the children of God, once more 'at home' in creation."

In a document on inter-Christian relations, the assembly said "we are called to the goal of visible unity" — but a "true unity that is not monolithic," that cherishes the riches of diversity.

"The purpose for which we are called to unty is 'that the world may believe'" the assembly said, quoting Jesus' summons to His followers to oneness.

On one briefly debated measure, the assembly urged "increased commitment, prayer and finance" for the council's controversial program to combat racism.

Through it in four years, more than $1 million in grants have gone for medicine, food and other humanitarian aid to African liberation groups fighting for independence in countries ruled by white minorities.

South African Anglican Archbishop Philip Russell of Durban sought unsuccessfully to put through an additional restriction that no grants go to groups intending actions that cause "injury or taking of life."

Criteria for the program, others pointed out, already specify none of the aid is to be used for arms or military gear.

NATO Defense Ministers Warn Of Soviet Tactics

The American secretary of state called the North Atlantic Treaty Organization a key element in U.S. foreign policy.

Kissinger will spend two days at the alliance's Brussels headquarters before going to London, and then to Paris for a Dec. 16 meeting of producers and consumers of raw materials, including petroleum.

The NATO defense ministers said Moscow has improperly intervened in Angola, built up offensive military forces and ignored the spirit of agreements on security.

These views were summed up at a news conference by Joseph Luns, NATO secretary general, at the end of three days of NATO defense talks. On Thursday Kissinger and other NATO foreign ministers meet to assess the diplomatic situation in light of the defense ministers' warnings.

"Ministers cannot afford, I believe, to overlook what is happening away from the conference table — how the arsenal of the Soviets is constantly being strengthened across the board and particularly at sea and how they choose to behave in the world at large," Luns said.

The warnings appeared to urge caution on Kissinger in seeking a breakthrough with Moscow on the strategic arms limitation talks — SALT.

State Won't Prosecute Soliah In Fatal SLA Holdup

Sacramento, Calif. (UPI) — District Attorney John Price said Wednesday he will not prosecute Steven Soliah, Patricia Hearst's lover, in the fatal Symbionese Liberation Army-linked robbery of a bank, ending the possibility of a death penalty conviction in the case.

Price said, "We have decided to defer to the federal authorities with respect to the pending prosecution of Soliah." He noted that the federal offense against Soliah includes both the robbery and the killing of a woman patron.

Price said that his office had completed its investigation of the April 21 holdup in Carmichael, Calif., and found there was "insufficient evidence" to prove the identity of the triggerman who killed the patron, Mrs. Myrna Opsahl, 42, the mother of four.

Soliah, 27, a San Francisco housepainter, who shared an apartment with Patricia Hearst when she was captured Sept. 18, is scheduled to go on trial Jan. 20 in federal court on the bank robbery charge. If convicted under the federal law, he would not face the death penalty but could have if tried and found guilty under the state law.

Federal prosecutors last week said they did not believe that Soliah was the bandit who fired the fatal shotgun blast.

FBI Chief Says Hold Officials Responsible

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said Wednesday those FBI policy makers responsible for the harassment of the late Martin Luther King Jr. should be "brought to account."

Kelley told the Senate Intelligence Committee he believes responsibility should be borne by the officials who created the campaign against King and that agents who merely carried out their orders should not be punished.

Witnesses have said the FBI's efforts to discredit the civil rights leader were largely the result of a personal vendetta by the late director J. Edgar Hoover.

Kelley, however, said that not all of those responsible are dead. He did not make clear to whom he was referring.

Kelley said also the bureau has retained the tapes of King's conversations obtained through a total of 16 telephone taps and eight electronic bugs and has no present plans to destroy them.

Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said he sees no reason for the FBI to retain the King tapes so many years after his murder.

But Kelley said they cannct be destroyed while the Justice Department is considering whether or not to reopen the investigation of the King assassination.

The existence of the tapes was raised by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who asked if it is possible for committee members to review the tapes "to determine ourselves whether Mr. Hoover was off on a wild goose chase or actually had something."

Hoover told associates he suspected King of associating with a known Communist who he feared might influence him and the civil rights movement.

Church said the staff members decided to refrain from listening to the tapes because they felt that would compound the invasion of privacy they believe was entailed in the secret taping of King.

Witnesses have said information received from the bugs and the taps concerning alleged sexual misconduct by King was used by the FBI to write an anonymous letters to King which King considered a suggestion to commit suicide.

On another subject, Kelley said that former FBI undercover informant Gary Rowe was not accurate when he testified the FBI hardly ever acted to prevent violence by the Ku Klux Klan.

The FBI director also urged the committee to seek a legal congressional charter for the FBI laying out the limits of its jurisdiction. He also urged creation of a congressional oversight committee to monitor the results of FBI investigations and to keep the bureau within agreed upon guidelines.

Kelley said he believes most of the thousands of abuses documented by the committee's investigation can be understood by the temper of the times and by the need of the FBI to react to curb the violent acts of revolutionary terror which were occurring throughout the country.

"The FBI employes involved in these programs did what they felt was expected of them by the president, the attorney general, the Congress and the people of the United States," Kelley said.

He said agents acted "in good faith to counter conspiratorial efforts of self-proclaimed revolutionary groups and to neutralize violent activities."

Amorous Llama Needs 'Wife'

Independence, Ky. (AP) — Mister is an amorous llama who thinks he's a cow. And, according to owner Theresa Zornes, that's where the trouble begins. Mister's been making overtures to a young Hereford calf.

It's easy to see how the full-grown male llama might become confused. He ate grass and hay like a cow. He was sheltered with the cows. He did almost everything the cows did but moo.

"We've been told a female llama would cost about $600, but it's not the price we're worried about," said Mrs. Zornes. "We've looked everywhere and even advertised for one. The only call we got was from a little girl who wanted to know what kind of a cat a llama was.

"So, unless we find him a partner, Mister will have to go. And from what I'm told, there aren't that many female llamas around."

Llamas normally are found in the colder regions of South America, where they are used as beasts of burden, for milking, and in some cases, llama chops. Their skin is valuable as leather and their furry coat, as wool.

Mister was born on the 65-acre farm of Cincinnati resident Richard Doran. The baby llama was displayed at the Cincinnati Zoo until Doran sold Mister to friend Wayne Zornes.

That was four years ago and Mister is no longer a baby. At nearly seven feet and 300 pounds, the Zornes family figures it's time for their favorite llama to settle down.

So, as far as the Zornes are concerned, they'd rather gain a daughter-in-law than lose a son.

But it's not every day that you find a llama that you can bring home to meet the family.

Moslem Leftists Repulse Soldiers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem leftists repulsed Lebanese army commandos trying to take over Beirut's hotel district Wednesday. The Moslems captured three armored personnel carriers and used them in attacks on Christian strongholds.

At least 34 bodies were recovered Wednesday, raising the toll of known dead since the start of the week to 287.

House-to-house fighting raged into the night. Massive explosions rocked this Arab capital as Premier Rashid Karami announced another cease-fire — the 14th in Lebanon's eight-month civil war.

The announcement created a split among Moslem forces arrayed against Lebanon's Christian minority. Palestinian guerrillas said they would abide by the cease-fire while Lebanese Moslem leftists rejected it.

Rocket and mortar fire again hampered ambulances trying to bring out casualties. They recovered, in addition to the bodies, 80 wounded.

The dead included two army commandos killed in the hotel district, a Greek Orthodox priest shot by snipers near parliament and a Maronite nun shot three times in the chest at the Saint Elie hospital.

Christian-Moslem clashes in Zahle, 35 miles east of Beirut, claimed another 11 dead and 17 wounded.

The plush St. Georges Hotel was gutted by a fire started by rocket-propelled grenades and incendiary bullets. By nightfall, the 25-story Holiday Inn was ablaze for the second time since the highrise war began — along with two smaller hotels, a synagogue in the Jewish quarter, a movie theater and office complex and several gas stations.

Karami announced that Lebanon's cease-fire committee had secured a truce agreement from all parties in the conflict. He said army troops would fire on armed men who remained in downtown Beirut after midnight.

In an attempt to pressure their Moslem allies to cease firing, guerrilla leaders also announced the Palestine Liberation Organization "will not oppose any military operation against armed men after midnight."

But leftist Druze leader Kamal Junblatt, Moslem Nasserite groups, the Leganese Communist party and the Popular Socialist Party said they would not abide by the cease-fire and withdrew from the coordinating committee that arranged it.

Richardson Gets Committee's OK

Washington (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee approved by voice vote Wednesday the nomination of Elliot L. Richardson to be secretary of commerce, his fourth Cabinet post and a new record. No other person has served in as many Cabinet jobs.

Treatment Denied; Baby Dies

London (UPI) — Christina Bhela went to look in on her 5-month-old daughter and found the baby barely breathing. She snatched the child from the crib and called an ambulance.

The vehicle braked to a stop in front of the Bhela home at 7:03 p.m. Tuesday, picked up the baby and then took off toward Hillingdon Hospital a mile away. A worried Mrs. Bhela followed in a police car.

On the way, the ambulance's radio controller said Hillingdon would not take the baby. A doctors' strike had ruled out emergency cases.

Siren screaming, the ambulance changed course for Mount Vernon Hospital, another five miles away. But again the controller said no go. Mount Vernon also refused to treat the child.

The vehicle then headed for Wexham Park Hospital, 11 miles from the Bhela home. The ambulance arrived at 7:20 p.m. Doctors pronounced Seema Bhela dead. Respiratory failure.

Interns are striking across the country for more overtime pay in a serious threat to Britain's 27-year-old system of socialized medicine. Nineteen hospitals are refusing emergency cases as a result.

Authorities ordered an investigation into the death of the Bhela baby, especially to determine whether the child might have been saved.

A London ambulance spokesman said the service had checked both Hillingdon and Mount Vernon as the baby was on the way. Both hospitals, he said, insisted they could not help.

A doctors strike leader refused comment.

"I do not want to comment without knowing the full details," Dr. Paul Copeland said. "We do not know whether or not the baby would have died anyway."

There are two other Bhela children.

"Doctors are like God," said the baby's father. "They are supposed to save lives. I would like to shoot them for what they have done. They shouldn't take their disputes out on human lives.

FBI Chief Says Hold Officials Responsible

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said Wednesday those FBI policy makers responsible for the harassment of the late Martin Luther King Jr. should be "brought to account."

Kelley told the Senate Intelligence Committee he believes responsibility should be borne by the officials who created the campaign against King and that agents who merely carried out their orders should not be punished.

Witnesses have said the FBI's efforts to discredit the civil rights leader were largely the result of a personal vendetta by the late director J. Edgar Hoover.

Kelley, however, said that not all of those responsible are dead. He did not make clear to whom he was referring.

Kelley said also the bureau has retained the tapes of King's conversations obtained through a total of 16 telephone taps and eight electronic bugs and has no present plans to destroy them.

Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said he sees no reason for the FBI to retain the King tapes so many years after his murder.

But Kelley said they cannot be destroyed while the Justice Department is considering whether or not to reopen the investigation of the King assassination.

The existence of the tapes was raised by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who asked if it is possible for committee members to review the tapes "to determine ourselves whether Mr. Hoover was off on a wild goose chase or actually had something."

Hoover told associates he suspected King of associating with a known Communist who he feared might influence him and the civil rights movement.

Church said the staff members decided to refrain from listening to the tapes because they felt that would compound the invasion of privacy they believe was entailed in the secret taping of King.

Witnesses have said information received from the bugs and the taps concerning alleged sexual misconduct by King was used by the FBI to write an anonymous letters to King which King considered a suggestion to commit suicide.

On another subject, Kelley said that former FBI undercover informant Gary Rowe was not accurate when he testified the FBI hardly ever acted to prevent violence by the Ku Klux Klan.

The FBI director also urged the committee to seek a legal congressional charter for the FBI laying out the limits of its jurisdiction. He also urged creation of a congressional oversight committee to monitor the results of FBI investigations and to keep the bureau within agreed upon guidelines.

Kelley said he believes most of the thousands of abuses documented by the committee's investigation can be understood by the temper of the times and by the need of the FBI to react to curb the violent acts of revolutionary terror which were occurring throughout the country.

"The FBI employes involved in these programs did what they felt was expected of them by the president, the attorney general, the Congress and the people of the United States," Kelley said.

He said agents acted "in good faith to counter conspiratorial efforts of self-proclaimed revolutionary groups and to neutralize violent activities."

Malpractice Hurts Care

It is no more than an opinion, but our opinion is that malpractice actions against medical practitioners are needlessly hurting the health care of all people. Some recent figures tend to back up the opinion.

State Insurance Department figures show that since last July 1, the average malpractice claim awarded was $323 in Nebraska. In that time, 58 percent of the claims involved no final payment at all and 47 percent of the claims were abandoned by plaintiffs.

Those figures have to tell you that there is a lot of plain old gold digging nonsense in the malpractice business. Far more claims are being filed than should be and that is at the heart of the malpractice problem.

That problem, you should know, is that malpractice has become such a threat to doctors, hospitals and others in the health field that insurance premiums to cover possible losses have become prohibitive. In some parts of the country, doctors have even dropped out of practice because they could not afford or refused to pay such high premiums.

At the very least, the high premiums mean higher medical bills for those who need care.

No one will ever convince us that the increase in malpractice suits is the product of more shoddy work by doctors and hospitals. The big cause of the problem is the growing realization by people that a malpractice suit offers them a chance of picking up an easy bundle of money.

Unfortunately, the most reputable and capable of medical practitioners are caught up in the situation just as much as any others. Even the very best surgeon and the most conscientious must now protect himself with expensive insurance against the constant possibility of a malpractice suit.

We do not profess to know the answer to the problem, although we admit of very little sympathy with the proliferation of malpractice cases. What we do know is that if the general public continues to look at malpractice as a gift horse, good health care is going to continue to get harder and harder to come by and to be more and more expensive.

We cannot believe that, between the medical profession and public officials, this problem cannot be solved. Procedures can and must be established whereby malpractice actions can be limited to those of legitimate merit. Secondly, there must be some system of general public sharing in the cost of malpractice insurance.

None of those things may be perfect solutions but we can't have our cake and eat it too. Either we put some kind of lid on the malpractice abuses that are going on or we settle for higher priced and lower quality health care. We believe the former is far more preferable to the vast majority of people.

WILLIAM V. SHANNON

Centrist In The Crystal Ball

Birch Bayh

Jimmy Carter

Morris Udall

WASHINGTON — The early signs point toward the nomination by the Democrats next year of a presidential candidate with a centrist image.

"Image" is the key word. In politics, how a candidate is perceived by the public can be more important than his voting record or demonstrated accomplishments.

Democrats now are in much the same frame of mind as Republicans after the Goldwater debacle. In 1968, Republicans shied away from an ideological hero like Ronald Reagan. They settled for Richard Nixon, whom they regarded as an experienced old pro who could hold the party together and avoid being tagged as an extremist.

In these circumstances, Democratic candidates who are seen as too conservative, such as Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, or too liberal, such as ex-Senator Fred Harris of Oklahoma, are at a disadvantage. Harris, with his stirring neopopulist attack on the corporations and the rich, usually evokes the loudest applause at party gatherings. But privately, Democrats express their fear that Harris may be "another McGovern."

Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington is a liberal on most domestic issues. His steadfast support for the Vietnam war, his enthusiasm for a big military budget, and his criticisms of detente have the political effect, however, of establishing him as a right-of-center figure on the party's own spectrum. Among those Democrats who simply want a winner, there is the fear that he would be as objectionable to McGovern Democrats as McGovern's nomination was obnoxious to Jackson Democrats. In a word, he is too "divisive."

Although Jackson fails to benefit himself, the centrist or moderate image he has tried to establish is regarded by his rivals as the right one. That is, they want to be acceptable to big labor and not frightening to the business community, acceptable to intellectuals and minorities and also to hardhats and middle-class suburbanites.

Each of the three Democrats who appears to be doing best — Rep. Morris Udall, Sen. Birch Bayh, and ex-Governor Jimmy Carter — is trying to establish himself as the right person to organize a broad winning coalition in the final campaign.

All three mildly endorse school busing. But that is only an empty gesture to liberal diehards. Unlike McGovern, these candidates recognize that, politically, busing is a dead horse.

Bayh picks up useful strength among feminist voters by his support for the Equal Rights Amendment and his opposition to an amendment banning abortion. But the heart of his appeal is that he is acceptable to the AFL-CIO unions which boycotted the McGovern campaign, and that he has proved in Indiana that he knows how to win in a conservative state.

Udall's appeal is that he has earned the respect of House colleagues from every region. He, too, has shown that as a liberal he knows how to win in a conservative state, Arizona.

Arizona is a right-to-work state, and Udall has in the past endorsed a state's right to adopt such laws, which are anathema to organized labor. He is also an outspoken environmentalist, which makes him suspect to some unionists. But he has succeeded in mending his relations with the AFL-CIO and is careful to tell audiences that the Democrats cannot win if they lose the support of George Meany and Mayor Richard Daley.

Former Governor Carter, although still little-known, has earned new respect for his skill as a salesman of himself and as a political organizer. A former officer in the nuclear Navy, a commercial farmer, Carter has perfected a nonideological standard speech that epitomizes this year's centrist impulses, nicely mixing an appeal to efficiency and to humane sentiment.

He favors capital punishment for certain crimes, and has been skeptical of aid to New York. Yet he "gets away with" these views among many liberals because his candidacy, in effect, dangles before the party the exciting prospect that it might regain a substantial share of the Southern electoral vote. In a curious way, his regional background confers an ideological absolution. What would be regarded as proof of conservatism in a Jackson is regarded as understandable coming from a southerner.

Whoever is chosen is likely to be a liberal. In choosing the one who is acceptable to the various power blocs and who best looks like a winner, the Democrats are wise not to insist upon ideological purity. But they would do well to look closely for evidence of good judgment and depth of conviction. As the GOP and the nation discovered with Nixon after 1968, winning isn't everything.

Zorinsky's Views Welcomed

New Democrat Edward Zorinsky appeared before the Democratic State Central Committee last Sunday asking for support for his bid for a U.S. Senate seat. The Omaha mayor said he was "proud to be a Democrat" and he said he hopes he receives better treatment in the new fraternity he has pledged than he did from his old club, the Republican Party.

Zorinsky talked some about national issues and obviously will have more to say as his campaign for the Democratic nomination unfolds. Democrats who might be uptight about what appeared to be an opportunistic switch on the Omahan's part owe him at the very least a considerate hearing on his views of the national and international scenes. His record as mayor of the state's largest city suggests that he will offer pragmatic, appealing answers to some of the questions and issues confronting the nation.

But right here at the start of his new political relationship Zorinsky unfortunately has qualified his membership in the Democratic Party. And he hasn't even paid the dues yet.

According to one report, Zorinsky was asked if he would support a primary election opponent, former Democratic State Chairman Hess Dyas, if Dyas should win the nomination as the party's standard bearer in the fight to capture Roman Hruska's Senate seat. Zorinsky reportedly replied: "It strictly depends on what happens in the next four months."

An immediate reading of that statement suggests that indeed the Omaha mayor has chosen the Democratic Party only as a convenient vehicle to power and a place in the political sun. His hedge on supporting the Democratic nominee if he doesn't win can further be viewed as symptomatic of his priorities: (1) winning the nomination as a Democrat and (2) if he does not win, indirectly at least assisting the effort to retain a U.S. Senate seat in Omaha, also the home base of John Y. McCollister, the likely Republican nominee.

It will be easy for Zorinsky to put such fears about his priorities to rest.

Nebraska Democrats in the coming months will be listening to Zorinsky as the candidate explains not only his views on national issues, but his notions about political loyalty as well.

Looking North At Uncle Sam

RIO DE JANEIRO — I first met Henry Kissinger at dinner in Paris, June 26, 1962, a few weeks after he quit his job as an advisor to the Kennedy administration. He had just been in Brazil and thought we were badly mishandling the brand new Alliance for Progress. "We make the mistake of comparing the potentialities of Latin America with those of Europe when the Marshall Plan was conceived," he said.

No doubt U.S. policy toward its neighbors was mishandled during the 1960's. Among other things he stimulated antipathy in the Latin armed forces by refusing to sell them modern weapons. Now those same armed forces are running the majority of South America's governments.

Latin disenchantment with Washington is a political reality — but at the same time all Latin governments have some bilateral accords with the United States. Even Cuba has a hijacking agreement. Nevertheless, the concept of OAS unity has evaporated. Most of Latin America feels increasingly tied to the Third World, decreasingly to us.

Secretary Kissinger has been criticized because several proposed official visits to this area were aborted — as a result of priority trips elsewhere. Yet, despite the publicity surrounding such personal diplomacy, one should not forget that movement is not a substitute for policy and the Kissinger policy toward Latin America has been helpful.

On Latin Issue No. One the secretary has quietly promoted the idea of a new treaty terminating claims to sovereignty over the Panama Canal. He backs a U.S. negotiating team abhorrent to United States diehards who adore Teddy Roosevelt and Admiral Mahan. Kissinger correctly realizes that contemporary Latin America, regardless of differences on other issues, is in accord on Panama's right to own the canal.

Likewise, despite hostile drumbeats on Issue No. Two, Cuba, he has publicly stated there is no virtue in "perpetual antagonism" toward Castro and he has quietly fostered improvements. Washington called off its insistence on including foreign subsidiaries of U.S. companies in its economic boycott.

Havana would like to see us lift selective aspects of the embargo, for example medical supplies. We keep signaling (through various channels) that we are ready to meet the Cubans any time at any place to discuss improving relations. They have not yet picked up the idea. Washington now feels embarrassed about attempting any major move before next year's elections. Castro likewise has some trouble with his own diehards. But the whole issue of better Cuban hopes may well dissolve far from Latin America — in the Angolan showdown.

As these softer U.S. attitudes on two sensitive points become more familiar, there is an easing in what had become an unnaturally tense relationship between north and south. This easing has been helped by new interpretations of the Trade Act, previously considered harmful by Latin interests.

There remains in the hemisphere a legacy of imbalance between relatively backward societies and the northern colossus. "We are conscious of the presence of the United States, of a lack of equilibrium," says Peru's Foreign Minister De La Flor Balle. "There is the industrialized U.S.A.; then various stages of developing lands in Latin America.

"We want good relations with you, legitimate equality, mutual respect and non-intervention in internal affairs. We had to nationalize and expropriate foreign enterprises. When your government sought to protect your companies, that produced trouble. But since 1973 relations have begun to improve although we still favor ideological pluralism and east-west cooperation."

Ecuador's military regime is quite friendly to Washington nowadays. Chile, on another tangent, is hurt that the United States doesn't commend its strong anti-leftist policy in the wake of Allende. The Chilean opposition hopes, however, Washington will continue to support democracy and civil rights.

In Brazil the U.S. has recaptured some favor with the army regime by easing up on arms sales but it lost out to West Germany on a huge order for nuclear reactors. The position between Brasilia and Washington conflicts on many Third World issues.

There is no longer an automatic assumption that this country must line up with the northern superpower. Brazil is impressed by Third World political effectiveness and also the U.S.A. has lost prestige. The Vietnam disaster, above all, was taken here as an indication the United States could no longer be relied on if the going gets tough.

Having openly abandoned any pretensions to an "American century," the United States could never hope or expect to continue its former ascendency in Latin America. The age of slogans is over. What replaces it now is more realistic, less arrogant and quieter.

Patchwork Prairie Country

Dear Santa,

Please bring me a mixer. The one I have is twenty-eight years old. I may be pushing my luck to get all the Christmas goodies made this year but if I succeed, I will leave a big plate of cookies by the tree.

Signed,
A good girl who believes in you.

Two years ago the beaters on my old trusty mixer broke. We tried in vain to get new beaters but the company no longer was in business. What to do? One day I mentioned to an aunt that I was going to buy a new mixer. Further conversation revealed she had the same make of mixer but the motor had burned out two years previous so she had purchased a new one. Her beaters were worn but if I wanted to take them I could.

Well, the upshot of the story was, the beaters worked so faithfully that I have used them for nearly three years, almost forgetting that I needed another mixer.

But alas. All good things come to an end. The last Christmas cookie dough I made revealed the beaters have almost worn through at the bottom. Any day I may see them fly out the window followed by me attached to the handle and motor.

This may establish a new Peter Pan mode of travel. At least it would be a revolutionary and energy-conserving way of covering the miles. It would be every bit as satisfactory as the way Santa flies through the air, I am certain.

When I did my week-end shopping, I purchased a pound of small gumdrops for cookies. But I neglected to get them on the shelf fast enough. Leaving them on the counter-top was a big mistake. One by one the gumdrops began to disappear . . . first The Farmer took one, then I took one until we had consumed all of them. There's a moral to the story somewhere. Perhaps one gumdrop in the stomach is worth two in a cookie.

☆ ☆ ☆

With temperatures in the low fifties and a slight breeze ever so gentle The Farmer strung Christmas lights outside. The snow had almost disappeared from the front yard. Under the warm rays of a mid-winter sun the melting snow stood in small puddles along the walks. It seemed very unreal that we should be preparing for Christmas in such spring-like weather.

The warm day made attaching lights to the house an easy task . . . no gloves were needed nor heavy clothing. It made working outside a pleasure.

The twigs on the shrub dogwood are red now and the holly beside the front step is a waxy green. The holly was planted this past spring and I am not certain I have the hardy variety, hence I tend it like a baby. I made a special effort to cover it with a mound of snow when the temperatures dropped. Since it is north of the house, the mound of snow is slow to melt.

I may add a mulch to it since the ground is frozen. I have a box of leaves saved for the purpose along with grass clippings. Each time I pass through the front door, I will give it a word of encouragement . . . "It's a long hard winter but hang in there, baby."

The inch of rain that fell before the heavy snow blew into our area was beneficial to the trees and shrubs. There is certain to be damage to many of the trees because of the prolonged dry weather this summer and fall.

The leaves from the trees in the windbreak around the farm fell earlier than usual. They scarcely had time to give their usual array of coloration. Now we must wait for spring before assessing the total damage. But I am getting the horse before the cart. Santa and his sleigh must come before that time.

Elected Blacks Hold Promise

WASHINGTON — The Third National Institute for Black Elected Public Officials is being held Dec. 11-13 in Washington, D.C.

One measure of the distance that black Americans have traveled toward full racial equality — and of how far they have yet to go — is the steadily growing number of black elected officials. According to the Joint Center for Political Studies, There were 3,503 black people holding elective public office as of May 1975, or 17% more than a year earlier. Nearly three times as many blacks hold elective office in 1975 as did in 1969, the first year that the joint center conducted its annual survey.

But these figures look more impressive than they actually are. "Despite the boost in their numbers," the joint center observed, "black elected officials still hold only seventenths of one per cent of all elective offices in the nation. By contrast, blacks constitute 11.1% of the nation's total population."

Although most black officials continue to come from majority-black areas, Thomas Bradley's victory over incumbent Sam Yorty in the 1973 Los Angeles mayoral race provided additional proof that black candidates can win elections in large cities with predominantly white constituencies. Carl Stokes offered such proof when he became mayor of Cleveland in 1967.

Blacks are most under-represented in statewide and federal elective offices. Of the 13 blacks holding state elective offices, five are in executive positions: lieutenant governors in California and Colorado (both elected in 1974), the state superintendent of public instruction in California, the state treasurer in Connecticut, and the secretary of state in Michigan. Blacks gained one seat in the U.S. House of Representatives this year with the election of Harold E. Ford (D Tenn.), bringing their total there to 17. One black sits in the Senate.

For most of American history, blacks were not represented in congress at all. From 1860 to 1901 blacks — all southern Republicans — sat in the House and two sat in the Senate. But for nearly three decades thereafter, blacks were absent from Congress — until 1928, when Oscar DePriest was elected to the House from Chicago's First Congressional District. He took over a seat that has been held by blacks ever since.

The election of blacks to public office has has only a marginal effect in improving the lot of black people in general. Some mayors, for instance, are hampered by lack of control over their city budgets. Others have limited powers of appointment and removal. Still others lack the authority to veto ordinances and resolutions.

Ebony magazine pointed to another problem facing black mayors: "While they might have received their principal support from blacks, they can neither ignore, be indifferent to, nor take lightly white wishes. For even in a predominantly black community, whites are likely to be the major owners and controllers of its economic resources. Hence, the black mayor's success turns in large measure on his ability to solicit the cooperation of economically powerful whites."

Still, the increase in black elected officials at all levels of government holds promise for the future. It may be, as Atlanta's black mayor, Maynard Jackson, has said, "Politics is the civil rights movement of the Seventies."

Privilege Not Penalty

Lincoln, Neb.

I protest most vigorously! I protest vehemently! I protest strenuously! There are thousands of volunteers in the city of Lincoln who consider their volunteer work a privilege and an honor. Now comes our esteemed county commissioner — Robert Colin — and he is penalized by being forced to contribute 30 hours volunteer time as a Salvation Army bell ringer and a deliverer of goodies to needy families!

If Mr. Colin is to be so punished, then let it be that he is assigned some of the more menial tasks, scrubbing floors at the Regional Center, feeding and caring for the physical needs of pateints in a geriatric center or a nursing home.

I think that volunteer work as a punishment is not the best acknowledgment of the work that volunteers do. Mr. Colin violated the law. Let him do his time as a work-release prisoner of the county. Locked behind bars from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. and all day Saturday and Sunday and holidays. Do not let him do volunteer work. That demeans the meaning and the joy of all other volunteers.

Malpractice Hurts Care

It is no more than an opinion, but our opinion is that malpractice actions against medical practitioners are needlessly hurting the health care of all people. Some recent figures tend to back up the opinion.

State Insurance Department figures show that since last July 1, the average malpractice claim awarded was $323 in Nebraska. In that time, 58 percent of the claims involved no final payment at all and 47 percent of the claims were abandoned by plaintiffs.

Those figures have to tell you that there is a lot of plain old gold digging nonsense in the malpractice business. Far more claims are being filed than should be and that is at the heart of the malpractice problem.

That problem, you should know, is that malpractice has become such a threat to doctors, hospitals and others in the health field that insurance premiums to cover possible losses have become prohibitive. In some parts of the country, doctors have even dropped out of practice because they could not afford or refused to pay such high premiums.

At the very least, the high premiums mean higher medical bills for those who need care.

No one will ever convince us that the increase in malpractice suits is the product of more shoddy work by doctors and hospitals. The big cause of the problem is the growing realization by people that a malpractice suit offers them a chance of picking up an easy bundle of money.

Unfortunately, the most reputable and capable of medical practitioners are caught up in the situation just as much as any others. Even the very best surgeon and the most conscientious must now protect himself with expensive insurance against the constant possibility of a malpractice suit.

We do not profess to know the answer to the problem, although we admit of very little sympathy with the proliferation of malpractice cases. What we do know is that if the general public continues to look at malpractice as a gift horse, good health care is going to continue to get harder and harder to come by and to be more and more expensive.

We cannot believe that, between the medical profession and public officials, this problem cannot be solved. Procedures can and must be established whereby malpractice actions can be limited to those of legitimate merit. Secondly, there must be some system of general public sharing in the cost of malpractice insurance.

None of those things may be perfect solutions but we can't have our cake and eat it too. Either we put some kind of lid on the malpractice abuses that are going on or we settle for higher priced and lower quality health care. We believe the former is far more preferable to the vast majority of people.

WILLIAM V. SHANNON

Centrist In The Crystal Ball

WASHINGTON — The early signs point toward the nomination by the Democrats next year of a presidential candidate with a centrist image.

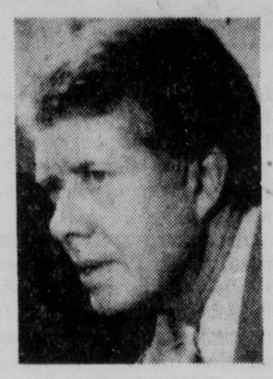
"Image" is the key word. In politics, how a candidate is perceived by the public can be more important than his voting record or demonstrated accomplishments.

Democrats now are in much the same frame of mind as Republicans after the Goldwater debacle. In 1968, Republicans shied away from an ideological hero like Ronald Reagan. They settled for Richard Nixon, whom they regarded as an experienced old pro who could hold the party together and avoid being tagged as an extremist.

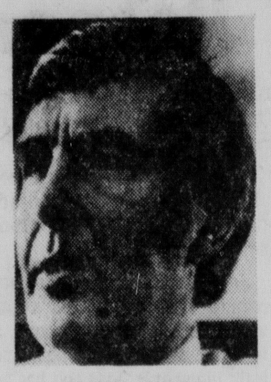
In these circumstances, Democratic candidates who are seen as too conservative, such as Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, or too liberal, such as ex-Senator Fred Harris of Oklahoma, are at a disadvantage. Harris, with his stirring neopopulist attack on the corporations and the rich, usually evokes the loudest applause at party gatherings. But privately, Democrats express their fear that Harris may be "another McGovern."

Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington is a liberal on most domestic issues. His steadfast support for the Vietnam war, his enthusiasm for a big military budget, and his criticisms of detente have the political effect, however, of establishing him as a right-of-center figure on the party's own spectrum. Among those Democrats who simply want a winner, there is the fear that he would be as objectionable to McGovern Democrats as McGovern's nomination was obnoxious to Jackson Democrats. In a word, he is too "divisive."

Birch Bayh



Jimmy Carter



Morris Udall

Although Jackson fails to benefit himself, the centrist or moderate image he has tried to establish is regarded by his rivals as the right one. That is, they want to be acceptable to big labor and not frightening to the business community, acceptable to intellectuals and minorities and also to hardhats and middle-class suburbanites.

Each of the three Democrats who appears to be doing best — Rep. Morris Udall, Sen. Birch Bayh, and ex-Governor Jimmy Carter — is trying to establish himself as the right person to organize a broad winning coalition in the final campaign.

All three mildly endorse school busing. But that is only an empty gesture to liberal diehards. Unlike McGovern, these candidates recognize that, politically, busing is a dead horse.

Bayh picks up useful strength among feminist voters by his support for the Equal Rights Amendment and his opposition to an amendment banning abortion. But the heart of his appeal is that he is acceptable to the AFL-CIO unions which boycotted the McGovern campaign, and that he has proved in Indiana that he knows how to win in a conservative state.

Udall's appeal is that he has earned the respect of House colleagues from every region. He, too, has shown that as a liberal he knows how to win in a conservative state, Arizona.

Arizona is a right-to-work state, and Udall has in the past endorsed a state's right to adopt such laws, which are anathema to organized labor. He is also an outspoken environmentalist, which makes him suspect to some unionists. But he has succeeded in mending his relations with the AFL-CIO and is careful to tell audiences that the Democrats cannot win if they lose the support of George Meany and Mayor Richard Daley.

Former Governor Carter, although still little-known, has earned new respect for his skill as a salesman of himself and as a political organizer. A former officer in the nuclear Navy, a commercial farmer, Carter has perfected a nonideological standard speech that epitomizes this year's centrist impulses, nicely mixing an appeal to efficiency and to humane sentiment.

He favors capital punishment for certain crimes, and has been skeptical of aid to New York. Yet he "gets away with" these views among many liberals because his candidacy, in effect, dangles before the party the exciting prospect that it might regain a substantial share of the Southern electoral vote. In a curious way, his regional background confers an ideological absolution. What would be regarded as proof of conservatism in a Jackson is regarded as understandable coming from a southerner.

Whoever is chosen is likely to be a liberal. In choosing the one who is acceptable to the various power blocs and who best looks like a winner, the Democrats are wise not to insist upon idelogical purity. But they would do well to look closely for evidence of good judgment and depth of conviction. As the GOP and the nation discovered with Nixon after 1968, winning isn't everything.

Zorinsky's Views Welcomed

New Democrat Edward Zorinsky appeared before the Democratic State Central Committee last Sunday asking for support for his bid for a U.S. Senate seat. The Omaha mayor said he was "proud to be a Democrat" and he said he hopes he receives better treatment in the new fraternity he has pledged than he did from his old club, the Republican Party.

Zorinsky talked some about national issues and obviously will have more to say as his campaign for the Democratic nomination unfolds. Democrats who might be uptight about what appeared to be an opportunistic switch on the Omahan's part owe him at the very least a considerate hearing on his views of the national and international scenes. His record as mayor of the state's largest city suggests that he will offer pragmatic, appealing answers to some of the questions and issues confronting the nation.

But right here at the start of his new political relationship Zorinsky unfortunately has qualified his membership in the Democratic Party. And he hasn't even paid the dues yet.

According to one report, Zorinsky was asked if he would support a primary election opponent, former Democratic State Chairman Hess Dyas, if Dyas should win the nomination as the party's standard bearer in the fight to capture Roman Hruska's Senate seat. Zorinsky reportedly replied: "It strictly depends on what happens in the next four months."

An immediate reading of that statement suggests that indeed the Omaha mayor has chosen the Democratic Party only as a convenient vehicle to power and a place in the political sun. His hedge on supporting the Democratic nominee if he doesn't win can further be viewed as symptomatic of his priorities: (1) winning the nomination as a Democrat and (2) if he does not win, indirectly at least assisting the effort to retain a U.S. Senate seat in Omaha, also the home base of John Y. McCollister, the likely Republican nominee.

It will be easy for Zorinsky to put such fears about his priorities to rest.

Nebraska Democrats in the coming months will be listening to Zorinsky as the candidate explains not only his views on national issues, but his notions about political loyalty as well.

Looking North At Uncle Sam

RIO DE JANEIRO — I first met Henry Kissinger at dinner in Paris, June 26, 1962, a few weeks after he quit his job as an advisor to the Kennedy administration. He had just been in Brazil and thought we were badly mishandling the brand new Alliance for Progress. "We make the mistake of comparing the potentialities of Latin America with those of Europe when the Marshall Plan was conceived," he said.

No doubt U.S. policy toward its neighbors was mishandled during the 1960's. Among other things he stimulated antipathy in the Latin armed forces by refusing to sell them modern weapons. Now those same armed forces are running the majority of South America's governments.

Latin disenchantment with Washington is a political reality — but at the same time all Latin governments have some bilateral accords with the United States. Even Cuba has a hijacking agreement. Nevertheless, the concept of OAS unity has evaporated. Most of Latin America feels increasingly tied to the Third World, decreasingly to us.

Secretary Kissinger has been criticized because several proposed official visits to this area were aborted — as a result of priority trips elsewhere. Yet, despite the publicity surrounding such personal diplomacy, one should not forget that movement is not a substitute for policy and the Kissinger policy toward Latin America has been helpful.

On Latin Issue No. One the secretary has quietly promoted the idea of a new treaty terminating claims to sovereignty over the Panama Canal. He backs a U.S. negotiating team abhorrent to United States diehards who adore Teddy Roosevelt and Admiral Mahan. Kissinger correctly realizes that contemporary Latin America, regardless of differences on other issues, is in accord on Panama's right to own the canal.

Likewise, despite hostile drumbeats on Issue No. Two, Cuba, he has publicly stated there is no virtue in "perpetual antagonism" toward Castro and he has quietly fostered improvements. Washington called off its insistence on including foreign subsidiaries of U.S. companies in its economic boycott.

Havana would like to see us lift selective aspects of the embargo, for example medical supplies. We keep signaling (through various channels) that we are ready to meet the Cubans any time at any place to discuss improving relations. They have not yet picked up the idea. Washington now feels embarrassed about attempting any major move before next year's elections. Castro likewise has some trouble with his own diehards. But the whole issue of better Cuban hopes may well dissolve far from Latin America — in the Angolan showdown.

As these softer U.S. attitudes on two sensitive points become more familiar, there is an easing in what had become an unnaturally tense relationship between north and south. This easing has been helped by new interpretations of the Trade Act, previously considered harmful by Latin interests.

There remains in the hemisphere a legacy of imbalance between relatively backward societies and the northern colossus. Action Against Kissinger Dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — House contempt action against Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was dropped Wednesday in a compromise reportedly ordered personally by President Ford.

Drwing scattered applause, Chairman Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., of the House Intelligence Committee, told the House that Ford aides have "substantially complied" with a subpoena against Kissinger for information.

In related actions Wednesday:

— Pike criticized the administration's refusal to disclose America's help to anti-Communist factions in Angola as "a travesty on our Constitution." At a public affairs forum, Pike said, "Here we are involved, not in intelligence gathering, not even in the assassination of somebody."

— The House panel was told by McGeorge Bundy that CIA assassination plots were not authorized by the White House. Bundy, who served under two Democratic presidents, said, however, that the White House was "not aware of everything done by the CIA."

Pike told the committee he was dropping the contempt action on promise of getting details of 20 State Department requests for covert U.S. political operations abroad since 1961.

"We did not get everything we wanted," Pike told his committee, "but we got more than they were willing to give us."

The committee had approved a contempt of Congress citation Nov. 14. If the House had voted the citation, Kissinger could theoretically have been sentenced to a year in jail and be given a $1,000 fine, but Pike had said repeatedly there was never any danger of Kissinger going to jail.

The committee's senior Republican, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, said the eleventh hour compromise offer sent to Pike Tuesday afternoon from White House aides was ordered by Ford personally.

"When the President got back (from China) they met with the President at once and the President told them to give us what we want," McClory said.

Pike agreed to drop the contempt action against Kissinger after getting a report from a committee delegation that the information puts Kissinger in "substantial compliance" with a committee subpoena.

Counsel A. Searle Field said the delegation got "very good assurance" at the White House that the committee will get the information on the covert operations it needs.

He said William G. Hyland, director of the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence, briefed the delegation directly from the 20 State Department proposals and from top secret minutes of the National Security Council's Committee of 40 meeting.

Apparently because Ford had claimed executive privilege against turning over everything the committee subpoened, Hyland emphasized that the committee members were not allowed to see the documents themselves.

The documents will not be turned over to the committee but Field said the staff probably will take detailed notes at a fuller briefing and report the information back to the committee.

The compromise ended the third and possibly last fight between the committee and Ford and his aides.

Last September Ford cut off all secret information to the committee after it publicly disclosed four words showing that U.S. intelligence had monitored Egyptian communications just before the 1973 Mideast war.

Ford and the committee later worked out a compromise under which it agreed not to vote to make such information public without advance notice — and not to make it public without going to court if Ford declared its secrecy vital.

Later the committee considered contempt action against Kissinger for refusing to turn over a junior officer's criticism of his handling of the Cyprus crisis last year.

But the committee backed off when measures including Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., argued the House would probably back Kissinger, rather than the committee.

If that happened, Aspin contended, the administration would be in a position to ignore any further committee demands for secret information.

The committee had voted 10 to 2 to subpoena Kissinger to turn over the State Department requests for covert operations. But Pike conceded the committee was ready to overrule him if he pressed the contempt vote for Kissinger's refusal to fully comply.

The chairman blamed the shift in the committee's position on "intensive lobbying" which he said came from both White House and State Department officials.

Kissinger remained aloof from the compromise negotiations, telling newsmen early this week he had not had time to follow them and was leaving them up to the White House.

Action Against Kissinger Dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — House contempt action against Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was dropped Wednesday in a compromise reportedly ordered personally by President Ford.

Drwing scattered applause, Chairman Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., of the House Intelligence Committee, told the House that Ford aides have "substantially complied" with a subpoena against Kissinger for information.

In related actions Wednesday:

— Pike criticized the administration's refusal to disclose America's help to anti-Communist factions in Angola as "a travesty on our Constitution." At a public affairs forum, Pike said, "Here we are involved, not in intelligence gathering, not even in the assassination of somebody."

— The House panel was told by McGeorge Bundy that CIA assassination plots were not authorized by the White House. Bundy, who served under two Democratic presidents, said, however, that the White House was "not aware of everything done by the CIA."

Pike told the committee he was dropping the contempt action on promise of getting details of 20 State Department requests for covert U.S. political operations abroad since 1961.

"We did not get everything we wanted," Pike told his committee, "but we got more than they were willing to give us."

The committee had approved a contempt of Congress citation Nov. 14. If the House had voted the citation, Kissinger could theoretically have been sentenced to a year in jail and be given a $1,000 fine, but Pike had said repeatedly there was never any danger of Kissinger going to jail.

The committee's senior Republican, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, said the eleventh hour compromise offer sent to Pike Tuesday afternoon from White House aides was ordered by Ford personally.

"When the President got back (from China) they met with the President at once and the President told them to give us what we want," McClory said.

Pike agreed to drop the contempt action against Kissinger after getting a report from a committee delegation that the information puts Kissinger in "substantial compliance" with a committee subpoena.

Counsel A. Searle Field said the delegation got "very good assurance" at the White House that the committee will get the information on the covert operations it needs.

He said William G. Hyland, director of the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence, briefed the delegation directly from the 20 State Department proposals and from top secret minutes of the National Security Council's Committee of 40 meeting.

Apparently because Ford had claimed executive privilege against turning over everything the committee subpoened, Hyland emphasized that the committee members were not allowed to see the documents themselves.

The documents will not be turned over to the committee but Field said the staff probably will take detailed notes at a fuller briefing and report the information back to the committee.

The compromise ended the third and possibly last fight between the committee and Ford and his aides.

Last September Ford cut off all secret information to the committee after it publicly disclosed four words showing that U.S. intelligence had monitored Egyptian communications just before the 1973 Mideast war.

Ford and the committee later worked out a compromise under which it agreed not to vote to make such information public without advance notice — and not to make it public without going to court if Ford declared its secrecy vital.

Later the committee considered contempt action against Kissinger for refusing to turn over a junior officer's criticism of his handling of the Cyprus crisis last year.

But the committee backed off when measures including Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., argued the House would probably back Kissinger, rather than the committee.

If that happened, Aspin contended, the administration would be in a position to ignore any further committee demands for secret information.

The committee had voted 10 to 2 to subpoena Kissinger to turn over the State Department requests for covert operations. But Pike conceded the committee was ready to overrule him if he pressed the contempt vote for Kissinger's refusal to fully comply.

The chairman blamed the shift in the committee's position on "intensive lobbying" which he said came from both White House and State Department officials.

Kissinger remained aloof from the compromise negotiations, telling newsmen early this week he had not had time to follow them and was leaving them up to the White House.

Petitioners For Lewis Will Go Door-To-Door

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

The petition drive to call a grand jury to investigate the shooting deaths of Lincolnites Sherdell Lewis and Elijah Childers is going door-to-door.

That word Wednesday night from the Justice for Lewis committee which met at the Malone Center to map out the city for the canvass which will begin Saturday.

Jesse Payne, head of the 12-member committee said, "We'll go right up to the final day if we have to, to get the 4,828 signatures necessary." The group has until Jan. 15 to accomplish that task. The current unofficial total was "in the neighborhood of 2,500 signatures," Payne added.

To date the circulation of petitions has been done basically by committee members and "a few persons who signed up to distribute them," Payne said in explaining some of the problems encountered in the drive.

"A lot of those have gotten into hands of persons other than those who signed them out, so we've lost track of a few petitions," he continued

"A real problem is that some of the members of this community who should really be concerned about the shootings and the other things going on with our law enforcement agencies haven't expressed their concern as of yet," he said.

In addition, the committee has manned booths at the Gateway shopping center mall on Saturdays and collected some signatures. Payne stressed the canvass as a "real turning point" in the committee attempts to "get the word out to the public."

He criticized County Atty. Ron Lahners for using "red herring tactics" by "playing up the fact that a grand jury will cost the taxpayers some $42,000." The county attorney, according to Payne, is "playing on a vicious subconscience, one that brings out the prejudices in a lot of people."

Payne cited the increased activity by the political action committees of local churches and said, "It's the Christians' obligation to attend to this atrocious situation."

The committee will try to recruit more members and try to get "equal time in the media in an attempt to keep the public informed of the status of the petition drive," Payne said.

"Democracy is a difficult thing to bear, but the committee should be applauded for working through the channels (i.e. the petition drive) provided for in our state statutes. If what we are doing is radical or subversive, then the very founding fathers of our country were in error," Payne said.

He added, "There will be so many offshoots. such a picture of complicity if this thing is opened up that the county attorney is actually scared of a grand jury."

The petition drive is slated to cover the area from "84th St. to Capitol Beach and Hwy. 2 to O St.." Payne said. "Hopefully we'll get enough signatures before Christmas so that we can sit down and enjoy the holiday with our families," he concluded.

Omaha Restaurateur Indicted By Grand Jury

Omaha (UPI) — A federal grand jury Wednesday indicted an Omaha restaurant operator and his wife for allegedly filing fraudulent federal income tax returns for the years 1970 and 1971.

Daniel Wherry, U.S. Attorney for Nebraska, said Joseph Tarries and his wife, Patricia, were charged with two counts each of knowingly filing false joint income tax returns by understating their adjusted gross income by a "substantial amount."

The indictments alleged the Tarries reported an adjusted gross income of $5,303 in 1970 and $9.298 in 1971.

Wherry said the charges stipulate the government doesn't have to release a figure on what the reported incomes actually were, but only to prove it was a "substantial amount" over what was claimed

Wherry said the maximum penalty for each count was a $5,000 fine or three years imprisonment or both.

Wherry said Tarries, who operates a Mexican restaurant, and his wife would appear before U.S. Magistrate Richard Peck of Omaha in the near future.

The indictments against the Tarries were among 13 returned by the grand jury.

Firms Feel City Charges Too Much To Cut Weeds

Two companies which own 56 vacant Lincoln lots feel the city is charging too much for cutting weeds.

The Commonwealth Company and West Gate, Inc. have filed a suit against the city in Lancaster County District Court asking that the weed assessments on their properties be removed or reduced by $16.60 per lot.

The city assessment for cutting weeds on vacant lots includes inspection, car travel time, clerical and overtime fees, according to the suit.

These fees are based, not on actual cost, but on an arbitrary formula, the suit contends.

The two companies are contending that the assessments are unlawful because they are not based on the cost of actually removing the weeds.

Cuba Helping MPLA In Angola

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Cuba told the United Nations on Wednesday it was helping the Popular Movement (MPLA) in Angola's civil war "by all possible means to meet foreign aggression."

Cuban Ambassador Ricardo Alarcon did not specify whether this included Cuban troops. American officials charge that Cubans using Soviet arms are in Angola helping the MPLA battle two rival nationalist movements.

Alarcon, addressing the General Assembly, also called U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan "a pseudo-professor who is a tardy defender" of Africa.

The reference was clearly to Moynihan's sharp speech Monday accusing the Soviet Union of seeking to "recolonize Africa" by backing the MPLA. The other movements, the National Front (FNLA) and the National Union (UNITA), have reportedly received aid from South Africa, Zaire, the United States and other states. Portugal granted Angola independence Nov. 11.

Moynihan told reporters after the General Assembly debate that Cuban troops "as Soviet allies" were "not just in Angola but in at least six other African countries" — Congo, Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, Equatorial Guinea, Somalia and South-West Africa.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik accused Moynihan of a "big lie" in saying he did not know whether there were South Africans in Angola. "The whole world" knows that they are there with arms supplied "by certain Western countries, and primarily the United States," Malik said Wednesday.

"Poor helpless CIA!" Malik said of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. "After all, it sees everything and knows everything from Chile to New York. But South African intervention in Angola it hasn't noticed so far. And you've let down Mr. Moynihan."

Moynihan, referring to Malik's speech, told reporters that in the General Assembly, "When you don't have the facts, sometimes calling names is a substitute."

Malik said, "We don't need the wealth of Angola or its land . . . we give selfless assistance to any people in its struggle for freedom and independence against colonialism and racism."

Ambassador Mutuale Tshikankie of Zaire said the Soviet Union never helped the Angolan liberation movements under Portuguese colonialism but charged it was now dividing the Angolans "with murderous weapons, watching them kill each other."

Alarcon said "there is no civil war in Angola" but just "the continuation of a long struggle for independence against imperialism."

Poll: Efforts To Strengthen Status Of Women Backed

By LOUIS HARRIS

Despite serious voting setbacks for the Equal Rights Amendment last month, a decisive 63-25% of the American people favor "most of the efforts to strengthen and change women's status in society. This is a dramatic rise since 1970, when a narrow, 42-41% plurality felt that way.

However, the actual cause of women's rights is far more popular than many of the organizations that are active in the drive to change women's status. No more than 16% of the public feel that "most" pro-women's rights groups are "helping the cause of women," although only 10% believe that "none" of the organizations is making a positive contribution. The view that most people hold about women's rights groups is that either "some are helping" (37%) or "only a few are helping" (28%).

Sixty-five per cent of all women endorse "most efforts to strengthen and change women's status in society," but only 17% feel "most organizations trying to change women's status in society are helping the cause of women." Since 1970, backing for women's rights among women has jumped from 40 to 65%, but support for "most" pro-women's rights organizations has only risen from 8 to 17%.

One significant clue to the gap between the popularity of the cause and the relative coolness toward women's rights organizations is that a 62-29% majority of women does not feel that women are an oppressed group in America. A comparable 65-27% majority of men agrees. It is clear that if women's organizations campaign for women's rights in the name of "liberating women from oppression," they are going to ride into a storm of disbelief. By 60-37%, a majority of women don't believe that "women are stuck with doing the menial chores and are not given a chance to do really important things."

But there is no doubt that real and significant changes have taken place in the attitude of women over the past five years since 1970. The following are some important shifts in the views of women, recorded in a recent Harris Survey of a national cross section of 1,519 men and women:

—The percentage of women who believe that "taking care of a home and raising children is more rewarding for women than having a job" has declined from 71 to 51% in the past five years.

—In 1970, a 58-35% majority of women believed that "women will always be more emotional and less logical than men." But presently, a 53-39% majority of women does not believe this statement, although a 54-35% majority of men still does.

—In 1970, a 67-23% majority believed that "there won't be a woman president of the U.S. for a long time and that's probably just as well." However, presently — only five years later — a 47-41% plurality of women doesn't believe this statement, although a 51-36% majority of men still thinks a woman president is both unlikely and undesirable.

—In 1970, a 67-27% majority of women felt that "for a woman to be truly happy, she needs to have a man around." But five years later, a 52-42% majority of all women deny this is the case, although by 54-33%, most men think a man is indispensable to most women.

—A plurality of 46-39% of women five years ago disagreed with the claim that "this country would be better off if women had more say about politics." Now, by 57-29%, a majority of women believes more power for women in politics would be a positive force, although a 42-39% plurality of men disagrees.

One of the interesting findings of early Harris Surveys is that more men than women advocated greater opportunities for women. However, this has now changed drastically, and women feel much more strongly than men do about achieving equal rights and opportunities for women. But as women have become more conscious and articulate about their status, they have also become more selective about the leaders and groups they want to speak for them. And the early rhetoric describing women as a downtrodden, oppressed and largely disenfranchised sex increasingly strikes most women as neither accurate nor a rallying cry they will respond to.

Lee Bond Issue Fails

Fort Madison, Iowa (UPI) — Voters in the Lee County central community school district voted down a $2,400,000 building and remodeling bond issue, officials said.

Effective Communication among family or friends can work wonders. It's not only relaxing, it can also provide a feeling of closeness, a sense of belonging. Does small talk leave you with such a feeling or do you find yourself avoiding it?

Do you find yourself withdrawing from conversation because it's difficult to both hear and understand? This may be a symptom of a hearing problem, and since a hearing loss may be painless, you may not even be aware of the reason for your actions.

But a hearing loss can be a problem to overcome, not one to be endured. Your doctor may tell you better hearing is possible, either through medical treatment or with a hearing aid. Seek his advise, and if a hearing aid is suggested, we can offer you more than just small talk. Let us prove it to you. Olten Hearing Aid Service, 415 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln. Phone 432-8597.

Mexicans Urged:

'Let's Make Ourselves Scarce'

The slogan: "let's make ourselves scarce."

If that doesn't happen, warn the statisticians, Mexico's population could jump from the present 60 million to 135 million by the year 2000. The rate of increase has been 3.5% per year, of the importance of family planning," says Luisa Maria Leal, secretary of the government's National Population Council. "Our efforts are paying off."

"The phrase 'birth control' is still taboo," says Miss Leal. "Morally some people find it objectionable. Family planning sound better."

The campaign uses cartoon characters and drawings to sell the message that smaller families live better. It's carried in newspapers, television, radio, billboards and posters.

One television spot shows the smiling faces of a newly married couple. The smiles remain when the first and second children are born, but then turn to scowls when No. 3 arrives and, as more children come, all are crying and screaming and the mother is frantic.

A typical poster asks: "Thinking of having a larger family? Then think if everyone will have what he needs and remember: the small family lives better."

Ramon Ojeda Mestre, the National Planning Council's coordinator general, says that 1.5 million women of child-bearing age are now participating in family planning, an increase of 250,000 over the past year. But he says the program still has a long way to go before reaching most Mexican women.

Since President Luis Echeverria came out in favor of family planning when he was inaugurated in 1960, public health clinics have given out free birth control pills and other contraceptive devices to those women who want them. As well, there are free courses for those thinking of marriage with much of the emphasis on family planning.

Ironically, Mexico is the major supplier of birth control pills on the world's market. It manufactures an estimated 40-50% of the pills sold.

Life Begins At Forty:

Services Initiated For Handicapped

By JOANNE FARRIS

I've picked up a few news notes for senior readers who are handicapped

Greyhound Bus Lines has inaugurated a new bus service for the handicapped Any handicapped person who presents a written statement from his or her doctor attesting that person s need to be accompanied will be allowed a companion for assistance in boarding and exiting The companion will be allowed to travel for the price of one ticket Wheelchairs and other aids will be transported as baggage at no extra charge

Western Union has initiated a new braillegram service for the blind and visually impaired

Anyone who wishes to send a message to a blind or visually handicapped person can call Western Union, dictate the message, and specify whether it is to be put into braille or large print (14 point type) for delivery by mail from the company's Moorestown, N J office

The charge for the new service is $2 for the first 25 words, and $1 for each additional 25 words

☆ ☆ ☆

How many of you are aware that the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has a new program to help provide homes for the elderly, the handicapped, and low-income families?

The program, which went into effect in May, attempts to make housing available to consumers with low incomes by subsidizing part of their rent

In general the program is open to families whose income is no greater than 80% of the median income for the area in which they live

Persons who believe they may qualify for assistance under this program. known officially as Section Eight Housing Assistance Payment Program, should go to the public housing authority in their city and provide information about their income, size of family, and monthly expenses

If qualified, they will receive a Certificate of Family Participation award, entitling them to federal assistance with 75 to 85% of their rent

Now that the advent of winter weather is curtailing garage sales in most parts of the country, people think about attending auctions Auction centers offer some of the same kinds of enjoyment their partisans find at garage sales

Caveat emptor (let the buyer beware) is the motto for both forms of sale So, once you have checked out the classified ads in your local paper and zeroed in on your auction, make it a point to arrive at the auction center well ahead of sale time

Then, you can browse through the sale items to get a close look at anything you may want to bid on

How disappointing it is to bid on a lovely piece of china or glassware, pay for it and then discover on the way home that it is cracked or chipped!

As you browse, listen to the other browsers An antique dealer is a good person to hover near or to watch if you don t have an "expert' eye for the authentic yourself

Some of my friends try out an auction center a few times before they buy anything They like to get the hang of the thing, and they like to learn how outspoken the auctioneer is about the quality of the merchandise he is selling

They also get a line on who the regular patrons are I personally like to sit behind a dealer he or she gives good clues about desirable items and reasonable prices

Last summer I talked to a college boy at an auction The week before he had bought a box of old books from an estate auction When he got home and dug through the box he uncovered a small box under the books It was full of antique jewelry Sometimes an auction can become a treasure hunt

Life Begins At Forty:

Services Initiated For Handicapped

By JOANNE FARRIS

Greyhound Bus Lines has inaugurated a new bus service for the handicapped. Any handicapped person who presents a written statement from his or her doctor attesting that person's need to be accompanied will be allowed a companion for assistance in boarding and exiting. The companion will be allowed to travel for the price of one ticket. Wheelchairs and other aids will be transported as baggage at no extra charge.

Western Union has initiated a new braillegram service for the blind and visually impaired.

Anyone who wishes to send a message to a blind or visually handicapped person can call Western Union, dictate the message, and specify whether it is to be put into braille or large print (14 point type) for delivery by mail from the company's Moorestown, N.J. office.

The charge for the new service is $2 for the first 25 words, and $1 for each additional 25 words.

How many of you are aware that the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has a new program to help provide homes for the elderly, the handicapped, and low-income families?

The program, which went into effect in May, attempts to make housing available to consumers with low incomes by subsidizing part of their rent.

In general the program is open to families whose income is no greater than 80% of the median income for the area in which they live.

Persons who believe they may qualify for assistance under this program, known officially as Section Eight Housing Assistance Payment Program, should go to the public housing authority in their city and provide information about their income, size of family, and monthly expenses.

If qualified, they will receive a Certificate of Family Participation award, entitling them to federal assistance with 75 to 85% of their rent.

Now that the advent of winter weather is curtailing garage sales in most parts of the country, people think about attending auctions. Auction centers offer some of the same kinds of enjoyment their partisans find at garage sales.

Caveat emptor (let the buyer beware) is the motto for both forms of sale. So, once you have checked out the classified ads in your local paper and zeroed in on your auction, make it a point to arrive at the auction center well ahead of sale time.

Then, you can browse through the sale items to get a close look at anything you may want to bid on.

How disappointing it is to bid on a lovely piece of china or glassware, pay for it, and then discover on the way home that it is cracked or chipped!

As you browse, listen to the other browsers. An antique dealer is a good person to hover near or to watch if you don't have an "expert" eye for the authentic yourself.

Some of my friends try out an auction center a few times before they buy anything. They like to get the hang of the thing, and they like to learn how outspoken the auctioneer is about the quality of the merchandise he is selling.

They also get a line on who the regular patrons are. I personally like to sit behind a dealer; he or she gives good clues about desirable items and reasonable prices.

Last summer I talked to a college boy at an auction. The week before he had bought a box of old books from an estate auction. When he got home and dug through the box he uncovered a small box under the books. It was full of antique jewelry. Sometimes an auction can become a treasure hunt.

Duane Vicary Succeeds Resigning Chamber Official

John R. Fraker, executive vice president of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce for 16 years, has resigned effective Jan. 1 to accept a similar position with the privately-operated Lincoln Chamber Industrial Development Corporation.

He will be succeeded by Duane S. Vicary, now general manager and director of the chamber's industrial division.

The staff reorganization was announced at a Wednesday board of directors meeting by Chamber president Paul Amen, according to a press release.

Neither Amen nor Vicary could be contacted for comment. According to the chamber office, Fraker was out of town at the time of the announcement.

Under Fraker, the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce became one of the few in the nation to gain both accreditation and certified staff personnel. It also established a strong program for creation of industrial development and for expanding Lincoln's economy.

Vicary, 42, has been with the Lincoln chamber since 1960, serving as business manager and director of trade-area relations before becoming general manager in 1965.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Vicary is a member of the American Industrial Developers Council, the American Chamber of Commerce Executives Association, the Nebraska Industrial Developers Association and the Governor's Committee on Goals for Nebraska. He is past president of the Nebraska Chamber of Commerce Executives Association.

Duane Vicary

Before coming to Lincoln in 1959, Fraker, a graduate of Ohio State University, served as manager of the Houston Jaycees and the Houston Chamber civic affairs and industrial development departments.

In other action, results of the election to the board of directors were announced.

Elected to one-year terms were Jack Hart, Lincoln Journal; John L. Hoppe Sr., John L. Hoppe Lumber Co.; Rickard O. Joyce, Henkle & Joyce; Richard L. White, R.L. White Co.; and Burnham Yates, First National Bank.

Elected to two-year terms were Wilson B. Garnett, Central Telephone & Utilities Corp.; James E. Kamas, Baker Printing Co.; Barbara Lautzenheiser, Bankers Life Nebraska; Corwin D. Moore, Miller & Moore; and Robert E. Peterson, Peterson Construction Co.

Elected to three-year terms were Roland D. Andersen, Norden Laboratories; James E. Geist, Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co.; Leland Holdt, Security Mutual Life Insurance Co.; Dale E. LeBaron, Lincoln Plating Co.; and J. William Peterson, Lincoln Equipment Co.

The board also approved the chamber's 1976 operating budget and a new membership classification of $20 annually for retired members.

Lincoln Jaycee president Tom Hinds reported that his chapter now ranks fourth nationally out of approximately 8,000 Jaycee chapters in membership and that the Lincoln group has advanced to third place in the state in point-ranking among Jaycee chapters.

Police Review Board To Seek Objective Complaint Handling

Several members of the city's new Police Review Board said Wednesday they want the public and police department to know that they're not "out to get" the police.

Stanley Sands, one of seven members recently appointed to the board by the mayor and City Council, suggested that the group approve a "statement of intent" to convince the community the board will be objective in dealing with citizens and police officers.

The board met for the first time to discuss rules of procedure and elect officers. The board did neither and will continue discussions on those items and on a statement of intent next Wednesday.

The board named businessman Jim Kamas to act as temporary chairman since the group wants to take particular care in selecting the person who will wield extensive authority in ruling on cases which come before the board.

Because the chairman will have the power to make crucial decisions and because the panel represents a wide range of interests, member Jack Siegmas proposed that the chairman be limited to one term in office. The other members agreed.

Under the procedure established by the City Council, complaints of alleged police misconduct or abuse will be filed in the city clerk's office. The police department then will have an opportunity to respond to those charges.

The Police Review Board would meet within 10 days of that answer to determine if any further action is necessary. Any recommendations made by the board are advisory to the mayor and council.

Police Chief George Hansen explained that he has created a two-member internal affairs office within the department to handle complaints.

The officers are keeping track of the complaints registered, but, Hansen said, "there's no way to keep them busy on a full time basis."

Officer Linda Steinman, one of the officers assigned to that job, said most of the complaints are minor, dealing with inquiries about abandoned cars or complaints that "an officer was rude to me."

Chief Hansen said he received more complaints the first several weeks he was on the job than he has in the last two months.

Board members are Kamas, Sands, owner of a meat company, Nancy O'Brien, a teacher, Ted LaRose, a car salesman, B. "Nick" Garcia, an estimator for a construction company, Ed Wimes, a university student and Siegman, a university professor.

Judge Failor Fines Herself

Alliance (AP) — Associate Box Butte County Judge Liz Failor signed a complaint against herself, pleaded guilty and paid a self assessed fine of $1 plus $8 court costs.

Judge Failor charged herself with allowing a dog to run loose after her pet got away and was picked up by the dog catcher.

Well, It Might Have Been A Fire

The residents of a second-floor apartment at 1447 Washington had some uninvited guests for supper Wednesday night.

A squad of Lincoln firemen, responding to a call from a neighbor across the alley from that residence who had sighted smoke, went to the second floor where the smoke was seen pouring through a screened in porch at the rear of the building.

They found a barbecue supper being prepared on a charcoal grill, activity obviously prompted by unseasonably warm weather.

Space Limit Worsens County Staff Problems

It's space, not people, that apparently is currently standing in the way of a solution to the county's personnel system problems.

"We know we don't have enough staffing to get the job done." The city is willing to take on the extra responsibilities of county personnel if it had the space for more staff, County Board Chairman Jan Gauger told the County's Personnel Policy Advisory Board Wednesday afternoon.

"The space problem is the major concern and I don't have an answer for it," she said.

The city currently handles part of the county's personnel work, including recruitment, for $20,000 a year. The county also has two staff members of its own assigned to personnel.

Under the proposal the city personnel would handle all county work, with one person designated as county personnel officer.

The current county personnel officer, Wayne Hart, would give up his personnel duties and spend full time on his other job as the commissioners' administrative aide.

But the city will need three more people in order to handle all the county work. And there just isn't enough space in the City Personnel office, or in the building, to house these extra employes, Mrs. Gaguer said.

Problems with the county's personnel system, including delays in recruitment, have brought repeated criticism by county department heads and employes.

Some county employes and officials also feel that the city personnel department puts county business second.

But Mrs. Gauger said the city has guaranteed that service to the county would be of primary importance when that department started doing all county personnel work.

In addition there would be one person directly responsible for seeing that county personnel work was handled quickly and properly, she explained.

The two local governments save money by having a joint department rather than duplicating personnel and expertise, she said.

Foresters Give Health Center $1,700 Check

The Lincoln Court, Independent Order of Foresters, presented a $1,700 check to St. Elizabeth Health Center Wednesday.

The money will be applied toward purchase of a kidney dialysis machine. The fraternal organization announced in early August that it plans to raise $15,000 by June to buy the hospital three of the blood cleansing machines used by people with kidney disease.

Ex-Steamer Engineer Is Granny For Hire

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Peter John Jones, 75, was an engineer on a Lake Erie excursion boat in his younger years. He worked 18 years in the Lorain, Ohio, shipyards. Now he's a granny for hire.

Retired, like his boat "Steamer Goodtime," Jones is one of thousands of persons in Albuquerque over age 55 who have been placed in permanent, temporary and parttime jobs by Rent-A-Granny.

The program places the elderly in most every type of job, including construction work, child care, banking, nursing, accounting, typing and reading to the bedridden.

Jones takes house-sitting jobs for Albuquerque residents, which includes staying in their homes, answering their telephones, watching their television sets and feeding their dogs and horses.

"I'm not able to do real work," he said, explaining he had a lung removed in 1966 and "runs out of breath with the least bit of exertion."

He is a volunteer for Rent-A-Granny when he's not housesitting.

"I answer the telephone and take orders for various jobs," he said. "I meet a lot of people and talk to a lot of people. It's better than loafing at home."

Jones and the other seven volunteers, all over 55, work with program coordinator Anne Beckman in matching persons with jobs.

Mrs. Beckman, who is a widow and great-grandmother, established Rent-A-Granny in 1962 in Albuquerque. After moving to Santa Fe for a few years, she returned to Albuquerque in 1968 and since then has been counseling the over-55 set, locating them housing and finding them jobs.

"If you want a radio repaired, we've got somebody," she said. "If you want an umbrella repaired, we've got somebody."

Rent a granny, Mrs. Beckman said, "if you want a person who's reliable, mature of course, and very skilled, definitely skilled."

Rent-A-Granny, Mrs. Beckman said, was "set up to supplement people's incomes." The program helps senior citizens avoid sacrificing or penalizing their Social Security checks.

Housed in the First United Methodist Church in downtown Albuquerque, it is financed, "how would you say it, 'pennies from heaven?'" said Mrs. Beckman.

The program, which at one time received federal Manpower funding through the City of Albuquerque, now is a community effort supported by donations including some from Rent-A-Granny clients. There is no charge to persons finding a job through the program.

"I'm a granny," said Ethel Kucks, who is 65 and "can still play ball with the kids."

Mrs. Kucks, who lives in Rio Rancho just outside Albuquerque, retired after working many years in the office of a large corporation, and "I wanted something different."

Wage Comparison Restriction Sought

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The League of Nebraska Municipalities will ask the 1976 Legislature to place restrictions on the Court of Industrial Relations' authority to use wage rates in other areas as a factor in establising disputed public employe wages in Nebraska.

"We'll have a little problem with this," league lobbyist Dave Chambers acknowledged to the Unicameral's Urban Affairs Committee Wednesday.

"Yes, you will," Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston responded.

Chambers later told newsmen that the proposal has been pushed by Grand Island and Omaha.

The issue centers upon a Court of Industrial Relations decision boosting firemen's wages in Omaha by 10.2%, based, in part, on a comparison with fire salaries in Cincinnati, Toledo, Akron, Dayton, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Wichita.

Other benefits were also increased by the court decision.

Its judgment was upheld earlier this year by the State Supreme Court.

The City of Omaha had appealed the decision, arguing against the use of larger cities in more industrialized areas for comparision purposes.

Later, the Court of Industrial Relations used comparative figures in 13 cities around the country (including Lincoln) in approving an 11% wage hike for Omaha patrolmen.

Under the league's legislative proposal, the court would be restricted to choosing the final offer of one of the parties in a case in which there is no comparative entity within Nebraska.

The court would be required to "select that final offer that more nearly conforms to the prevalent wage rate or condition of employment."

The effect of such a policy would appear to hold down future disputed public employe wage hikes in the two largest cities, Omaha and Lincoln.

NPPD, OPPD Get Early Look At Report

Under ground rules established for a legislative consultant's survey of public power rates and operations, the power districts will be permitted to react to the survey's findings or conclusions prior to their publication.

The ground rules for the study were agreed to by Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook, chairman of the power study subcommittee, and representatives of the consulting firm and the power agencies.

The review of Nebraska Public Power District and Omaha Public Power District rates and operations is being undertaken by O'Brien and Gere Engineers of Syracuse, N.Y., under the direction of the legislative subcommittee.

A final report on the initial study — which could lead to a broader legislative survey of public power — is scheduled by mid-February, Lewis said. An interim report is due in mid-January.

Consultants will tell senators whether they believe NPPD and OPPD rate-setting procedures are "fair, reasonable and non-discriminatory," Lewis said.

Conclusions will also be reached on whether "internal operations which have an effect on rate levels are reasonable and efficient," he said.

"It is hoped that the study will show an efficient and economic operation by the two major power districts."

All efforts will be made to "resolve the differences, if any" between the power districts and the consultants prior to the preparation of a final report, Lewis said.

"Only in th event that differences cannot be resolved in this manner would separate reports by the consultants and the district or districts be presented to the public works subcommittee."

Post-Secondary Study Committee Can't Visit All

The legislative study committee on higher education has abandoned plans to attempt to visit all post-secondary education campuses in Nebraska prior to next year's regular session of the Unicameral.

But Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, committee chairman, said he plans to visit every campus sometime during the 1976 session.

Committee members will accompany him to various campuses as they choose.

Scheduling difficulties made it impossible to divide into subcommittees and travel to every campus prior to January, Warner said.

Committee meetings scheduled for Thursday and Friday have been cancelled.

Nominee List Submitted For NU Chancellor Post

University of Nebraska President D.B. Varner said Wednesday the search committee charged with finding a new Lincoln campus chancellor has submitted a list of nominees to him.

"I haven't examined it," Varner said, "and I don't know its contents."

Varner explained he ordered 11 copies of the list sealed for hand-delivery to each NU Regent when the board meets Saturday morning in Lincoln.

Until then, the president said, he intends to get no further involved with the selection.

UNL Prof. Richard E. Gilbert, chairman of the 17-member search committee, said he was pleased the group was able to supply the list to Varner in such a short time — exactly three months.

Gilbert said only that the list contains between six and 10 names, noting that Varner has now assumed responsibility for the list and for supplying further specifics.

"He and the board (of regents) have got a tremendous job ahead of them," in deciding "who is the best candidate," and persuading that person to accept the chancellorship, Gilbert said.

One condition for eligibility in the nation-wide search that screened about 170 potential nominees, Gilbert said, is that candidates must have held or now be operating in a highly responsible educational position, such as a deanship or vice chancellorship.

Accepting the UNL post would require the candidate to shut down his or her present operation quickly, Gilbert pointed out. Thus "It may take quite awhile" to lure the individual away, "unless somebody was ready, willing and able to move right now."

Gilbert said he assumes Varner and the regents will try to get the most qualified individual to accept the offer by mid-January, when second semester begins at UNL.

If the process goes beyond that, candidates may be committed where they're now employed for the full spring semester, Gilbert said. "It would be that much harder (to depart) after a new semester has started."

That indicates Dr. Adam Breckenridge may have to hold the UNL interim chancellor's reins until summer 1976. The vice chancellor for academic affairs was named to head the campus temporarily after Chancellor James Zumberge became Southern Methodist University president in September.

Labor Force Down In Omaha Electric Works

A company spokesman said the 4,060 persons are currently on the payroll, 140 less than in October, and down more than 1,100 from last February.

The spokesman said the reduction was achieved mainly through attrition, but that about 30 persons left the company in October through a voluntary layoff program.

Under the program, employes who foresaw the possibility of a regular layoff applied for the voluntary status, and received separation pay.

Last February, Western Electric officials said they expected the work force to decline to a low of about 4,800 by the end of this year. However, a reduction in equipment orders has been greater than expected.

No further reductions are planned, officials said.

The plant, which employed as many as 7,700 workers in 1970, manufactures telephone cable and electo-mechanical switching equipment for central telephone offices.

Wage Comparison Restriction Sought

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The League of Nebraska Municipalities will ask the 1976 Legislature to place restrictions on the Court of Industrial Relations' authority to use wage rates in other areas as a factor in establising disputed public employe wages in Nebraska.

"We'll have a little problem with this," league lobbyist Dave Chambers acknowledged to the Unicameral's Urban Affairs Committee Wednesday.

"Yes, you will," Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston responded.

Chambers later told newsmen that the proposal has been pushed by Grand Island and Omaha.

The issue centers upon a Court of Industrial Relations decision boosting firemen's wages in Omaha by 10.2%, based, in part, on a comparison with fire salaries in Cincinnati, Toledo, Akron, Dayton, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Wichita.

Other benefits were also increased by the court decision.

Its judgment was upheld earlier this year by the State Supreme Court.

The City of Omaha had appealed the decision, arguing against the use of larger cities in more industrialized areas for comparision purposes.

Later, the Court of Industrial Relations used comparative figures in 13 cities around the country (including Lincoln) in approving an 11% wage hike for Omaha patrolmen.

Under the league's legislative proposal, the court would be restricted to choosing the final offer of one of the parties in a case in which there is no comparative entity within Nebraska.

The court would be required to "select that final offer that more nearly conforms to the prevalent wage rate or condition of employment."

The effect of such a policy would appear to hold down future disputed public employe wage hikes in the two largest cities, Omaha and Lincoln.

NPPD, OPPD Get Early Look At Report

Under ground rules established for a legislative consultant's survey of public power rates and operations, the power districts will be permitted to react to the survey's findings or conclusions prior to their publication.

The ground rules for the study were agreed to by Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook, chairman of the power study subcommittee, and representatives of the consulting firm and the power agencies.

The review of Nebraska Public Power District and Omaha Public Power District rates and operations is being undertaken by O'Brien and Gere Engineers of Syracuse, N.Y., under the direction of the legislative subcommittee.

A final report on the initial study — which could lead to a broader legislative survey of public power — is scheduled by mid-February, Lewis said. An interim report is due in mid-January.

Consultants will tell senators whether they believe NPPD and OPPD rate-setting procedures are "fair, reasonable and nondiscriminatory," Lewis said.

Conclusions will also be reached on whether "internal operations which have an effect on rate levels are reasonable and efficient," he said.

"It is hoped that the study will show an efficient and economic operation by the two major power districts."

All efforts will be made to "resolve the differences, if any" between the power districts and the consultants prior to the preparation of a final report, Lewis said.

"Only in th event that differences cannot be resolved in this manner would separate reports by the consultants and the district or districts be presented to the public works subcommittee."

Post-Secondary Study Committee Can't Visit All

The legislative study committee on higher education has abandoned plans to attempt to visit all post-secondary education campuses in Nebraska prior to next year's regular session of the Unicameral.

But Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, committee chairman, said he plans to visit every campus sometime during the 1976 session.

Committee members will accompany him to various campuses as they choose.

Scheduling difficulties made it impossible to divide into subcommittees and travel to every campus prior to January, Warner said.

Committee meetings scheduled for Thursday and Friday have been cancelled.

Gun Making Comeback In Philippine Crime

Manila (AP) — Despite the martial-law ban on firearms, authorities say they see signs that the gun is marking a comeback in crime in the Philippines.

Maj. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, chief of the constabulary which enforces the firearms ban, says use of guns in crimes has risen to 40%, up from 25% immediately after the imposition of martial law in September 1972.

He said that before martial law 80% of crimes involved the use or the threatened use of a gun.

The general connected the reappearance of guns with a gradual rise in the over-all crime trend. Theft is up 21% from 14,361 in 1972 to 18,080 as of the end of the fiscal year last July 31.

"The criminally inclined, perhaps, have been emboldened by the liberalization of martial law regulations," he said, "Pressurized by economic figures, they are again starting to feel they can get away with it."

During a riot at a professional basketball game, a number of people drew weapons but no shots were fired, the Philippines News Service reported.

Moslems from the south are showing up in greater numbers in Manila to pledge allegiance to the government. Almost all carry their weapons.

The level of violence still is low compared to premartial law days.

"The big impact is in the lives saved and the cost of treatment," said Dr. Macario C. Brillantes, a Boston-trained surgeon who heads the emergency ward of a Manila hospital.

"Before martial law we got a shooting and a stabbing almost every night," he said. "Now, we get one every 10 days or two weeks. The same for stabbings."

He estimated seven of every 10 shootings involve some law enforcement agency.

Most policemen and constabularly troopers in Manila carry firearms, and use them.

In one five-day period in November, police or private security guards killed nine suspects in gun battles on the streets.

Ramos said President Ferdinand E. Marcos has relaxed the gun ban to permit business firms to buy guns for their guards.

Private firms throughout the country employ an estimated 60,000 guards, most of whom are armed.

Ramos said some of the arms are used in the commission of crimes by guards who need more money.

"Some companies are reluctant or unable to pay decent wages to their guards," said Ramos. "We are urging them to give a take home pay of 350 pesos (about $46.55) a month."

According to constabularly figures, the level of crime among the nation's 42 million people has dropped from 103,921 in the fiscal year from Aug. 1, 1971, to July 31, 1972, the last full year before martial law, to 83,060 in the year ending last July. The latter figure is 14,737 fewer than New York City in nine months this year. Murder and homicide have dropped from 9,107 before martial law to 2,732 last year.

The constabularly claims more than 600,000 unlicensed guns have been confiscated since the declaration of martial law. Ramos estimated 100,000 firearms still were loose, including those in the southern Philippines. Moslem insurgents have been battling the government in Mindanao and other islands for three years. Gunfire carrying and gun play is common in major cities in the south. Other authorities claim the number of unlicensed firearms still loose is closer to 200,000.

Keeping an unlicensed firearm can get a violator 20 years in prison or the death sentence.

However, persons who held licensed guns before martial law were permitted to keep one rifle, .22 caliber or below, and one hand gun, .38 caliber or below, and a 12-gauge shotgun.

Ramos said the ultimate aim of the martial law ban is to eliminate all weapons in private hands.

On the basis of statistics, crime and gunplay is not as widespread here as it is in the United States.

The official crime rate per 100,000 population is about 198 here, compared with the U.S. rate of 4,821.4 and the lowest state rate, in West Virginia, of 1,769.3.

Gun Making Comeback In Philippine Crime

Manila (AP) — Despite the martial-law ban on firearms, authorities say they see signs that the gun is marking a comeback in crime in the Philippines.

Maj. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, chief of the constabulary which enforces the firearms ban, says use of guns in crimes has risen to 40%, up from 25% immediately after the imposition of martial law in September 1972.

He said that before martial law 80% of crimes involved the use or the threatened use of a gun.

The general connected the reappearance of guns with a gradual rise in the over-all crime trend. Theft is up 21% from 14,361 in 1972 to 18,080 as of the end of the fiscal year last July 31.

"The criminally inclined, perhaps, have been emboldened by the liberalization of martial law regulations," he said, "Pressurized by economic figures, they are again starting to feel they can get away with it."

During a riot at a professional basketball game, a number of people drew weapons but no shots were fired, the Philippines News Service reported.

Moslems from the south are showing up in greater numbers in Manila to pledge allegiance to the government. Almost all carry their weapons.

The level of violence still is low compared to premartial law days.

"The big impact is in the lives saved and the cost of treatment," said Dr. Macario C. Brillantes, a Boston-trained surgeon who heads the emergency ward of a Manila hospital.

"Before martial law we got a shooting and a stabbing almost every night," he said. "Now, we get one every 10 days or two weeks. The same for stabbings."

He estimated seven of every 10 shootings involve some law enforcement agency.

Most policemen and constabularly troopers in Manila carry firearms, and use them.

In one five-day period in November, police or private security guards killed nine suspects in gun battles on the streets.

Ramos said President Ferdinand E. Marcos has relaxed the gun ban to permit business firms to buy guns for their guards.

Private firms throughout the country employ an estimated 60,000 guards, most of whom are armed.

Ramos said some of the arms are used in the commission of crimes by guards who need more money.

"Some companies are reluctant or unable to pay decent wages to their guards," said Ramos. "We are urging them to give a take home pay of 350 pesos (about $46.55) a month."

According to constabularly figures, the level of crime among the nation's 42 million people has dropped from 103,921 in the fiscal year from Aug. 1, 1971, to July 31, 1972, the last full year before martial law, to 83,060 in the year ending last July. The latter figure is 14,737 fewer than New York City in nine months this year. Murder and homicide have dropped from 9,107 before martial law to 2,732 last year.

The constabularly claims more than 600,000 unlicensed guns have been confiscated since the declaration of martial law. Ramos estimated 100,000 firearms still were loose, including those in the southern Philippines. Moslem insurgents have been battling the government in Mindanao and other islands for three years. Gunfighting and gun play is common in major cities in the south. Other authorities claim the number of unlicensed firearms still loose is closer to 200,000.

Keeping an unlicensed firearm can get a violator 20 years in prison or the death sentence.

However, persons who held licensed guns before martial law were permitted to keep one rifle, .22 caliber or below, and one hand gun, .38 caliber or below, and a 12-gauge shotgun.

Ramos said the ultimate aim of the martial law ban is to eliminate all weapons in private hands.

On the basis of statistics, crime and gunplay is not as widespread here as it is in the United States.

The official crime rate per 100,000 population is about 198 here, compared with the U.S. rate of 4,821.4 and the lowest state rate, in West Virginia, of 1,769.3.

Nine Take Stand At Hearing For Accused Murderer

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Wilber — Nine witnesses went to the stand Wednesday in the first day of a preliminary hearing for accused murderer Donald K. Anderson, 36.

The transient painter is charged with killing a 15-year-old Friend girl, Ann Marie Scott, last August. He faces two first-degree counts, one of premeditated murder and one of murder while committing or attempting rape

The slight defendant, frequently smiling, sat calmly through four hours of testimony attempting to link him to the girl's death. After disappearing the night of Aug. 20, Miss Scott's nude body was found four days later at a vacant farm three miles southwest of Friend.

Arrested In Florida

Anderson left the community but was apprehended Oct. 11 in Florida. He had with him his three children, residents of Cedars Home for Children in Lincoln until he picked them up Aug. 25

Saline County Sheriff Ed Prokop testified that a cloth gag was in Miss Scott's mouth when the body was discovered by a local farmer. Describing the body as "discolored and partially decomposed," he said it was completely without clothes, even shoes.

The girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Scott of Friend, would have been a high school sophomore this school year.

Attended Picnic

Several persons, including painting contractor Rex Clemens of Friend, testified that Anderson and Miss Scott were in a group attending a picnic at Clemens' house the night the girl disappeared. Among others present were four fellow workers with whom Anderson was living in Friend.

Clemens said the accused left town the next morning, though he had indicated no such intent previously. He said Anderson tried to sell him several personal possessions, stating he wanted to move to Indiana immediately.

"The guy was fidgety, really shaking," said Clemens, a resident of the Saline county community since 1965. "Don couldn't get out of the house fast enough."

Later in the morning, Anderson passed the contractor on the highway headed toward Lincoln, the witness said. "That's the last I saw of Don Anderson until right now," he continued.

From Washington

Coming to Friend from Washington state, Anderson was said to have worked for Clemens three to four weeks. He had placed his three children in the Cedars Home and, according to several witnesses, was seeking a house and housekeeper so he could bring them to Friend.

A surprise witness, the last called prior to Wednesday afternoon's adjournment, was the defendant's divorced wife, now Mrs. Bonnie Kelley of Shelby, Mich. She said Anderson, whom she was permitted to visit with during a court recess, told her not to worry "because I'm going to get off."

"He went on to say that there were three other guys involved," she stated.

That testimony brought defense attorney David Downing of Superior up short. Briefly questioning the witness in his only cross-examination of the day, he elicited her assent that Anderson was not necessarily referring to the murder.

Stocking In Mouth

Larry Ball, a Nebraska State Patrol investigator, testified that a rolled-up stocking was in the victim's mouth when her body was discovered. Another Patrol investigator, Gary Caradori, introduced several articles of clothing — purportedly the slain girl's — which he found in a roadside ditch about two miles from the location of the body.

Anderson's 11-year-old daughter, Barbara, said the father had picked her up from Cedars, along with the other two children, on Aug. 21. Driving them to Florida, she added, he had instructed them to address him by the assumed first name of Duane.

In opening remarks, Downing noted the current focus on a gag order in a Sutherland murder case. But the court-appointed defense attorney said he had "surveyed press coverage in this case" and felt it unnecessary to request such an order here.

"It appears to me the reporting has been fair and objective," said Downing. "I see no reason for that not to continue."

Judge Agrees

Saline County Judge Clarence Kunc concurred, saying "the court is not aware of any circumstance which would compel us to entertain such a motion."

The judge did order the sequestering of witnesses from hearing one another's testimony, a common proceeding.

Others testifying were Sharon Bishop, a houseparent at Cedars; and Anderson's painter-companions, Leo Wetter and David Durham.

A pathologist and several additional witnesses are to be called Thursday, according to County Attorney Bob Conner of Crete. He is being assisted by special prosecutors Joe Vosoba and Alan Steinacher of Wilber.

The forerunner of a possible formal trial, the preliminary hearing's purpose is to determine if a crime has been committed and if there is probable cause to believe the accused had committed it.

But the totals of the rural areas of both were 638 against and 64 for. The proposal was to have combined 19 districts in the area and would have phased out some rural boards as such.

Bond Issue Plan Proposed

Omaha (AP) — Mayor Edward Zorinsky Wednesday unveiled a $54 million proposal to improve Omaha's streets, sewers and bridges.

The plan includes a $30 million bond issue. If approved by the voters, Zorinsky said the issue would not cause a tax increase.

Zorinsky said voter approval would allow concrete action to be taken.

If the proposal is approved by the city council, the bond issue could be before the voters on the May 11 ballot.

The plan calls for the issuance of $6 million in bonds each year for five years.

Proud Wants GOP Head Morrow To Resign

Omaha (AP) — Former State Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha, a candidate for the 1976 Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate, Wednesday called for the resignation of William E. Morrow Jr., Nebraska's Republican national committeeman.

Proud, former speaker of the Unicameral, charged that Morrow is highly involved in the campaign of Rep. John Y. McCollister, also a candidate for the 1976 GOP nod for the Senate, which violates the party's constitution.

"I believe the people have a right to know what's going on in politics and that includes the right to know what goes on 'behind the scenes,'" said Proud during a news conference.

Proud Charges

Proud charged that Morrow:

- "Is, or very recently was, the president and chairman of the board of McCollister and Co., a corporation which deals in oil.
- "The McCollister Campaign Committee paid the law firm of which Morrow is a member a sum in excess of $1,000.
- "Letters dated November 21, 1975, soliciting money for the McCollister campaign were in violation of the federal Election Campaign Law and were signed by three Omaha attorneys and included the name of another Omaha attorney who is the treasurer of the McCollister for Senate Campaign Committee — that one of the signers of that letter is Bill Schaphorst, the immediate past United States Attorney for Nebraska who, as such, was sworn to uphold and enforce the laws of the United States — that Mr. Schaphorst is a member of Mr. Morrow's law firm.
- "The law firm of which Mr. Morrow is a member represents, on a regular basis, the Sun Newspapers and WOWT Television."

Proud said that if Morrow answered any of the allegations affirmatively, that he should resign "because he is in an irreconciliable conflict of interest situation in violation of the constitution of the Nebraska Republican party which constitution states that the party organization will maintain a position of impartiality with regard to all candidates for party office entered in primaries."

Morrow answered all of the allegations affirmatively.

William Morrow

Morrow, who noted that he headed McCollister's campaigns for the House of Representatives, said he is currently president of McCollister and Co., and that he is paid for his services However, Morrow noted that the firm is owned by the McCollister family, and that McCollister himself holds less than 50% of the stock.

Loans Repaid

Morrow said the payments to his law firm were actually repayments of money advanced or loaned to McCollister's campaign committee, and that the law firm of which he is a member, does represent the Sun Newspapers. Morrow said he does not believe the firm represents WOWT Television, but did so prior to the station's recent sale.

"I'm not connected with John's campaign at all," said Morrow, adding that he dropped his McCollister campaign duties as soon as he became a national committeeman.

"I've been very careful not to be involved in anybody's behalf," said Morrow.

Won't Resign

Morrow said he has no intentions of resigning as national committeeman.

Schaphorst said he did not want to comment on Proud's allegations until after he had read the campaign law to which Proud referred.

Proud admitted that the apparent violation of the campaign law was technical, and that it could have been an "innocent mistake." It involves a portion of a disclaimer on literature soliciting funds.

According to Proud, such literature must inform the reader that the campaign committee which authored the literature has a financial report on file in Washington. Proud said the letter, dated Nov. 21, did not include such a disclaimer.

Campaign Staff

Proud also charged that McCollister is using staff members for campaign purposes, and said McCollister will not respond to his charges because the congressman does not want to talk about the issues.

Asked for evidence on the charge that McCollister staffers were campaigning for their boss, Proud pointed the finger at Charles Hagel, McCollister's administrative aide.

Proud said Hagel called a county GOP chairman in Western Nebraska to solicit help in McCollister's campaign.

While Proud said there may be no law preventing staffers from campaigning, the former state senator said he feels such activity is "immoral and unethical."

Contacted in Washington, Hagel said he would let McCollister reply to the charges, but McCollister was not immediately available.

Hall County Supervisors Seek Opinion On Mid-State Refunds

Grand Island (UPI) — The Hall County Board of Supervisors Tuesday voted to ask County Attorney Sam Grimminger for an opinion on whether taxes for the Mid-State Reclamation District can be refunded.

The district, which was making plans for the Mid-State Reclamation Project, was voted down in a Nov. 4 election.

In a written statement, Supervisor Bernard Crick said the 0.93 mills levied by the district should be declared null and void because of the election results. The mill levy amounted to $132,000 in Hall County.

Buffalo County Attorney Gary Hogg has ruled the district can collect taxes in that county until it goes out of existence in February.

Mid-State General Manager Don Shriner Tuesday said the district will collect taxes until Dec. 31. Taxes collected in January and February will be returned to Hall County for redistribution among taxpayers.

In other action, the Hall County Board voted to drop its plans for conducting a survey to determine high school students' feelings about "Erma's Desire."

"Erma," planned for a rest stop near Grand Island, is one of 10 sculptures going up along Interstate 80 as part of Nebraska's I-80 Bicentennial Sculpture Project.

The board's action came after Dr. Cliff Dale, Grand Island school superintendent, told the board the survey could set a precedent of asking students' opinions about future county decisions.

The board also voted to approve Friday, Dec. 26 as a holiday for county workers. Final decision on the holiday is up to individual departments, and the action is not binding. But several department heads said the supervisors' vote would make it easier for them to give employes a four-day Christmas vacation.

Niobrara Residents To Celebrate Yule On 'The Hill'

Niobrara (AP) — About 275 residents of this tiny Northeast Nebraska town will spend their first Christmas this year on "The Hill" in brand new homes overlooking vistas of their old town.

Niobrara, Nebraska's third-oldest town, is now one of the newest communities, forced to relocate to higher ground by rising ground water levels.

"It's a much nicer town up there," says Mayor Lester Fitch of the new community rising on The Hill.

The Fitches are one of the families still living in the old town. They had hoped to move to the new town this year, leaving behind their home of 20 years, but the house was not completed in time.

Mrs. Fitch says most of the townspeople feel "pretty good" about the relocation. But she says, "The ones up in the new town don't like to have to come down, like to get their mail."

Gordon Printz, general manager of the Niobrara Planning Commission, says "The business part of the relocation is the most difficult because the federal money, well...just isn't there."

The businesses, he says, don't get relocation benefits to the extent the homeowners do.

Mayor Fitch says one problem was the paperwork needed to prove that businesses had suffered losses because of the rising waters. He adds that the influx of laborers constructing the new town, some businesses actually picked up for a while. "That makes the losses pretty hard to prove."

In 1955, the Gavins Point Dam, part of a flood control program for the Missouri River, went into operation 34 miles downstream from here. That dam set off a chain that resulted in the disappearing lands and flooded basements of Niobrara.

The waters rose "to a greater degree and more rapidly, than anticipated" according to Elbert Snethen, of the Army Corps of Engineers. Snethen said original estimates projected the high levels would not come for 50-100 years after the dam's completion.

Snethen, who has worked on the relocation project since 1968, said the the build-ups of sediment carried by the Niobrara and Missouri Rivers were trapped behind the dam, building up the river beds. As the river bottoms rose, he said, the river surface rose, causing a parallel jump in the ground water levels under and adjacent to the town.

As the water rose, forming pools in the basements of Niobrara, Snethen said the general morale of the town declined.

"People were trying to decide whether to relocate or just move away or just what to do," said Printz.

He says the greatest obstacle was selling the local people on how nice the town would be.

"I think we have overcome that tremendous obstacle and we do now have a town," he said. "We started building homes about 16 months ago. And when you do in a town as remote as Niobrara and have over 100 new homes constructed that's a tremendous problem getting people resettled."

Snethen says the ground water levels will continue to rise at a slower rate but the town will be safe at its new site.

Firm Outlines Eppley Field Cleanup Plan

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha Airport Authority has been told that controlling the drainage of pollutants from Eppley Airfield into Carter Lake could cost as much as $8.6 million.

That is, the Leo A. Daly Construction Co. said, unless the airport's maintenance and oil prevention programs improve.

The firm outlined a plan Tuesday to eliminate pollutants from Carter Lake. It was drawn to meet requirements of the Nebraska Department of Environmental Control and must be submitted to the agency by Dec. 31.

Representatives of the Daly company said 650 acres of airport land drain into Carter Lake. The runoff includes oils and hydraulic fluids, which the Environmental Control Dept. said must be eliminated.

Proud Wants GOP Head Morrow To Resign

Omaha (AP) — Former State Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha, a candidate for the 1976 Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate, Wednesday called for the resignation of William E. Morrow Jr., Nebraska's Republican national committeeman.

Proud, former speaker of the Unicameral, charged that Morrow is highly involved in the campaign of Rep. John Y. McCollister, also a candidate for the 1976 GOP nod for the Senate, which violates the party's constitution.

"I believe the people have a right to know what's going on in politics and that includes the right to know what goes on 'behind the scenes,'" said Proud during a news conference.

Proud Charges

Proud charged that Morrow:

- "Is, or very recently was, the president and chairman of the board of McCollister and Co., a corporation which deals in oil.
- "The McCollister Campaign Committee paid the law firm of which Morrow is a member a sum in excess of $1,000.

State's Wheat Crop Worth $324 Million

By The Associated Press

Nebraska's 1975 wheat crop was estimated at 98.24 million bushels, and was worth $324,192,000, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported Wednesday.

The division's final report of the year on small grains said the wheat crop was worth an average $3.30 per bushel at the farm, compared with $3.81 per bushel, and a total crop value of $375,666,000 in 1974.

Oat production totaled 27.93 million bushels, up 11% from 1974, with an estimated value of $40.499 million. The price per bushel was estimated at $1.45, compared with $1.52 in 1974.

Barley production was estimated at 1.26 million bushels, up 33% from last year, with a value of $2.646 million. A 36 bushel-per-acre yield at $2.10 per bushel was recorded, compared with $2.20 per bushel last year at a 35 bushel-per-acre yield.

Nebraska farmers produced 1.1 million of rye, the same as 1974, but with a seasonal average price of $2.15, down a dime from last year. Total rye value was estimated at $2.365 million, compared with $2.42 million in 1974.

Prices and value estimates were based on farm marketing of grain through November, with allowances made for the remainder of the 1975-76 season.

The wheat crop suffered from dry weather last fall, along with hail and weed infestations, the report said.

National Wheat Harvest 19% Larger Than In '74

Washington (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Wednesday estimated the value of the nation's record 1975 wheat crop at $7.4 billion on the basis of an average price to producers of $3.31 a bushel.

The department's monthly crop report estimated the total all-wheat production this year at 2.133 billion bushels — down slightly from earlier estimates but still about 19% larger than the 1974 crop.

The dollar value of this year's crop was set at $7,435,212,000 compared with an all-wheat value of $7,338,354,000 for the 1.796 billion bushels produced in 1974. The average producer price for 1974 wheat was $3.81 — 60 cents a bushel higher than this year, the report said.

Crop experts said the 1975 winter wheat crop totaled a record 1.651 billion bushels, 19% higher than last year and 30% above 1973. The value of the winter wheat crop was estimated at $5,458,927,000.

The Durum wheat production was estimated at a record 123 million bushels and valued at $586,498,000. Production of spring wheat other than Durum was 359.4 million bushels in 1975 and valued at $1,389,787,000. Production of both Durum and other spring wheat was well above 1974.

he December report listed the following production figures and dollar values for other small grains:

Oats, 686,862,000 bushels valued at $955,293,000; barley, 382,980,000 bushels valued at $949,498,000; and rye, 17,875,000 bushels valued at $41,338,000.

State's Wheat Crop Worth $324 Million

By The Associated Press

Nebraska's 1975 wheat crop was estimated at 98.24 million bushels, and was worth $324,192,000, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported Wednesday.

The division's final report of the year on small grains said the wheat crop was worth an average $3.30 per bushel at the farm, compared with $3.81 per bushel, and a total crop value of $375,666,000 in 1974.

The final yield of 32 bushels per acre was two bushels below 1974 levels, and 10 bushels below the record set in 1971.

Oat production totaled 27.93 million bushels, up 11% from 1974, with an estimated value of $40.499 million. The price per bushel was estimated at $1.45, compared with $1.52 in 1974.

Barley production was estimated at 1.26 million bushels, up 33% from last year, with a value of $2.646 million. A 36 bushel-per-acre yield at $2.10 per bushel was recorded, compared with $2.20 per bushel last year at a 35 bushel-per-acre yield.

Nebraska farmers produced 1.1 million of rye, the same as 1974, but with a seasonal average price of $2.15, down a dime from last year. Total rye value was estimated at $2.365 million, compared with $2.42 million in 1974.

Prices and value estimates were based on farm marketing of grain through November, with allowances made for the remainder of the 1975-76 season.

The wheat crop suffered from dry weather last fall, along with hail and weed infestations, the report said.

National Wheat Harvest 19% Larger Than In '74

Washington (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Wednesday estimated the value of the nation's record 1975 wheat crop at $7.4 billion on the basis of an average price to producers of $3.31 a bushel.

The department's monthly crop report estimated the total all-wheat production this year at 2.133 billion bushels — down slightly from earlier estimates but still about 19% larger than the 1974 crop.

The dollar value of this year's crop was set at $7,435,212,000 compared with an all-wheat value of $7,338,354,000 for the 1.796 billion bushels produced in 1974. The average producer price for 1974 wheat was $3.81 — 60 cents a bushel higher than this year, the report said.

The Durum wheat production was estimated at a record 123 million bushels and valued at $586,498,000. Production of spring wheat other than Durum was 359.4 million bushels in 1975 and valued at $1,389,787,000. Production of both Durum and other spring wheat was well above 1974.

Chance Still Good For Solar Lab — Marvin

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska stands "a good chance" of surviving the first cut in the competition for location of a federally-financed solar research center, the head of the federal solar research said Wednesday.

Henry Marvin, solar research director for the U.S. Energy Research Development Administration (ERDA), said Nebraska's advantage is that it is a microcosm of the U.S.

Marvin's remarks were made Wednesday at a luncheon arranged by Honeyweli, Inc., for state, local and business leaders interested in solar energy development.

A set of site specificiations which the eventual location for the Solar Energy Research Institute (SERI) must meet has been drawn up by Marvin and forwarded to his superior.

However, he declined to discuss the details of those requirements with newsmen prior to the time they are realeased in January. The site will be chosen sometime in May or June 1976.

State officials, including University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner, Rep. Charles Thone and Lt. Gov. Jerry Whelan, have teamed up to bid for locating the institute in Nebraska.

Indications are the institute may employ as many as 1,400 people on a $48 million annual budget.

Marvin, a Nebraska native, said the fact that he is familiar with Nebraska can't hurt the state's chances. But, the final decision on the location will rest with ERDA director Robert Seamans, he noted.

The amount of sunshine each area vying for the institute receives will not be "the overriding factor" in site determination, Marvin said.

In addition to sunlight, the institute will need to be located in an area where there is sufficient academic support to staff it, Marvin said.

Asked if a financial committment from the state and local interest might improve Nebraska's chances for being chosen, Marvin said it would.

New Athens, Ill., was recently chosen for the site of a coal gasification plant financed by ERDA and a group of energy firms. The State of Illinois pledged millions of dollars to make location of the plant there financiallly attractive.

For a project like the institute, which will be primarily a research and experiment facility, Marvin said a financial inducement from the state would help but not to the degree it would if the institute were a demonstration plant.

In his remarks to the officials assembled, Marvin said industrial and agricultural uses of solar energy will most likely develop the fastest since these producers are so cost sensitive.

For agriculture, Marvin said solar energy should prove useful in irrigation and grain-drying.

Non-Winter Weather 'Chills' Holiday Spirit

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

The unseasonable weather that has warmed Nebraska since Thanksgiving may be chilling Christmas spirit a degree or two.

The volume of mail handled in Lincoln since Dec. 1 is down 2.2% from the same period last year, Postmaster Lowell G. Moore said Wednesday. Consequently, postal employes have totaled 5.2% less work hours.

"We just haven't had the traditional Christmas-type weather that gets people in the spirit," he said. Moore said economic conditions also may be causing people to cut their Christmas mailings.

Rate increases on Dec. 28 apparently have had "no impact" on Christmas mailings and have caused "only a little increase" in regular business mailings, he said.

First class rates will rise from 10¢ to 13¢. Post cards will cost 9¢ instead of 7¢. Parcel post rates will increase 10%.

"Most of the businesses we've talked to haven't been able to make much preparation for avoiding rate increases," Moore said. "They're hooked into computers and have regular billing cycles. It's out of their control."

Postal officials in Washington, D.C., expect an unusually heavy volume of mail between Christmas and Dec. 28 because of the rate increases.

The Internal Revenue Service will mail federal income tax forms to 71 million households on Dec. 26. The State Revenue Department will mail state income tax forms before the deadline to save approximately $12,000 in postage.

No mail deliveries will be made on Christmas and New Year's Day this year, but full service will provided on the days before and after the holidays. Special delivery will be available on the holidays, but window service will not.

Moore said mail will be collected late in the afternoon on Christmas and New Year's Day from mail boxes marked with two white stars.

To ensure delivery before Christmas, letters should be mailed by Dec. 15. The package deadline was Dec. 10.

A machinists' strike that has grounded all United Airlines flights through midnight Friday "isn't causing too many problems" for local mail delivery, said Jim Patterson, a U.S. Postal Service supervisor.

Patterson said mail normally flown into Lincoln by United has been delayed but is being transferred to other airlines. Outgoing mail normally carried by United will be handled by other airlines until the strike ends, he said.

Scottsbluff (UPI) — Lori Ann Bartlng, 14, of Sidney died Tuesday in a Scottsbluff hospital of injuries suffered in a carpedestrian accident Friday in a housing area at Western Nebraska Technical College near Sidney.

Service Station Owner Attempts To Bill Kearney

Kearney (AP) — A Kearney businessman has tried to turn the tables on a recent Nebraska Supreme Court decision upholding the constitutionality of downtown improvement taxes.

In a renewed effort to collect the taxes, the city sent a $75 bill to Tim Grantham for three years' taxes on his gas station.

Stock Investors Decline In State Over 5 Years

Omaha (AP) — Nebraska recorded a 15.6% decline in the number of persons investing in the stock market over the last five years, according to the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE).

The NYSE said there were 211,000 shareholders in the state in 1970 and 178,000 in 1975.

Nebraska ranked 33rd in total share ownership in 1975, compared to 32nd in 1970 and 37th in 1965.

The stock exchange, in a census of stockholders in more than 11,000 public corporations and mutual funds, said the largest decline in shareholders over the five years occurred in Iowa.

Iowa had an estimated 274,000 stockholders in 1975, down 197,000, or 41.5% from the 471,000 reported in 1970.

Estimate Of Loss Unknown At Carter Lake Ballroom

The ballroom was closed when the fire was discovered and Owner Joe Malec could not immediately estimate the loss.

More than 40 firemen from five communities fought the blaze for several hours, but could not save the structure, built in the 1920s.

Malec said more than 600 new chairs were put in the near block-long club last week. He said other recent improvements included new furniture, new wiring and air conditioning.

Malec said, "We're just sick" when told the ballroom was "gone"by firemen.

Malec said he rented the club for bingo games, dances and other private functions.

Malec, who also owns Peony Park in Omaha, said he could not estimate what the total loss would run and was unsure as to the extent of the insurance coverage.

Firemen said they did not know exactly what part of the large building the fire began in. The cause was under investigation.

727s Leased

Seattle (UPI) — Alitalia, the Italian national airline, will lease seven Boeing 727 trijets beginning in 1976, Boeing announced.

The Italian airline becomes the 76th customer for the 727, which is the most widely sold airplane in commercial aviation history. The order from Alitalia raises to 1,238 the number of 727s bought or leased.

Omaha (AP) — Nebraska recorded a 15.6% decline in the number of persons investing in the stock market over the last five years, according to the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE).

The NYSE said there were 211,000 shareholders in the state in 1970 and 178,000 in 1975.

Nebraska ranked 33rd in total share ownership in 1975, compared to 32nd in 1970 and 37th in 1965.

The stock exchange, in a census of stockholders in more than 11,000 public corporations and mutual funds, said the largest decline in shareholders over the five years occurred in Iowa.

Iowa had an estimated 274,000 stockholders in 1975, down 197,000, or 41.5% from the 471,000 reported in 1970.

Brazil Has Gems For Sale

Estimate Of Loss Unknown At Carter Lake Ballroom

The ballroom was closed when the fire was discovered and Owner Joe Malec could not immediately estimate the loss.

More than 40 firemen from five communities fought the blaze for several hours, but could not save the structure, built in the 1920s.

Malec said more than 600 new chairs were put in the near block-long club last week. He said other recent improvements included new furniture, new wiring and air conditioning.

Malec said, "We're just sick" when told the ballroom was "gone"by firemen.

Malec said he rented the club for bingo games, dances and other private functions.

Malec, who also owns Peony Park in Omaha, said he could not estimate what the total loss would run and was unsure as to the extent of the insurance coverage.

Firemen said they did not know exactly what part of the large building the fire began in. The cause was under investigation.

727s Leased

Seattle (UPI) — Alitalia, the Italian national airline, will lease seven Boeing 727 trijets beginning in 1976, Boeing announced.

The Italian airline becomes the 76th customer for the 727, which is the most widely sold airplane in commercial aviation history. The order from Alitalia raises to 1,238 the number of 727s bought or leased.

Green-Clad Troops Ready For Invasion

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

Every year about this time a silent, green-clad army of three-foot-tall-and-taller warriors pulls up roots in places like Montana and Colorado and branches out across the nation.

It's a motley force — Austrian and Scotch, fir and pine. But by Dec. 25 it will have representatives in almost every home.

The first wave of troops is already huddled against grocery store walls or standing at attention by signs proclaiming "Christmas Trees For Sale." Before it's over, they'll be taken into homes and flocked, decked, bulbed and icicled into unnatural beauty.

But eventually they'll accomplish their mission: filling the cracks and crannies of the nation's living rooms with a blanket of needles that will be jabbing toes until Easter.

If it's any consolation, the little troopers will cost about as much this year as last year.

Five to six-foot pines range in cost from $7.95 to $8.99, according to a check at local tree lots. Austrian pine (long needles), Scotch pine (short needles) and white pine (soft needles) are available.

Smaller and less expensive pines are also available, costing generally $1.50 a foot.

Firs range in price from $1.99 to $8.99, depending on size. The apparent norm for a five- to six-foot Douglas fir was $3.69.

Joy J. Deuser, who operates Pineland Christmas Tree Farm northeast of Lincoln Air Park West, said he has sold 785 trees since Thanksgiving, 400 in one weekend. That farm sells Scotch and Austrian pine at $1-$2 a foot, depending on tree quality.

Christmas tree sales in Lincoln generally were reported equal or slightly better than last year.

To make sure the tree you buy isn't too old to remember life in the woods, gently stroke the needles before purchase. If they drop off, the tree isn't fresh. Ditto if the tree sheds when you tap its trunk firmly on the ground.

Bend the needles to see if they're pliant. A fresh, springy tree reduces fire hazards.

To preserve freshness at home, saw off an inch of the tree base to remove clotted resins that prevent the tree from absorbing water. Place the tree in a bucket of water and keep it filled. Thirsty trees drink from a pint to a gallon a day.

If all that sounds like too much work, artificial trees are available locally, priced generally from $12 to $50. They come in a rainbow of colors — including green.

To lessen fire hazards, keep the tree in a cool place, away from fireplaces, stoves and heaters. Make sure it stands upright and is steadily supported.

If you buy a plastic tree, make sure it is labeled "fire-retardant" or has an Underwriter's Laboratories label.

Metal trees can become electrically charged if they are strung with lights and cords that touch metal edges or points. The best solution is to light the tree with a spotlight or floodlight located away from the tree.

—Don't use tree lights with loose sockets, broken wires or worn insulation. Make sure the lights you do use are approved by Underwriter's Laboratories.

—Use only fireproof decorations. Never use candles.

—The fuse serving the circuit for your lights should be no greater than 15 amperes in electrical current.

—Turn off all lights when you leave the house or go to bed.

Opening lead - six of clubs.

The rule of thumb is that 26 points make a game, 33 points a small slam, and 37 points a grand slam.

But experience shows that these are merely guide lines and not holy scripture. Games and slams are frequently made with fewer high-card points than the scale indicates, and furthermore, alas, games and slams often fail even when the theoretical requirements have been met.

The overriding factor is distribution, which often upsets the high-card point count scale and renders it inoperable. Long suits and short suits are highly influential, and it is the ability to accurately assess these distributional values, in conjunction with high-card values, that so often brings success.

Consider this deal where a sound grand slam was reached with only 28 high-card points. The bidding started slowly enough, with 1♠-2♦-3♦, but it took on considerable steam when North bid 3♠.

South had only 15 high-card points to start with, but his hand underwent a veritable transformation when he learned that North had spade support. South properly turned to Blackwood to learn how many aces partner had, and was agreeably surprised to learn from the five spade bid that North had three aces.

South could now count thirteen tricks — seven spades, two hearts, three diamonds and a club — and accordingly he bid seven notrump, choosing notrump instead of spades to protect against the possibility of having the opening lead ruffed by East.

The seven spade tricks were highly probable, although they were not certain. North might have had A-x-x rather than A-J-x or A-Q-x of spades, but even so South was a heavy favorite to make the grand slam.

DIRECTING HIS OWN WORK . . . 'Nativity According to St. Luke' is Thompson.

'Dean of U.S. Composers' Known For Sacred Music

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Young Randall Thompson tried to get into the Harvard Glee Club. He didn't make it.

Couldn't sing.

But he freely admits he still can't sing.

In Lincoln this week to direct performances of his sacred musical drama "The Nativity According to St. Luke" — to be presented Friday and Saturday evenings at First-Plymouth Congregational Church — Thompson has been called the "dean" of American composers.

Implies 'Stuffy'

That label he could do without. "It implies you're a little bit stuffy," Thompson chuckled.

Best-known for the body of sacred music he has written, the slender, white-haired Thompson is quick to voice opinions about the quality of today's church music.

With measured words, he lamented the "cheap sentimentality" of some American church music; the use of "sacred" music that is "degrading to the religious experience."

"There's a great deal more commendable music that's being performed" in churches today than there were 50 years ago, he said.

But, he added, there's still room for improvement.

The 76-year-old Thompson was hard-put to specify the difference between "tawdry" and "elevating" church music.

Good sacred music "lifts the soul," he said in an attempt to explain his feelings. Beside it, "the cheap wilts."

Fine Music Ignored

At that time, "fine music was ignored," Thompson recalls. "The Bach chorales were not known."

Choirmasters were partially to blame for this sorry state of affairs, he said, because they were unfamiliar with the great music available to them.

The nature of sacred music used in churches "has utterly changed in the past 50 years," Thompson said.

More and more congregations are being introduced to the wealth of good sacred music written centuries ago.

"It is not necessary to inflict cheap music on an unsuspecting congregation," Thompson said. Church members tastes "can be led" in the direction of the "inspiring."

"They (choir directors) have to affirm and reaffirm their belief in what has quality."

Thompson said he sees two current trends in church music.

On the one hand, "There is really wonderful music sung in most . . . educated churches." Music directors in such churches are familiar with music "that really has the power to move and influence the lives" of their congregations.

At the same time, there are others who seem to be trying to "find a contemporary equivalent" to the cheap church music so much in evidence half a century ago.

"They bring in guitars" and other gimmicks, Thompson said.

dear abby

She Doesn't Want Marriage Obligation

DEAR ABBY I am very much in love with a 28-year-old woman I'll call "Terry." I am 31.

Terry and I have been living together for eight months. She claims to love me, but here's the problem. I want to marry her, but she says, "I don't want marriage."

Abby, can that be? Doesn't every woman want marriage?

We started living together, as an experiment. It has worked out very well for both of us, so why shouldn't marriage work out?"

Terry says, "Marriage will OBLIGATE us to live together. This way, we stay because together because we choose to."

Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I want the security of knowing that we belong to each other legally.

Terry says a marriage certificate is just a piece of paper, which doesn't mean anything because if the marriage doesn't work out, it can be exchanged for another piece of paper that will dissolve it.

How can I get her to marry me?

OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD: You can't. And it's just as well, because while you may love each other, your ideologies are worlds apart.

DEAR ABBY: When our child started walking, we bought a harness for him. We use it to protect him in large crowds, unfamiliar surroundings and busy streets.

At first I felt hurt and even thought perhaps I was wrong when strangers would say, "What do you think he is — a dog?" Or, "That poor little thing. How can you do that to him?"

Now I am just plain angry!

Would those critics rather that our child be lost, be run over or fall down a flight of stairs? His harness has saved him from all these things.

Our child is now 2, and we will dispose of his harness soon, but until we do, I wish strangers would think twice before they make such unkind remarks.

INDIGNANT MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Perhaps if they thought twice, they wouldn't make any unkind remarks at all.

DEAR ABBY: I believe I read in your column that there is something a person can take to keep from crying at a wedding.

Please find out what it is and tell me. I am to be a mother of the bride, and I just know I am going to cry all over the place at my daughter's wedding, and I look terrible when I cry. My eyes get red and my nose runs and I sob and shake all over.

I even got emotional yesterday when I opened the closet door and saw my daughter's wedding dress hanging there!

Please, please help me. (I cried so hard just writing this I had to re-address the envelope.)

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Call your family doctor and ask him to prescribe something for your nerves. There are many such tranquilizers on the market.

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law lives in my neighborhood. We both drive, but whenever we go anywhere together she is the one who picks me up. I suppose I should be grateful because it's her gas and her tires, but I'd prefer to pick, her up or take my own car for the following reason.

When she picks me up, we are always anywhere from 15 minutes to an hour late. I am by nature a very punctual person, and I hate being late — especially when it's not my fault.

Yester, we arrived at a shower 40 minutes late because of her. I have had it!

How can I tell her I don't want her to pick me up anymore without making an enemy of her?

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: What's wrong with the truth? Next time she offers to pick you up, tell her no and tell her why.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

She Doesn't Want Marriage Obligation

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a 28-year-old woman I'll call "Terry." I am 31.

Terry and I have been living together for eight months. She claims to love me, but here's the problem: I want to marry her, but she says, "I don't want marriage."

Abby, can that be? Doesn't every woman want marriage?

We started living together, as an experiment. It has worked out very well for both of us, so why shouldn't marriage work out?

Terry says, "Marriage will OBLIGATE us to live together. This way, we stay because together because we choose to."

Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I want the security of knowing that we belong to each other legally.

Terry says a marriage certificate is just a piece of paper, which doesn't mean anything because if the marriage doesn't work out, it can be exchanged for another piece of paper that will dissolve it.

How can I get her to marry me?

OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD: You can't. And it's just as well, because while you may love each other, your ideologies are worlds apart.

DEAR ABBY: When our child started walking, we bought a harness for him. We use it to protect him in large crowds, unfamiliar surroundings and busy streets.

At first I felt hurt and even thought perhaps I was wrong when strangers would say, "What do you think he is — a dog?" Or, "That poor little thing. How can you do that to him?"

Now I am just plain angry!

Would those critics rather that our child be lost, be run over or fall down a flight of stairs? His harness has saved him from all these things.

Our child is now 2, and we will dispose of his harness soon, but until we do, I wish strangers would think twice before they make such unkind remarks.

INDIGNANT MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Perhaps if they thought twice, they wouldn't make any unkind remarks at all.

DEAR ABBY: I believe I read in your column that there is something a person can take to keep from crying at a wedding.

Please find out what it is and tell me. I am to be a mother of the bride, and I just know I am going to cry all over the place at my daughter's wedding, and I look terrible when I cry. My eyes get red and my nose runs and I sob and shake all over.

I even got emotional yesterday when I opened the closet door and saw my daughter's wedding dress hanging there!

Please, please help me. (I cried so hard just writing this I had to re-address the envelope.)

ABP Sale Okayed At Council Bluffs

Omaha (AP) — For the second time in as many days, federal bankruptcy Judge David Crawford Wednesday approved the sale of an American Beef Packers, Inc., (ABP) plant.

Crawford signed an order approving the sale of ABP's Beefland International plant in Council Bluffs, Iowa, after holding a short hearing on the subject.

The Kane-Miller Corp., a diversified food processor based in Tarrytown, N.Y., is purchasing the plant for $6,450,000, and hopes to have the plant reopened by next spring. The plant, which has never turned a profit since opening, has been shut since last Jan. 7, when ABP and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Beefland International, Inc., filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

Tuesday, Crawford approved the sale of ABP's Fort Morgan, Colo., plant to the Morgan Colorado Beef Co., which is paying $5 million for the facility.

The two sales and last spring's sale of ABP's new and ultra-modern plant at Dumas, Tex., are keys in ABP's plans to to obtain additional credit, pay back creditors and to get its remaining plants at Omaha and Nebraska City, Neb., and at Harlan, Iowa, reopened.

ABP's Oakland, Iowa, plant was reopened last spring, and has been turning profits ever since.

The additional credit, totaling $36.5 million, will come from ABP's largest creditor and mainline source of financing, the General Electric Credit Corp., of Stamford, Conn.

Wednesday's hearing was a carbon copy of Tuesday's proceedings, with ABP attorney Douglas Reno calling but one witness, Jerry Kozney of Sun City, Ariz.

Kozney, a 29-year veteran of the meat packing industry, retired last January after serving in an executive capacity with several medium and large packing companies, including Spencer Foods of Spencer, Iowa, and Iowa Beef Processors of Dakota City, Neb.

In March of this year, Kozney agreed to act as a consultant to the court-appointed creditors committee in ABP's limited bankruptcy.

Kozney said that because of ever-changing and increasingly restrictive environmental regulations, meat packing plants "are very hard to move."

He said all major potential buyers with the capacity to make an attractive bid and to operate the plant were contacted on the subject of the Beefland plant sale. Those who were contacted included Swift, Armor, John Morrell, Wilson, Farmland and others, Kozney said.

However, Kozney said Kane-Miller made the "only firm bid" on the plant.

Kozney said he feels it is economically infeasible for ABP to reopen the Beefland plant, and that Kane-Miller's offer is a fair one.

No objections to the sale were raised during the hearing.

The sale brings ABP one step closer to getting the money needed to fund its amended and consolidated plan of arrangement with creditors.

The plan itself will be the subject of the next major hearing in the year-long case, with a confirmation hearing set for Dec. 23.

Maresh Would Drop County From SeTech

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Milligan — State Sen. Richard Maresh says he is strongly considering the introduction of a bill to withdraw Lancaster County from the Southeast Community College (SeTech) district and designate it as an area all its own.

If approved by the 1976 Legislature, such a move would leave 14 rural counties supporting the Southeast campuses at Milford and Fairbury. Lancaster would be a separate entity responsible only for Lincoln's vocational technical school.

This was the original intent when community college legislation was drawn in 1971, he said, but was changed prior to enactment two years later. Lincoln interests pushed for the revision "solely to gain valuation," he said.

"I can't see why our rural area should be taxed now to build a $7 million campus for Lincoln as is being talked about," the Milligan senator said. "I'm sure a very small number of outstate students are being trained at the Lincoln school, so why should we have to support it?"

Lincoln to Pershing

If the 15-county area remains intact, Maresh said, he will advocate relocating the Lincoln program at Beatrice's Pershing College rather than building a new campus. He has been a leader against SeTech's proposal to close the Fairbury campus and shift its programs to Pershing.

Maresh said the legislation he contemplates would also require a public vote approving any change in campuses by a community college.

Noting that rural and urban needs differ, Maresh said he feels both areas would be better served by separate boards. This would also reflect the philosophy of local control to a greater extent, he said.

"The Lincoln members of the SeTech board voting as a block to close Fairbury convinced me they have little empathy for rural residents," he said. "Also, outstate people are mostly interested in basic technical skills and not in hobby training programs such as many being offered at Lincoln."

"There are too many classes which are impractical," he said. "I don't think basketweaving, for example, is anything our 15 counties are much interested in."

The senator said Robert Wekesser of Lincoln, SeTech board chairman, recently made a public statement that he had personally favored leaving Lancaster County as a separate district. Maresh added he also recalled that "Fairbury people had fought to keep Lincoln out of Southeast."

"I wish now that I had heeded them," he said. "Maybe we can get this changed by the Legislature."

'Get A Few Extra'

Washington (UPI) — If you are going to use natural plant material for Christmas decorations, the U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends collecting much more than you think you will need. To kill insects or other animal life it may be harboring, place dry materials such as cones, nuts and seed capsules in a 150-degree oven for about an hour.

ABP Sale Okayed At Council Bluffs

Omaha (AP) — For the second time in as many days, federal bankruptcy Judge David Crawford Wednesday approved the sale of an American Beef Packers, Inc., (ABP) plant.

Crawford signed an order approving the sale of ABP's Beefland International plant in Council Bluffs, Iowa, after holding a short hearing on the subject.

The Kane-Miller Corp., a diversified food processor based in Tarrytown, N.Y., is purchasing the plant for $6,450,000, and hopes to have the plant reopened by next spring. The plant, which has never turned a profit since opening, has been shut since last Jan. 7, when ABP and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Beefland International, Inc., filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

Tuesday, Crawford approved the sale of ABP's Fort Morgan, Colo., plant to the Morgan Colorado Beef Co., which is paying $5 million for the facility.

The two sales and last spring's sale of ABP's new and ultra-modern plant at Dumas, Tex., are keys in ABP's plans to to obtain additional credit, pay back creditors and to get its remaining plants at Omaha and Nebraska City, Neb., and at Harlan, Iowa, reopened.

ABP's Oakland, Iowa, plant was reopened last spring, and has been turning profits ever since.

The additional credit, totaling $36.5 million, will come from ABP's largest creditor and mainline source of financing, the General Electric Credit Corp., of Stamford, Conn.

Wednesday's hearing was a carbon copy of Tuesday's proceedings, with ABP attorney Douglas Reno calling but one witness, Jerry Kozney of Sun City, Ariz.

Kozney, a 29-year veteran of the meat packing industry, retired last January after serving in an executive capacity with several medium and large packing companies, including Spencer Foods of Spencer, Iowa, and Iowa Beef Processors of Dakota City, Neb.

In March of this year, Kozney agreed to act as a consultant to the court-appointed creditors committee in ABP's limited bankruptcy.

Kozney said that because of ever-changing and increasingly restrictive environmental regulations, meat packing plants "are very hard to move."

He said all major potential buyers with the capacity to make an attractive bid and to operate the plant were contacted on the subject of the Beefland plant sale. Those who were contacted included Swift, Armor, John Morrell, Wilson, Farmland and others, Kozney said.

However, Kozney said Kane-Miller made the "only firm bid" on the plant.

Kozney said he feels it is economically infeasible for ABP to reopen the Beefland plant, and that Kane-Miller's offer is a fair one.

No objections to the sale were raised during the hearing.

The sale brings ABP one step closer to getting the money needed to fund its amended and consolidated plan of arrangement with creditors.

The plan itself will be the subject of the next major hearing in the year-long case, with a confirmation hearing set for Dec. 23.

Maresh Would Drop County From SeTech

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Milligan — State Sen. Richard Maresh says he is strongly considering the introduction of a bill to withdraw Lancaster County from the Southeast Community College (SeTech) district and designate it as an area all its own.

If approved by the 1976 Legislature, such a move would leave 14 rural counties supporting the Southeast campuses at Milford and Fairbury. Lancaster would be a separate entity responsible only for Lincoln's vocational technical school.

This was the original intent when community college legislation was drawn in 1971, he said, but was changed prior to enactment two years later. Lincoln interests pushed for the revision "solely to gain valuation," he said.

"I can't see why our rural area should be taxed now to build a $7 million campus for Lincoln as is being talked about," the Milligan senator said. "I'm sure a very small number of outstate students are being trained at the Lincoln school, so why should we have to support it?"

Lincoln to Pershing

If the 15-county area remains intact, Maresh said, he will advocate relocating the Lincoln program at Beatrice's Pershing College rather than building a new campus. He has been a leader against SeTech's proposal to close the Fairbury campus and shift its programs to Pershing.

Maresh said the legislation he contemplates would also require a public vote approving any change in campuses by a community college.

Noting that rural and urban needs differ, Maresh said he feels both areas would be better served by separate boards. This would also reflect the philosophy of local control to a greater extent, he said.

"The Lincoln members of the SeTech board voting as a block to close Fairbury convinced me they have little empathy for rural residents," he said. "Also, outstate people are mostly interested in basic technical skills and not in hobby training programs such as many being offered at Lincoln."

"There are too many classes which are impractical," he said. "I don't think basketweaving, for example, is anything our 15 counties are much interested in."

The senator said Robert Wekesser of Lincoln, SeTech board chairman, recently made a public statement that he had personally favored leaving Lancaster County as a separate district. Maresh added he also recalled that "Fairbury people had fought to keep Lincoln out of Southeast."

"I wish now that I had heeded them," he said. "Maybe we can get this changed by the Legislature."

'Get A Few Extra'

Washington (UPI) — If you are going to use natural plant material for Christmas decorations, the U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends collecting much more than you think you will need. To kill insects or other animal life it may be harboring, place dry materials such as cones, nuts and seed capsules in a 150-degree oven for about an hour.

San Francisco — Up with the gulls. "Fish! Fish!" They make a frightful amount of screaming. Plop! They hit the water. Come up and gulp. For a fish that's a poor way to start the day.

As this year rounds out we've taken stock of the plus and minus. The slings and arrows. The prospects and aspects.

Emmanual Zacchini, circus human cannon ball, said: "The career of a human projectile is about seven years. After that you get aches and pains."

Curiously, seven years is the average span of a column writer. Fired from the gun each newsworthy edition, the columnist lands too often on his head. His brains are scrambled.

I went out on the deck and gave the plants a little guitar music. They say it makes your garden grow better, Contrary Mary. I want my plants to be happy. I gave them a burst of "She Had To Go And Lose It At The Astor."

I poured the first cup of coffee. The spine stiffener. Took a couple of all purpose vitamin pills. When Grim Jack the Reaper comes knocking on the door, he'll find a man of tough fiber.

I told the children: "Never strike my flag, sir, while there's a grain of powder and a man to serve the guns!"

How did we fare this year? Well, my hair did not grow. Despite the efforts of a witchy hair dresser and bottles full of Japanese hair tonic. There's a touch of nostalgic gray at the temples. However, you'd hardly notice it by candlelight.

(The children said: "The Cap'n's taking shore leave. He'll probably be tattooed by eight bells.")

If music makes plants thrive, why not hair? I gave my hair some of my best numbers. "You're A Million Miles From Nowhere When You're One Little Mile From Home."

That tugs at the heart strings. Sad to say, it did not tug at my hair.

Mirror, mirror on the wall. The hair may be gone but not forgotten. We still have the cold eye of the duelist. Hands steady. Pistols for two and coffee for one.

(The children said: "The Cap'n's got the holiday spirit early this year. He'll land us safe in port or he'll drive her on the rocks.")

Weather, fair and warmer. Report card, fair — I intend to make it warmer later.

I said: "How is it you get a grade that's just passing?"

The days before Christmas are times when homework suffers neglect. The electronic carillon sends music over our scatter each frozen note dropping into the frosted night.

"Silent night, holy night . . ."

I said: "Fetch aft the hot buttered rum!" And I gave the guitar a few bars of "Nobody Rambled Like My Rambling Rose."

If we didn't gain a lot of mileage this year, we didn't lose much either. You could look at it that way.

W. Gangwish To Head Farm Bureau

South Sioux City — The Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation Wednesday named Wood River grain farmer Wendell Gangwish as its president.

Gangwish, 54, has served as vice president of the organization for two years and also has been president of the Nebraska Rural Electric Association.

His primary business is grain farming but he does have an interest in a grain elevator at Wood River.

Named to succeed Gangwish as vice president is Robert Weber, 33, of Dorchester, who will serve out the one remaining year of Gangwish's term.

Named to three-year terms on the board of directors are Mrs. Leonard Stehlik of Dorchester who has served on the board and has been chairman of the Farm Bureau women's state committee.

Newly elected board members to three-year terms are Kenneth Larson, 60, of Gurley and Bryce P. Nedig, 44, of Madison.

The delegates still were working on resolutions Wednesday, to take to the national Farm Bureau convention.

"So far there are no major changes in their policy. They did pass a resolution supporting a Farm Bureau marketing program and they voted down a resolution that would have set up a partisan legislature in Nebraska," said Maurice Van Kirk, public relations director for the farm group.

The organization also voted to support a voluntary beef checkoff program, called for a referendum whenever any farm product checkoff program is developed, and included a provision so that producers could discontinue a checkoff program in the event it was taken over by consumers.

UNL Faculty Approves Awards

With a voice vote, the University of Nebraska Faculty Senate unanimously approved the concept of awarding scholarships for academic excellence, and endorsed a proposal to award full-expense stipends ($2,000 plus tuition) to help UNL attract academically strong students to bolster the campus academic image.

The senate decided the scholarships should be named after distinguished professors and Nebraskans. The two-year renewable grants, for which private funds are being sought, would be awarded on the basis of scholastic achievement, character and professional promise.

Steven B. Sample, NU system executive vice president for academic affairs, reported on progress by the intercampus equity study committee examining salary and program support on the Lincoln and Omaha campuses.

An earlier salary study indicates there were "no significant inequities" among professors with comparable qualifications doing comparable work. A follow-up survey will be taken next spring, Sample said.

However, he said weighted formulas — balancing the costs of more expensive, technical graduate programs with freshman humanities courses — based on study findings will be ready to present to the 1976 Legislature.

UNL Chemistry Prof. Desmond M. S. Wheeler, an equity committee member, said, "The basic difference in support between UNL and UNO is basically a salary difference."

"I shall be greatly surprised if we can get agreement" on salary disparities and methods to correct them from the committee, Wheeler said.

W. Gangwish To Head Farm Bureau

South Sioux City — The Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation Wednesday named Wood River grain farmer Wendell Gangwish as its president.

Gangwish, 54, has served as vice president of the organization for two years and also has been president of the Nebraska Rural Electric Association.

His primary business is grain farming but he does have an interest in a grain elevator at Wood River.

Named to succeed Gangwish as vice president is Robert Weber, 33, of Dorchester, who will serve out the one remaining year of Gangwish's term.

Named to three-year terms on the board of directors are Mrs. Leonard Stehlik of Dorchester who has served on the board and has been chairman of the Farm Bureau women's state committee.

Newly elected board members to three-year terms are Kenneth Larson, 60, of Gurley and Bryce P. Nedig, 44, of Madison.

The delegates still were working on resolutions Wednesday, to take to the national Farm Bureau convention.

"So far there are no major changes in their policy. They did pass a resolution supporting a Farm Bureau marketing program and they voted down a resolution that would have set up a partisan legislature in Nebraska," said Maurice Van Kirk, public relations director for the farm group.

The organization also voted to support a voluntary beef checkoff program, called for a referendum whenever any farm product checkoff program is developed, and included a provision so that producers could discontinue a checkoff program in the event it was taken over by consumers.

UNL Faculty Approves Awards

With a voice vote, the University of Nebraska Faculty Senate unanimously approved the concept of awarding scholarships for academic excellence, and endorsed a proposal to award full-expense stipends ($2,000 plus tuition) to help UNL attract academically strong students to bolster the campus academic image.

The senate decided the scholarships should be named after distinguished professors and Nebraskans. The two-year renewable grants, for which private funds are being sought, would be awarded on the basis of scholastic achievement, character and professional promise.

Steven B. Sample, NU system executive vice president for academic affairs, reported on progress by the intercampus equity study committee examining salary and program support on the Lincoln and Omaha campuses.

An earlier salary study indicates there were "no significant inequities" among professors with comparable qualifications doing comparable work. A follow-up survey will be taken next spring, Sample said.

However, he said weighted formulas — balancing the costs of more expensive, technical graduate programs with freshman humanities courses — based on study findings will be ready to present to the 1976 Legislature.

UNL Chemistry Prof. Desmond M. S. Wheeler, an equity committee member, said, "The basic difference in support between UNL and UNO is basically a salary difference."

"I shall be greatly surprised if we can get agreement" on salary disparities and methods to correct them from the committee, Wheeler said.

West Nebraska Officer Certification Considered

Scottsbluff (AP) — A proposed state training program to certify law enforcement officers in western Nebraska is being drawn up by Chadron State and Nebraska Western Colleges, Scotts Bluff County Sheriff Dave Schleve said Wednesday.

Schleve told a legislative Judiciary Committee hearing on proposed consolidation of town and county law enforcement that small Panhandle towns cannot spare officers so they can attend a seven-week session in Grand Island.

When they receive state certification, the officers often leave the small towns to take better-paying jobs, Schleve said.

He suggested that the training program be broken into several smaller sessions and offered in a Panhandle town, allowing the officers to return to their jobs between training sessions.

Law enforcement officers at the hearing agreed that local and county law enforcement could successfully be consolidated in some cases, but said towns should not have to pay a compulsory maximum fee of $9 per resident to sheriff departments.

Frontier County Sheriff Lannie Roblee said that since Jan. 1, 1973, his department has been the sole law enforcement agency for that county. However, he said fees were negotiated individually with the towns.

Fourteen sheriffs and county commissioners attended the hearing.

Beatrice Panel Appointee Resigns After 3 Weeks

Less than three weeks after his appointment, Dr. Philip Roos of Arlington, Texas, has resigned from a panel named to put the terms of the lawsuit settlement involving the Beatrice State Home into action.

Gov. J. James Exon announced Wednesday that Roos, executive director of the National Association for Retarded Citizens, had resigned saying his current duties do not allow him time to serve on the panel.

Under the terms of the agreement, the U.S. Justice Department and the attorney for the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens will nominate three persons to replace Roos within 30 days.

Exon will then choose the replacement from those three.

Exon said he was surprised by the resignation since Roos accepted the appointment "willingly and without reservations."

The five-member panel which has not yet had its first meeting is charged with evaluating which retarded Nebraskans should be cared for at the Beatrice State Home and which in community retardation programs.

Roos was one of two people nominated by a court-appointed guardian to represent the retardeds' interests in the lawsuit. Exon chose Roos over Dr. Frank Menolascino, an Omahan active in the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens.

NAPE Requests Court Ruling On Bargaining Agent Election

The Nebraska Association of Public Employes (NAPE) Wednesday asked the State Court of Industrial Relations for a declaratory ruling during a hearing on its suit seeking an election among Lancaster County Mental Health Center employes.

NAPE has asked the court whether the outcome of the representation election would be binding when control of the mental health center passes from the state to the county.

The court took the motion under advisement.

West Nebraska Officer Certification Considered

Scottsbluff (AP) — A proposed state training program to certify law enforcement officers in western Nebraska is being drawn up by Chadron State and Nebraska Western Colleges, Scotts Bluff County Sheriff Dave Schleve said Wednesday.

Schleve told a legislative Judiciary Committee hearing on proposed consolidation of town and county law enforcement that small Panhandle towns cannot spare officers so they can attend a seven-week session in Grand Island.

When they receive state certification, the officers often leave the small towns to take better-paying jobs, Schleve said.

He suggested that the training program be broken into several smaller sessions and offered in a Panhandle town, allowing the officers to return to their jobs between training sessions.

Law enforcement officers at the hearing agreed that local and county law enforcement could successfully be consolidated in some cases, but said towns should not have to pay a compulsory maximum fee of $9 per resident to sheriff departments.

Frontier County Sheriff Lannie Roblee said that since Jan. 1, 1973, his department has been the sole law enforcement agency for that county. However, he said fees were negotiated individually with the towns.

Fourteen sheriffs and county commissioners attended the hearing.

Beatrice Panel Appointee Resigns After 3 Weeks

Less than three weeks after his appointment, Dr. Philip Roos of Arlington, Texas, has resigned from a panel named to put the terms of the lawsuit settlement involving the Beatrice State Home into action.

Gov. J. James Exon announced Wednesday that Roos, executive director of the National Association for Retarded Citizens, had resigned saying his current duties do not allow him time to serve on the panel.

Under the terms of the agreement, the U.S. Justice Department and the attorney for the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens will nominate three persons to replace Roos within 30 days.

Exon will then choose the replacement from those three.

Exon said he was surprised by the resignation since Roos accepted the appointment "willingly and without reservations."

The five-member panel which has not yet had its first meeting is charged with evaluating which retarded Nebraskans should be cared for at the Beatrice State Home and which in community retardation programs.

Roos was one of two people nominated by a court-appointed guardian to represent the retardeds' interests in the lawsuit. Exon chose Roos over Dr. Frank Menolascino, an Omahan active in the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens.

NAPE Requests Court Ruling On Bargaining Agent Election

The Nebraska Association of Public Employes (NAPE) Wednesday asked the State Court of Industrial Relations for a declaratory ruling during a hearing on its suit seeking an election among Lancaster County Mental Health Center employes.

NAPE has asked the court whether the outcome of the representation election would be binding when control of the mental health center passes from the state to the county.

The court took the motion under advisement.

23-Cent Stamp Is Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of mailing a letter could go up from 10 to 23 cents by 1980, Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar said Wednesday.

Asked about the possibility of a 23-cent letter rate by 1980, Bailar told a House post office subcommittee:

"If all the present circumstances continue, including rates of inflation, that could happen."

The postmaster general said other matters influencing future mailing rates all include whether Congress increases the Postal Service's subsidy and whether controversial cost-cutting measures are allowed to take effect.

Subcommittee Chairman James M. Hanley, D-N.Y., predicted additional increases in postal rates after the one scheduled for this month plus reductions in service.

The Postal Service, which is losing nearly $7 million per day, plans to raise the cost of mailing a letter from 10 to 13 cents on Dec. 28.

Hanley said postal rates "will have to be further increased in all likelihood."

"During the past several months, the Postal Service has more than once flirted with virtual bankruptcy," he said. "Unless something is done quickly, more stringent steps will have to be taken than any of us can imagine now."

23-Cent Stamp Is Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of mailing a letter could go up from 10 to 23 cents by 1980, Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar said Wednesday.

Asked about the possibility of a 23-cent letter rate by 1980, Bailar told a House post office subcommittee:

"If all the present circumstances continue, including rates of inflation, that could happen."

The postmaster general said other matters influencing future mailing rates all include whether Congress increases the Postal Service's subsidy and whether controversial cost-cutting measures are allowed to take effect.

Subcommittee Chairman James M. Hanley, D-N.Y., predicted additional increases in postal rates after the one scheduled for this month plus reductions in service.

The Postal Service, which is losing nearly $7 million per day, plans to raise the cost of mailing a letter from 10 to 13 cents on Dec. 28.

Hanley said postal rates "will have to be further increased in all likelihood."

"During the past several months, the Postal Service has more than once flirted with virtual bankruptcy," he said. "Unless something is done quickly, more stringent steps will have to be taken than any of us can imagine now."

Environment Protection Creates Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmental protection requirements have created whole new antipollution industry that may already provide one million jobs for Americans, the President's Council on Environmental Quality reported Wednesday.

Council chairman Russell W. Peterson issued the report at a conference of more than 300 executives of antipollution industries and businesses.

Peterson said he convened the conference partly as an effort "to alter the image of the environmental movement" which, he said, is wrongly viewed by many as a movement by impractical nature-lovers who ignore economic reality.

On the contrary, Peterson said, environmental protection is generating jobs and opportunities for investment and profit.

The report, prepared for CEQ by two outside consultants, said that in 1975 "the federal budget for pollution control programs is running at about $4.2 billion; private industry is projected to spend $5.9 billion for pollution control investment, state and local governments are probably spending in the range of $1.5 billion per year (excluding solid waste handling), and industries may be spending as much as $4.1 billion on operation and maintenance.

"If an average of 70,000 people are employed per billion dollars of expenditures in all these areas, then the total employment related to pollution control in 1975 would be over 1 million," the report said.

It said this is just about the same rate of job creation by investment as in other sectors.

And with environmental spending expected to increase over the next decade "the number of jobs could increase several times over," the report added.

It also cited eight studies in which estimates of the economic damage from air pollution alone ranged anywhere from $2 billion to $20 billion a year.

Estimates of economic losses due to water pollution ranged from $4.5 billion to at least $18.6 billion per year.

In many instances, the report said, industries forced to install costly equipment to reduce pollution have actually found themselves making a profit from the investment, through improved process efficiency or the recovery of valuable materials formerly discharged as waste.

Environment Protection Creates Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmental protection requirements have created a whole new antipollution industry that may already provide one million jobs for Americans, the President's Council on Environmental Quality reported Wednesday.

Council chairman Russell W. Peterson issued the report at a conference of more than 300 executives of antipollution industries and businesses.

Peterson said he convened the conference partly as an effort "to alter the image of the environmental movement" which, he said, is wrongly viewed by many as a movement by impractical nature-lovers who ignore economic reality.

On the contrary, Peterson said, environmental protection is generating jobs and opportunities for investment and profit.

The report, prepared for CEQ by two outside consultants, said that in 1975 "the federal budget for pollution control programs is running at about $4.2 billion; private industry is projected to spend $5.9 billion for pollution control investment, state and local governments are probably spending in the range of $1.5 billion per year (excluding solid waste handling), and industries may be spending as much as $4.1 billion on operation and maintenance.

"If an average of 70,000 people are employed per billion dollars of expenditures in all these areas, then the total employment related to pollution control in 1975 would be over 1 million," the report said.

It said this is just about the same rate of job creation by investment as in other sectors.

And with environmental spending expected to increase over the next decade "the number of jobs could increase several times over," the report added.

It also cited eight studies in which estimates of the economic damage from air pollution alone ranged anywhere from $2 billion to $20 billion a year.

Estimates of economic losses due to water pollution ranged from $4.5 billion to at least $18.6 billion per year.

In many instances, the report said, industries forced to install costly equipment to reduce pollution have actually found themselves making a profit from the investment, through improved process efficiency or the recovery of valuable materials formerly discharged as waste.

'Okay, Oregon's Ready For You'

In 1971, when Tom McCall was governor, he said "Visit us often, but for heaven's sake don't move here to live."

Some people took McCall seriously. Forgetting that McCall said tourists were welcome, out-of-state travelers apologized for being here, and promised to leave soon.

Oregon residents, when they left the state, got fishy stares and people told them: "If you don't want us in your state, then we don't want you here."

Now the present governor, Bob Straub, has declared McCall's policy obsolete.

"We need industrial growth and the tourist industry is an important one," Straub said recently. In addition to more tourists, Straub is trying to attract industry to Oregon, especially to sparsely populated sections of the state.

He indicated McCall's statement had given Oregon time to prepare for an influx of industry, in part through adoption of a statewide plan for land use.

But it also pleased the expansionists, who thought McCall was employing reverse psychology and that he really wanted people to come.

McCall, now a lecturer and television commentator in Portland, never said whether he meant it to be taken seriously.

The stay-away attitude in Oregon isn't entirely dead. A study commissioned by the federal Environmental Protection Agency recently named Portland and Eugene, Ore., as the most liveable cities in the nation for their size.

To illustrate the story, one Portland television reporter showed film of jammed freeways, a man struggling with snow tires for his car, female wrestlers, a man getting a shot during a bepatitus epidemic, an argument at a city council meeting, and a workman tearing up a street with a jackhammer.

Buyers Paid More For Fake Yule Trees

New York (UPI) — About two thirds of 35,000 consumers polled on their tree-buying habits said they paid more than $30 for a man-made Christmas tree this year, compared with the $10 to $15 asked for cut trees.

The study was made for American Tree and Wreath, a manufacturer. Two out of three persons polled said this year's purchase was their first artificial tree. More than 100 different models are available from this one firm.

Crime Board Seeks Public Input

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Those who think the work of the courts, police, sheriff's office and other parts of the criminal justice system could stand improvement will have a chance Thursday to make suggestions.

An opportunity called the first of its kind will occur at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers in the County-City Building when the Region II Crime Commission assembles for a public hearing.

"We're looking for new, creative, innovative ideas," Commission Chairman Ray Gottner said Wednesday at a meeting of the Region II Crime Commision, noting that crime rates are climbing.

Gottner said the commission members want to get as many suggestions as possible to sift through in planning for the next fiscal year.

Commission members are wondering what kind of response the hearing will produce.

"I think it will be very interesting . . . to see how interested the public is in improving our criminal justice system, not just criticizing, but improving," Gottner said.

Gottner voiced fears last month that the hearing might result in chaos without adequate planning and member Rudy Fredstrom and executive director Curt Snoberger were delegated to devise a format for the hearing.

Thrown out of the final plan was a suggestion from Gottner that citizens with ties to no agencies or organizations not be allowed to appear before the entire commission. Gottner had suggested they could air their views after the commission broke into workshops.

Under the format devised by Fredstrom and Snoberger, comments will be solicited on four topics. They are the juvenile, justice system, law enforcement and criminal justice, the courts system (including the defense, prosecution, judiciary and probation) and correction and detention.

Each of the four topics will be introduced by individuals involved in work with that part of the criminal justice system.

Lancaster Juvenile Judge Wilfred Nuernberger will introduce the juvenile portion; Police Chief George Hansen and Sheriff Merle Karnopp the law enforcement portion; County Judge Jeffre Cheuvront the courts portion; and Elaine Carpenter, who chaired the Jail Study Committee on local corrections and detention.

Comments made at the hearing will be tape recorded and transcripts will be available for commission members' use in forming a comprehensive plan for fiscal 1977, which begins in September.

The plan is forwarded to the State Crime Commission. It lists projects to be considered for funding and indicates priorities.

The Region II commission has 21 members who are private citizens, elected officials or representatives of criminal justice agencies., It acts on applications submitted to it for federal crime-fighting money. The applications are then submitted to the State Crime Commission for approval or denial.

During the past fiscal year the Region II Crime Commission awarded $699,354.76 worth of federal money for projects and programs in Lancaster County. Most of the federal money comes through the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), but $70,000 came through the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Helmet Law Ruling Could Affect Federal Funding, Pearson Says

A Wednesday court decision striking down Nebraska's new motorcycle helmet law could have an effect on about $7 million in federal funding coming into the state, said Jim Pearson, Director of the State Department of Motor Vehicles.

Lancaster County District Court Judge William Blue issued a permanent injunction that prevents the state from implementing the controversial helmet law passed during the last legislative session.

Blue ruled that the law is vague and uncertain and wrote in an accompanying opinion, "The serious defect in the law is apparent. It simply does not say who shall certify that a helment meets these standards.

Is it the director of motor vehicles? Is it each local chief of police? Is it the local sheriff, or is it the president of the local motorcycle club? The bill is silent; there is no way for the motorcycle operator of passenger or police officer to know who must certify.

The bill was enacted after the federal government threatened to withhold all federal highway safety funds and 10% of Nebraska's highway construction allocation unless such a law was passed.

The state's highway safety program has been approved for all of fiscal 1976, ending June 30 of next year.

But the fund cut-off threat could still hold, "if the Department of Transportation wants to carry it out and if the legislature doesn't want to pass a new law which is constitutional," said Pearson.

Cipriano Calls Desire Key To NU's Victory

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Joe Cipriano's spirits certainly took a swing for the better after winning a basketball game.

"We showed a little improvement in terms of desire and hustle," said the Nebraska basketball coach after NU stopped St. Mary's (Calif.) 68-57, Wednesday night at the NU Coliseum.

"People on the floor went for loose basketballs. It got a little ragged out there," he conceded. "But we didn't make a lot of careless errors (just 13 turnovers to 25 for the visitors)."

Still, the game was basically a display of inept shooting by St. Mary's. The visitors made just three field goals in the first 15 minutes, went almost 10 minutes in the first half without a field goal and hit just 36.8 per cent of their first-half field goals.

'Good Defense'

"Our defense was pretty good in the first half," he said. "But their press changed the tempo of the game. We got the chances to make some easy baskets and the shots went in and out and they made a run at us.

St. Mary's, which trailed by as many as 13 points early in the second half (38-25 with 17:30 to play) closed within 44-40 before Allen Holder tallied two five-footers for a 48-40 margin.

That settled the issue as St. Mary's dropped to 0-4 and Nebraska improved to 2-3.

Cipriano praised Holder, who was NU's second top rebounder with six caroms and second-leading scorer with 10 points.

"He played a fine game," Cipriano noted. "He rebounded, played defense and his floor game was outstanding."

The 6-3 junior college transfer noted his pleasure at scoring, although he termed his main job to rebound and play defense.

"Steve (Willis), Jerry (Fort) and Bob (Siegel) can all shoot from outside," Holder said. "My job is to guard the other team's top scorer, but I'm like other ballplayers, I like to score, too.

"It was a lot harder to score against a team like Washington (with a towering frontline)," he added.

Cox Gets 19 Points

The scoring leader's role went to 6-6 center Larry Cox, who was saddled with defending "just" a 6-8 opponent, Joe Appel.

"It's not quite as intimidating when your man is only two inches taller rather than six," said Cox, who tallied 19 points (to tie his seasonal high) and paced NU with seven rebounds.

"I've been working on my free throws (he hit seven of eight attempts)," Cox noted. "I've been improving the past year on my free throws. That's an important part of the game — that's what kept St. Mary's in the first half tonight."

One discouraging aspect for Nebraska had to be the poor shooting performances by senior guards Jerry Fort and Steve Willis. The duo was hampered throughout by the Gaels' zone defense.

"He (Fort) realized the zone put him in a situation where he has to be more patient," noted Cipriano. "But we had trouble generating some offense. We're not concerned with who gets the good shots as long as we get them. That's part of the sacrifice you have to make when you play as part of the team."

Fort hit three of eight field goals for eight points while Willis connected on only one of 10 field goals.

'Better Defense'

"No, I'm not disappointed I didn't shoot better since we won," Willis said. "We played a little better defense and it seems like it's coming to a peak. My offense will come, but as long as I have one of the two (offense or defense) . . . One of these times, I'll have both."

Cipriano agreed.

"Willis didn't hit some open shots, but he's going to start hitting those," Cipriano explained. "The guards didn't shoot well from outside, but I don't want to criticize anybody if they take the good shots. I thought our shot selection was much better."

Nebraska, idle until a Dec. 19 date in the Roadrunner Invitational at Las Cruces, N.M., will skip practice Thursday. Cipriano said no decision has been made on Friday practice.

Six Huskers Named

Six Nebraska football players were named to the 1975 Big Eight Academic All-Conference team.

Senior wingback Tom Heiser leads the Huskers with a 3.80 average (on a 4.00 scale) in pre-med studies. Also in pre-med and named to the team was junior quarterback Vince Ferragamo with a 3.35 average. Ferragamo was the only Husker junior named.

Two other NU gridders were named to the offensive academic unit. All-American center Rik Bonness carries a 3.17 average in the school of business and kicker Mike Coyle, has a 3.22 average in civil engineering.

Two members of the defense were chosen for the team. Safety Jim Burrow carries a 3.36 average in physical therapy and cornerback Chuck Jones has a 3.08 average in business.

Named honorary captain of the team was Steve Young, an offensive tackle from Colorado. Young, a senior majoring in elementary education, was named captain of the mythical team because he has the highest grade-point average, 3.93.

Oklahoma nose guard Dewey Selmon, a senior in public relations, was named to the academic team for the third straight year.

Doane-Hastings Renew Run For Laurels

By KEN HAMBLETON
State College Writer

Christmas is coming, New Years follows. And like anything else you can count on annually, the Doane-Hastings basketball rivalry is building

"To be honest I'd have to say that this year's Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference basketball race has to be between Hastings and us this year," said Doane basketball coach Bob Erickson.

"The best state college team for the past seven years or so has either been Hastings, Doane, Kearney or Wayne," said Erickson. "And this year should be no different."

Erickson said that Hastings' 92-77 win over Kearney Tuesday night won't make either team content. "We play at Kearney Thursday night then play them at home (Crete) next Tuesday," Ericksons said. "And all that Hastings loss will do is fire Kearney up for us."

Gone from the last year's 16-9 Tiger team are all-State forward Mario Peart, Doane's second leading all-time scorer and rebounder, Tim McLaughlin, and Roger Theiman and two other lettermen.

Joe Wharton

But Erickson has two of last year's top scorers back in starting guard Joe Wharton and starting forward Randy Wenz, who both averaged over nine points a game.

Joining Wharton in the backcourt this year is junior Frank Hogan of Panama, while senior transfer Bob Tagert and center Mark Kenney fill out the starting lineup.

"We played some good basketball on our trip west this year (where Doane faced Northern Arizona, Boise State, Pepperdine and Cal-Riverside)," said Erickson. "But there's a lot of room for improvement."

Freshman Russ Andersen, a 6-5 forward from Clatonia, and junior guard Tom Westover showed the most improvement according to Erickson, who is shooting for his 12th consecutive winning season this year.

"We're still going to play our same type of offense, with the shuffle," said Erickson, "and try to run with our opponents on defense in a man-to-man. But we're going to adapt with our people as they progress."

Hastings' Surprises

"I still can't predict anything about our season except that it will be exciting," said Hastings coach Dr. Lynn Farrell, who is in his 14th season at the Bronco helm.

The Broncos proved Farrell correct Tuesday by shocking Kearney with a zone defense that held the Antelopes in check throughout most of the first half and a part of the second half.

"We also shot 63 per cent from the field and 69 per cent in the first half that helped a great deal," said Farrell.

"We've had three good first halfs of basketball in our west coast trip but Tuesday we put together a solid consistent 40 minutes," Farrell noted.

Bob Erickson

The Broncos, which notched a 21-7 season last year and won the NIAC title with a 10-0 mark, lost 6-9 center Paul Thomas and 6-2 guard Pat Sitorius to graduation. They were the top two leading scorers on last year's team that averaged about 100 points per game.

This year's starters include lettermen Paul Bergman, a 6-8 center, Doug Wolf, 5-11 and Bob Parminter, 6-2 at the guard spots and Kert McKeone, 6-6 and Pat Hodges, 6-4, at the forward positions

"We're just starting to put something together with these men, but with a lot of hard work I think we'll improve a lot," said Farrell.

"The fact we have three sophomores starting, Wolf, Hodges and Bergman, should mean we'll improve with experience," said Farrell.

Habitat Plan Draws Mixed Views

It's All Outdoors

Habitat Dilemma

Nebraska's wildlife habitat is of concern to the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, sportsmen and to the state Legislature, but apparently it's viewed in different lights.

The Game and Parks Commission (G&P), the agency responsible for wildlife management in this state, is attempting to initiate a multimillion dollar habitat program as soon as possible.

The G&P plans call for an increase of hunting licenses from $4.50 to $6.50, fishing licenses from $4.00 to $7.50, combination license (fish and hunt) from $8.00 to $13.50 and so on with a mandatory $7.50 habitat stamp to replace the currently mandatory $1.00 upland game bird stamp.

Sportsmen, and we're talking hunters for the most part, have mixed emotions. Avid hunters don't mind the increases if immediate results can be shown in wildlife improvement. Weekend hunters question the cost.

And the Legislature thinks the proposed G&P program is too much too soon. The cost of a combination hunting and fishing license would be $21 under the proposed increase instead of today's $9. Early this week, the Legislature's Constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee voted against the increase.

Although the committee rejected the G&P's initial fund-raising proposal, it indicated it would like to see another bill of a more moderate nature. The door is still open but the entrance fee had best be decreased.

The Legislature and sportsmen agree there is a need to get going on a habitat improvement program. The disagreement lies on just how fast the program should move.

Never Too Late, But . . .

Some feel it is never too late to get started on programs of this nature, but don't put too much money on that bet.

The habitat is going fast, much too fast. The days of plentiful pheasant, quail, rabbit, squirrel or raccoon are being numbered. Habitat is being bulldozed, plowed, drained or leveled to increase big business farming operations.

Part of the reason for habitat loss is there is no profit margin for the farmer who lets his fence rows grow wild, who lets expansive shelterbelts stand, who seeks to improve wildlife numbers by leaving center-pivot irrigation corners in weeds just in the name of habitat.

The state's habitat program would have provided some payment for those people interested in "habitat production." Money talks and money gets things done, and even where habitat and wildlife production is concerned.

There is a genuine need for immediate action on habitat incentive programs before all or the majority of our habitat is forever lost. Each year we wait, more wetlands are drained, more fence rows are plowed, more shelterbelts are bulldozed. It takes time for these to be replaced and many of them never can be returned.

The massive increases in our hunting, fishing and combination licenses, plus a new $7.50 habitat stamp, would have been a cramp on many of our billfolds but it would have generated some $3.5 million for habitat improvement when added to matching federal and Natural Resource District funds.

Even $3.5 million is only a drop in the bucket to what is really needed to help habitat out of its tailspin. I hope the Game and Parks people can find a happy medium, in the form of a new habitat fund-raising proposal, to satisfy themselves, the Legislature and sportsmen. We can't afford to wait any longer.

Veeck Gets ChiSox; Trades Kaat To Phillies

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — It took two ballots to do it, but Bill Veeck, who described himself as a "61-year-old, one-legged man", was approved Wednesday as the new owner of the Chicago White Sox of the American League.

Veeck, who once owned the White Sox and before that the St. Louis Browns and Cleveland Indians, headed a group of some 40 investors who paid $9.75 million to buy the majority interest from John Allyn, who has lost an estimated $8 million over the past six years as White Sox owner.

It wasn't easy for Veeck, who during his previous ownerships aroused considerable opposition from other owners for his circus-like promotion stunts. He was accused of demeaning the game

That long-lasting feeling may have accounted for the unfavorable first ballot during the four-hour session at the major league's winter baseball meetings. Veeck reportedly was defeated 8-3-1 in a vote that required approval from nine of the 12 owners.

There was considerable discussion after the first vote, a number of owners appealing for a second ballot. The appeal finally carried, and on the second go-round Veeck received what American League President Lee MacPhail said was more than the three-quarters approval required.

MacPhail refused to specify the first vote count and said the second was taken because "some franchises did not cast a ballot the first time.

"We wanted every team to vote," MacPhail said.

While the owners were meeting, the Philadelphia Phillies and the White Sox concluded a five-player swap that sent 20-game winner Jim Kaat to the Phillies for three young players

Phils' Manager Danny Ozark immediately put himself on the spot, saying, "We can be picked to win the National League pennant now. We have the players to do it." The Phils finished second in the NL East last season.

Kaat, 37, posted a 20-14 record for the White Sox in 1975 to boost his career victory total to 235. He is the winningest active pitcher in the majors. Last season he recorded a 3.11 earned run average and was a member of the American League All-Star team.

The other four principals spent much of last season in the minors. Ruthven, Thomas and Bannister were all No. 1 draft choices of the Phillies at one time or another.

White Sox General Manager Roland Hemond announced the trade about an hour after Veeck had been approved as the new owner of the team. Veeck attended the news conference and gave credit for the trade to Hemond, who said he had consulted with both the old owner and Veeck before making the transaction.

Veeck said he was aware he had been turned down the first time, but commented: "I don't care about the first round. They only pay off at the end."

Veeck was approved after a committee of five headed by MacPhail spent two hours, 20 minutes looking over the financial deal he offered the league. The committee then rejoined the full session of AL owners and reported on what they had seen. Then the balloting started.

The first ballot was a distinct surprise, since the league last Wednesday in Cleveland had voted unanimously that the Veeck group would be admitted if they obtained $1.2 million more in working capital. Veeck obtained the money and came here expecting automatic acceptance.

Before the American League meeting, Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, remarked, "If Veeck has the money and is well financed and can prove it, he's in. It's that simple."

Apparently there was a hitch. Finley said later he would not discuss the vote until Thursday.

Veeck was extremely emotional after being summoned by the owners to be told he had been accepted as the new owner of the White Sox.

"I'm not very good at speeches," he said as hundreds of journalists surrounded the frail-looking Veeck, who lost part of a leg during World War II.

"I'm just glad to be back in baseball and I'm delighted my partners have accepted me again. I just hope the White Sox will be successful," Veeck said.

Veeck thanked the people who had joined with him in buying the White Sox. He expressed appreciation to Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago for the mayor's support in the attempt to keep the Sox in Chicago.

There was a good chance if Veeck's bid fell through that the franchise would have been shifted to Seattle. Seattle, which has a new domed stadium, has a suit pending against the American League for moving the Pilots to Milwaukee after only one season, 1969. The suit would probably have been dropped had the White Sox moved to Seattle.

Meanwhile the National league spent five hours deliberating the fate of the failing San Francisco Giants. NL President Charles Feeney said his owners hope to have "something definite on the Giants situation Thursday morning."

Cipriano Calls Desire Key To NU's Victory

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

"We showed a little improvement in terms of desire and hustle," said the Nebraska basketball coach after NU stopped St. Mary's (Calif.) 68-57, Wednesday night at the NU Coliseum.

"People on the floor went for loose basketballs. It got a little ragged out there," he conceded. "But we didn't make a lot of careless errors (just 13 turnovers to 25 for the visitors)."

Still, the game was basically a display of inept shooting by St. Mary's. The visitors made just three field goals in the first 15 minutes, went almost 10 minutes in the first half without a field goal and hit just 36.8 per cent of their first-half field goals.

'Good Defense'

"Our defense was pretty good in the first half," he said. "But their press changed the tempo of the game. We got the chances to make some easy baskets and the shots went in and out and they made a run at us.

St. Mary's, which trailed by as many as 13 points early in the second half (38-25 with 17:30 to play) closed within 44-40 before Allen Holder tallied two five-footers for a 48-40 margin.

That settled the issue as St. Mary's dropped to 0-4 and Nebraska improved to 2-3.

Cipriano praised Holder, who was NU's second top rebounder with six caroms and second-leading scorer with 10 points.

"He played a fine game," Cipriano noted. "He rebounded, played defense and his floor game was outstanding."

The 6-3 junior college transfer noted his pleasure at scoring, although he termed his main job to rebound and play defense.

"Steve (Willis), Jerry (Fort) and Bob (Siegel) can all shoot from outside," Holder said. "My job is to guard the other team's top scorer, but I'm like other ballplayers, I like to score, too.

"It was a lot harder to score against a team like Washington (with a towering frontline)," he added.

Cox Gets 19 Points

The scoring leader's role went to 6-6 center Larry Cox, who was saddled with defending "just" a 6-8 opponent, Joe Appel.

"It's not quite as intimidating when your man is only two inches taller rather than six," said Cox, who tallied 19 points (to tie his seasonal high) and paced NU with seven rebounds.

"I've been working on my free throws (he hit seven of eight attempts)," Cox noted. "I've been improving the past year on my free throws. That's an important part of the game — that's what kept St. Mary's in the first half tonight."

One discouraging aspect for Nebraska had to be the poor shooting performances by senior guards Jerry Fort and Steve Willis. The duo was hampered throughout by the Gaels' zone defense.

"He (Fort) realized the zone put him in a situation where he has to be more patient," noted Cipriano. "But we had trouble generating some offense. We're not concerned with who gets the good shots as long as we get them. That's part of the sacrifice you have to make when you play as part of the team."

Fort hit three of eight field goals for eight points while Willis connected on only one of 10 field goals.

'Better Defense'

"No, I'm not disappointed I didn't shoot better since we won," Willis said. "We played a little better defense and it seems like it's coming to a peak. My offense will come, but as long as I have one of the two (offense or defense) . . . One of these times, I'll have both."

Cipriano agreed.

"Willis didn't hit some open shots, but he's going to start hitting those," Cipriano explained. "The guards didn't shoot well from outside, but I don't want to criticize anybody if they take the good shots. I thought our shot selection was much better."

Nebraska, idle until a Dec. 19 date in the Roadrunner Invitational at Las Cruces, N.M., will skip practice Thursday. Cipriano said no decision has been made on Friday practice.

Six Huskers Named

Six Nebraska football players were named to the 1975 Big Eight Academic All-Conference team.

Senior wingback Tom Heiser leads the Huskers with a 3.80 average (on a 4.00 scale) in pre-med studies. Also in pre-med and named to the team was junior quarterback Vince Ferragamo with a 3.35 average. Ferragamo was the only Husker junior named.

Two other NU gridders were named to the offensive academic unit. All-American center Rik Bonness carries a 3.17 average in the school of business and kicker Mike Coyle, has a 3.22 average in civil engineering.

Two members of the defense were chosen for the team. Safety Jim Burrow carries a 3.36 average in physical therapy and cornerback Chuck Jones has a 3.08 average in business.

Named honorary captain of the team was Steve Young, an offensive tackle from Colorado. Young, a senior majoring in elementary education, was named captain of the mythical team because he has the highest grade-point average, 3.93.

Oklahoma nose guard Dewey Selmon, a senior in public relations, was named to the academic team for the third straight year.

Doane-Hastings Renew Run For Laurels

By KEN HAMBLETON
State College Writer

Christmas is coming, New Years follows. And like anything else you can count on annually, the Doane-Hastings basketball rivalry is building.

"To be honest I'd have to say that this year's Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference basketball race has to be between Hastings and us this year," said Doane basketball coach Bob Erickson.

"The best state college team for the past seven years or so has either been Hastings, Doane, Kearney or Wayne," said Erickson. "And this year should be no different."

Erickson said that Hastings' 92-77 win over Kearney Tuesday night won't make either team content. "We play at Kearney Thursday night then play them at home (Crete) next Tuesday," Ericksons said. "And all that Hastings loss will do is fire Kearney up for us."

Gone from the last year's 16-9 Tiger team are all-State forward Mario Peart, Doane's second leading all-time scorer and rebounder, Tim McLaughlin, and Roger Theiman and two other lettermen.

Joe Wharton

But Erickson has two of last year's top scorers back in starting guard Joe Wharton and starting forward Randy Wenz, who both averaged over nine points a game.

Joining Wharton in the backcourt this year is junior Frank Hogan of Panama, while senior transfer Bob Tagert and center Mark Kenney fill out the starting lineup.

"We played some good basketball on our trip west this year (where Doane faced Northern Arizona, Boise State, Pepperdine and Cal-Riverside)," said Erickson. "But there's a lot of room for improvement."

Freshman Russ Andersen, a 6-5 forward from Clatonia, and junior guard Tom Westover showed the most improvement according to Erickson, who is shooting for his 12th consecutive winning season this year.

"We're still going to play our same type of offense, with the shuffle," said Erickson, "and try to run with our opponents on defense in a man-to-man. But we're going to adapt with our people as they progress."

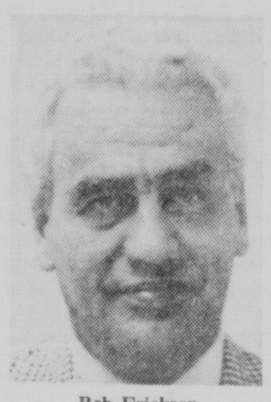
Hastings' Surprises

"I still can't predict anything about our season except that it will be exciting," said Hastings coach Dr. Lynn Farrell, who is in his 14th season at the Bronco helm.

The Broncos proved Farrell correct Tuesday by shocking Kearney with a zone defense that held the Antelopes in check throughout most of the first half and a part of the second half.

"We also shot 63 per cent from the field and 69 per cent in the first half that helped a great deal," said Farrell.

"We've had three good first halfs of basketball in our west coast trip but Tuesday we put together a solid consistent 40 minutes," Farrell noted.



Bob Erickson

The Broncos, which notched a 21-7 season last year and won the NIAC title with a 10-0 mark, lost 6-9 center Paul Thomas and 6-2 guard Pat Sitorius to graduation. They were the top two leading scorers on last year's team that averaged about 100 points per game.

This year's starters include lettermen Paul Bergman, a 6-8 center, Doug Wolf, 5-11 and Bob Parminter, 6-2 at the guard spots and Kert McKeone, 6-6 and Pat Hodges, 6-4, at the forward positions.

"We're just starting to put something together with these men, but with a lot of hard work I think we'll improve a lot," said Farrell.

"The fact we have three sophomores starting, Wolf, Hodges and Bergman, should mean we'll improve with experience," said Farrell.

Surprise Winner Moody Cites Menefee Coaching

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Moody, a left-handed Doane College student, withstood a barrage of straight lefts and rights from Wilhelm, and came pouring in with a combination of uppercuts and crosses to net the win.

"I took advantage of him when he came in low at me and ducked his head," said Moody, who is now 4-0. "I've wanted Wilhelm all year and I've been getting ready for this match for a long time."

Moody credited his coach, Menefee with a lot of support in the fight. "He kept telling me that Wilhelm would try to take me into the ropes so I just used some uppercuts to keep him away."

"I've sparred with both Moody and Wilhelm and I know pretty much what Neil can do," said Menefee. "I personally think that Ken hits harder. But Neil is a great fighter, and this is Moody's first year of fighting."

The loss was Wilhelm's second this year, his only other loss was to former District champion Garth Bauer.

Huskers Eye Title Defense

The Nebraska gymnastics team hopes to retain the title that it won last year when the Huskers compete in the Rocky Mountain Open Friday and Saturday in Denver.

All sessions will be held at Denver University. Friday's compulsories begin at 7:30 p.m. and on Saturday, the optionals start at 10 a.m. with the finals at 7:30 p.m.

Last year, Nebraska won the meet, defeating such gymnastics powers as Iowa State, Arizona State and Southern Illinois. All of those teams will again be present at this year's tournament.

Pacing Nebraska will be sophomore all-around performer Larry Gerard. Two weeks ago, he won the all-around title at the Midwest Open in Chicago. That effort has earned Gerard an invitation to attend an evaluation camp at Penn State, where seven gymnasts will be selected to compete against Russia, Canada and Romania in January and February.

Other standouts for the Huskers at Denver will be senior all-arounder Gene Mackie and pommel horse performer Steve Dickey, also a senior. Mackie, last week at the Ball State All-Around Tournament, placed second while leading Nebraska to the team title. At last year's Rocky Mountain Open, Dickey finished third in the pommel horse.

"This should be an interesting meet," said NU coach Francis Allen. "We still won't have the same team we plan to have at this year's Big Eight meet, but we could win this one again."

"We're looking forward to big things from Gary Jeurink and Rick Heineman," Allen said. "We'll have some stiff competition and we'll need them plus, Mackie and Gerard."

All the Big Eight schools, Arizona, Arizona State, Air Force and Northern Colorado are expected to compete.

This will be Nebraska's last competitive action for 1975. The Huskers start the new year with a home meet on Jan. 24, when Nebraska will test Colorado and Iowa at 2 p.m. in the Coliseum.

Probable Husker performers are:

Colby Upends Mid-Plains, 66-55

Colby, Kan. (AP) — Host Colby Community College of Kansas fashioned a comfortable early lead and defeated Mid-Plains of Nebraska 66-55 in basketball Wednesday night.

The home team led by as many as 20 points in the first half, which ended with Colby in front 42-28.

Objects To 'Beer Barrel Polka'

Dr. Frank Barta of Omaha says the Nebraska football team without the band is like a patient without a bedpan, but he has one request for the choreographer.

"Please don't play 'Beer Barrel Polka' and follow it up with 'There Is No Place Like Nebraska.' It makes people think we're a second 'Old Milwaukee'," Dr. Barta wrote.

"I feel like the band projects 'Nebraska's Image' very positively," he said. "The kids practice as hard as the team so why shouldn't they deserve the right to go to Tempe to the Fiesta Bowl?"

The problem, of course, is money and that apparently is being taken care of by the followers of the Big Red, who seem to like their band as much as their football team.

Now, what about the 30 to 40 Husker football players who are going to be left at home — also because of money?

Unfortunately, while it is legal to raise money for the band, it isn't legal under NCAA rules to raise money to send the extra football players. That would be considered illegal financial aid.

Notes On Golf Circuit

Max Crouch, pro at the Omaha Field Club, was runner-up in the National Golf Day competition sponsored by the National PGA. Crouch, last year's winner, collected $4,216 for the program which provides money for golf-oriented charities and funds. Overall, the money raised nationally failed to top last year's record total.

Tom Weekes of South Sioux City, Neb. has been named pro of the year in the Nebraska section of the PGA. Weekes, who is pro at the South Ridge Golf Club, also is president of the Nebraska section. Lincoln Country Club pro Gerry Fisher is secretary.

Bob Popp, pro at the Omaha Country Club, has been elected a vice-president of the National PGA and will serve on the 14-man executive board. He replaces Joe August as vice-president of District 8 for a three-year term on the committee.

The PGA, incidentally, plans its first national junior golf tournament to be held next August at Disney World in Lake Buena Vista, Fla. It will bring together boys and girl champions from each of the 39 PGA sections for a 72-hole stroke play championship.

McCook Routs Central Tech

McCook, Neb. (AP) — McCook Community College was in front all the way en route to an 84-57 basketball victory over Central Tech in a Nebraska Community College Conference game Wednesday night.

McCook, 5-5 for the season and 2-1 in the league, got scoring from 11 of its 12 players. The winners led 46-26 at the half and were led by Joe Drake with 16 points.

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Moody, a left-handed Doane College student, withstood a barrage of straight lefts and rights from Wilhelm, and came pouring in with a combination of uppercuts and crosses to net the win.

"I took advantage of him when he came in low at me and ducked his head," said Moody, who is now 4-0. "I've wanted Wilhelm all year and I've been getting ready for this match for a long time."

Moody credited his coach, Menefee, with a lot of support in the fight. "He kept telling me that Wilhelm would try to take me into the ropes so I just used some uppercuts to keep him away."

"I've sparred with both Moody and Wilhelm and I know pretty much what Neil can do," said Menefee. "I personally think that Ken hits harder. But Neil is a great fighter, and this is Moody's first year of fighting."

The loss was Wilhelm's second this year, his only other loss was to former District champion Garth Bauer.

"The crowd really helped me," Moody said. "I knew a lot of kids from school were here. And before I left Crete, the kids in the class I student teach gave me a big sendoff."

Huskers Eye Title Defense

The Nebraska gymnastics team hopes to retain the title that it won last year when the Huskers compete in the Rocky Mountain Open Friday and Saturday in Denver.

All sessions will be held at Denver University. Friday's compulsories begin at 7:30 p.m. and on Saturday, the optionals start at 10 a.m. with the finals at 7:30 p.m.

Last year, Nebraska won the meet, defeating such gymnastics powers as Iowa State, Arizona State and Southern Illinois. All of those teams will again be present at this year's tournament.

Pacing Nebraska will be sophomore all-around performer Larry Gerard. Two weeks ago, he won the all-around title at the Midwest Open in Chicago. That effort has earned Gerard an invitation to attend an evaluation camp at Penn State, where seven gymnasts will be selected to compete against Russia, Canada and Romania in January and February.

Other standouts for the Huskers at Denver will be senior all-arounder Gene Mackie and pommel horse performer Steve Dickey, also a senior. Mackie, last week at the Ball State All-Around Tournament, placed second while leading Nebraska to the team title. At last year's Rocky Mountain Open, Dickey finished third in the pommel horse.

"This should be an interesting meet," said NU coach Francis Allen. "We still won't have the same team we plan to have at this year's Big Eight meet, but we could win this one again."

"We're looking forward to big things from Gary Jeurink and Rick Heineman," Allen said. "We'll have some stiff competition and we'll need them plus, Mackie and Gerard."

All the Big Eight schools, Arizona, Arizona State, Air Force and Northern Colorado are expected to compete.

This will be Nebraska's last competitive action for 1975. The Huskers start the new year with a home meet on Jan. 24, when Nebraska will test Colorado and Iowa at 2 p.m. in the Coliseum.

Probable Husker performers are:

Objects To 'Beer Barrel Polka'

Dr. Frank Barta of Omaha says the Nebraska football team without the band is like a patient without a bedpan, but he has one request for the choreographer.

"Please don't play 'Beer Barrel Polka' and follow it up with 'There Is No Place Like Nebraska.' It makes people think we're a second 'Old Milwaukee'," Dr. Barta wrote.

"I feel like the band projects 'Nebraska's Image' very positively," he said. "The kids practice as hard as the team so why shouldn't they deserve the right to go to Tempe to the Fiesta Bowl?"

The problem, of course, is money and that apparently is being taken care of by the followers of the Big Red, who seem to like their band as much as their football team.

Now, what about the 30 to 40 Husker football players who are going to be left at home — also because of money?

Unfortunately, while it is legal to raise money for the band, it isn't legal under NCAA rules to raise money to send the extra football players. That would be considered illegal financial aid.

Notes On Golf Circuit

Max Crouch, pro at the Omaha Field Club, was runner-up in the National Golf Day competition sponsored by the National PGA. Crouch, last year's winner, collected $4,216 for the program which provides money for golf-oriented charities and funds. Overall, the money raised nationally failed to top last year's record total.

Tom Weekes of South Sioux City, Neb. has been named pro of the year in the Nebraska section of the PGA. Weekes, who is pro at the South Ridge Golf Club, also is president of the Nebraska section. Lincoln Country Club pro Gerry Fisher is secretary.

Bob Popp, pro at the Omaha Country Club, has been elected a vice-president of the National PGA and will serve on the 14-man executive board. He replaces Joe August as vice-president of District 8 for a three-year term on the committee.

The PGA, incidentally, plans its first national junior golf tournament to be held next August at Disney World in Lake Buena Vista, Fla. It will bring together boys and girl champions from each of the 39 PGA sections for a 72-hole stroke play championship.

McCook Routs Central Tech

McCook, Neb. (AP) — McCook Community College was in front all the way en route to an 84-57 basketball victory over Central Tech in a Nebraska Community College Conference game Wednesday night.

McCook, 5-5 for the season and 2-1 in the league, got scoring from 11 of its 12 players. The winners led 46-26 at the half and were led by Joe Drake with 16 points.

Central Tech, 0-7 overall and 0-5 in the conference, was led by Kirt Winheim with 11.

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

The decision of United Airlines to cancel all scheduled flights through Dec 24 and all charters through Jan. 1 Wednesday has created a turmoil for University of Nebraska football and basketball teams.

The Cornhusker gridders are scheduled to fly to Phoenix, Ariz , on Dec 20 for their Fiesta Bowl date with Arizona State

And, Coach Joe Cipriano's basketball team is scheduled for a regular commercial flight on United Dec 18 en route to the Roadrunner Classic in Las Cruces, N Mex

Assistant athletic director Jim Pittenger heard the news around 5 p m Wednesday and quipped, "I'm about ready to go give Bill Fisher a case of apoplexy." Fisher is Husker business manager

"I have every reason to believe it can be worked out to get the team there," Pittenger said "Just how I don't know now"

It was ironic that athletic director Bob Devaney was in Hawaii working out travel and lodging plans for Nebraska's game against the University of Hawaii next Dec 4

Football coach Tom Osborne, whose squad begins drills in pads Thursday afternoon, said he and purchasing agent Dave Bennett have been working on the problem of getting a plane for the trip, but so far nothing definite has happened

"Dave told me he thought there was one plane he could get, leaving the 19th and returning on the 28th," Osborne said "That's two days longer than we had planned and it would mean an extra $25,000 to $30,000 expenses, which we don't have."

He said United was the lowest bidder for the charter by a big margin and even with that the money approved for the trip by the Big Eight has been stretched to the point where no more is available.

"There has been some talk of shuttling the players there, but I don't think that's possible," Osborne said "The Board of Regents has a rule that we can use only regular commercial carriers."

This is because of the tragic accidents in recent years involving teams from Wichita State and Marshall College, which were on charters of 'fly-by-night' carriers.

The strike against United by Machinists Union workers began at midnight last Friday and negotiations have been indefinitely suspended.

The National Basketball Association hospital list was crowded with quality players Wednesday in the wake of a siege of injuries that has kayoed some All Star calibre performers.

The Detroit Pistons had their starting backcourt wiped out Tuesday night when guards Kevin Porter and John Mengelt both suffered torn knee cartilage in the Pistons' 129-124 loss against Golden State

Both players must undergo surgery Thursday and will be sidelined for about five weeks But it could have been worse When Porter, the NBA assists leader, was injured, it was thought that he had suffered ligament damage which would have finished him for the entire season

To fill the manpower gap created by the injuries to Porter and Mengelt, the Pistons activated rookie forward Terry Thomas, who injured his back during training camp and had not played so far

Detroit, however. will get no sympathy for its backcourt problems from Los Angeles The Lakers also have lost both their starting guards. Gail Goodrich has a broken nose that should keep him out until Saturday Lucius Allen has a pulled back muscle. The Lakers are already without Kermit Washington, who is on the injured list

Last week, Philadelphia lost forward Billy Cunningham for the year with a damaged knee When surgeons operated on him, they reported some of the damage to be unrepairable which could mean that Cunningham's career could be over

Another Philadelphia player, center Leroy Ellis, has been on the NBA's injured list since training camp, with a knee problem

Being placed on the official injury list automatically sidelines a player for five games There is no limit to the number of players a team can list as injured The NBA requires its teams to dress eight players with at least 11 but not more than 12 on the active rosters

The best name currently on the list is Pete Maravich of the New Orleans Jazz Maravich has a strained ligament in his left ankle

Chicago has two players on the list, forward John Block and guard Jerry Sloan Block, who has missed all of his team's games with a slipped disc, could be out for the season Sloan has missed 13 games with sinovitis in his knee and is expected to be out for at least two more weeks

Phoenix lost forward Phil Lumpkin in the opening game if the season when he tore some cartilage He underwent surgery and won t be ready to rejoin the Suns until January

Austin Carr of the Cleveland Cavaliers, coming back from off-season knee surgery, pulled a calf muscle in training camp and has played in only three games so far

Golden State lost Jeff Mullins for about two weeks with a bruised left kneecap and an Achilles tendon problem benched Lee Winfield of Kansas City for a couple of weeks

Some players ignore injuries and continue to play in spite of them. There is, for example, the case of Washington's Dave Bing, who was traded to the Bullets by Detroit for Porter during the off-season

Twenty-eight NBA players played the entire 82-game schedule last season

Bell Named Top Rusher

New York (AP) — Southern California's Ricky Bell won the 1975 major college football rushing title with ease but fell six yards shy of tying the single-season record. He can try for that again next year since he's only a junior

The 6-foot-1, 215-pounder who grew up in Houston, rushed for 1,875 yards, six shy of the all-time season record set by Cornell's Ed Marinaro Herb Lusk of Long Beach State was a distant second with 1,596

Bell started the season with games of 256 and 215 yards and kept running He averaged 170 5 yards per game, and scored 13 touchdowns, while Lusk averaged 145 1 yards per game, and also scored 13 touchdowns

Ohio State's two-time Heisman Trophy winner, Archie Griffin, wound up seventh, although he is the only player to rush for 5,000 career yards and had 31 straight 100-plus games

Griffin's Ohio State teammate, Pete Johnson, was the season s top scorer, according to NCAA statistics released Wednesday Johnson, a 6-1, 246-pound Junior, wound up the season with 25 touchdowns for 150 points and a per-game average of 13 6 points Five of his TDs came against North Carolina on Sept 27 and his total is exceeded only by the 29 TDs scored by Lydell Mitchell of Penn State in 1971

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

The decision of United Airlines to cancel all scheduled flights through Dec. 24 and all charters through Jan. 1 Wednesday has created a turmoil for University of Nebraska football and basketball teams.

The Cornhusker gridders are scheduled to fly to Phoenix, Ariz., on Dec. 20 for their Fiesta Bowl date with Arizona State.

And, Coach Joe Cipriano's basketball team is scheduled for a regular commercial flight on United Dec. 18 en route to the Roadrunner Classic in Las Cruces, N. Mex.

Assistant athletic director Jim Pittenger heard the news around 5 p.m. Wednesday and quipped, "I'm about ready to go give Bill Fisher a case of apoplexy." Fisher is Husker business manager.

"I have every reason to believe it can be worked out to get the team there," Pittenger said. "Just how I don't know now."

It was ironic that athletic director Bob Devaney was in Hawaii working out travel and lodging plans for Nebraska's game against the University of Hawaii next Dec. 4.

Football coach Tom Osborne, whose squad begins drills in pads Thursday afternoon, said he and purchasing agent Dave Bennett have been working on the problem of getting a plane for the trip, but so far nothing definite has happened.

"Dave told me he thought there was one plane he could get, leaving the 19th and returning on the 28th," Osborne said. "That's two days longer than we had planned and it would mean an extra $25,000 to $30,000 expenses, which we don't have."

He said United was the lowest bidder for the charter by a big margin and even with that the money approved for the trip by the Big Eight has been stretched to the point where no more is available.

"There has been some talk of shuttling the players there, but I don't think that's possible," Osborne said. "The Board of Regents has a rule that we can use only regular commercial carriers."

This is because of the tragic accidents in recent years involving teams from Wichita State and Marshall College, which were on charters of 'fly-by-night' carriers.

The strike against United by Machinists Union workers began at midnight last Friday and negotiations have been indefinitely suspended.

Thus, team with Power Rating of 6 would be 7-point favorite over team with rating of 13 if game were played on neutral court. Give allotted points for Home Court Value to Home Team.

NBA Talent Moving Into Sick Beds

Are you sure this is what Dr. Naismith had in mind when he hung up that old peach basket and invented his non-contact sport?

The National Basketball Association hospital list was crowded with quality players Wednesday in the wake of a siege of injuries that has kayoed some All Star calibre performers.

The Detroit Pistons had their starting backcourt wiped out Tuesday night when guards Kevin Porter and John Mengelt both suffered torn knee cartilage in the Pistons' 129-124 loss against Golden State.

Both players must undergo surgery Thursday and will be sidelined for about five weeks. But it could have been worse. When Porter, the NBA assists leader, was injured, it was thought that he had suffered ligament damage which would have finished him for the entire season.

To fill the manpower gap created by the injuries to Porter and Mengelt, the Pistons activated rookie forward Terry Thomas, who injured his back during training camp and had not played so far.

Detroit, however, will get no sympathy for its backcourt problems from Los Angeles. The Lakers also have lost both their starting guards. Gail Goodrich has a broken nose that should keep him out until Saturday. Lucius Allen has a pulled back muscle. The Lakers are already without Kermit Washington, who is on the injured list.

Last week, Philadelphia lost forward Billy Cunningham for the year with a damaged knee. When surgeons operated on him, they reported some of the damage to be unrepairable which could mean that Cunningham's career could be over.

Another Philadelphia player, center Leroy Ellis, has been on the NBA's injured list since training camp, with a knee problem.

Being placed on the official injury list automatically sidelines a player for five games. There is no limit to the number of players a team can list as injured. The NBA requires its teams to dress eight players with at least 11 but not more than 12 on the active rosters.

Chicago has two players on the list, forward John Block and guard Jerry Sloan. Block, who has missed all of his team's games with a slipped disc, could be out for the season. Sloan has missed 13 games with sinovitis in his knee and is expected to be out for at least two more weeks.

Phoenix lost forward Phil Lumpkin in the opening game if the season when he tore some cartilage. He underwent surgery and won't be ready to rejoin the Suns until January.

Austin Carr of the Cleveland Cavaliers, coming back from off-season knee surgery, pulled a calf muscle in training camp and has played in only three games so far.

Golden State lost Jeff Mullins for about two weeks with a bruised left kneecap and an Achilles tendon problem benched Lee Winfield of Kansas City for a couple of weeks.

Some players ignore injuries and continue to play in spite of them. There is, for example, the case of Washington's Dave Bing, who was traded to the Bullets by Detroit for Porter during the off-season.

Twenty-eight NBA players played the entire 82-game schedule last season.

Bell Named Top Rusher

New York (AP) — Southern California's Ricky Bell won the 1975 major college football rushing title with ease but fell six yards shy of tying the single-season record. He can try for that again next year since he's only a junior.

The 6-foot-1, 215-pounder who grew up in Houston, rushed for 1,875 yards, six shy of the all-time season record set by Cornell's Ed Marinaro. Herb Lusk of Long Beach State was a distant second with 1,596.

Bell started the season with games of 256 and 215 yards and kept running. He averaged 170.5 yards per game, and scored 13 touchdowns, while Lusk averaged 145.1 yards per game, and also scored 13 touchdowns.

Ohio State's two-time Heisman Trophy winner, Archie Griffin, wound up seventh, although he is the only player to rush for 5,000 career yards and had 31 straight 100-plus games.

Griffin's Ohio State teammate, Pete Johnson, was the season's top scorer, according to NCAA statistics released Wednesday. Johnson, a 6-1, 246-pound Junior, wound up the season with 25 touchdowns for 150 points and a per-game average of 13.6 points. Five of his TDs came against North Carolina on Sept. 27 and his total is exceeded only by the 29 TDs scored by Lydell Mitchell of Penn State in 1971.

The Cincinnati Reds had the best defensive record in the National League last season. Their 102 errors, 25 fewer than the Los Angeles Dodgers who finished second in team defensive statistics, gave the Reds a .984 fielding percentage.

Kelly Ann Martin, the 23-year-old daughter of New York Yankees manager Billy Martin, said she was tricked into trying to smuggle a pound of cocaine from Colombia to the United States.

Bobby Bragan, who has served as president of the Texas League since 1969, was named president of baseball's minor leagues, succeeding Hank Peters, who is going to the Baltimore Orioles as general manager.

According to Ray Volpe, executive director of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, the Washington Star story is a cheap shot that hurts not only golf but the entire sporting scene.

OSU Calls Query Routine

Stillwater, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma State football coach Jim Stanley described as "routine" today an NCAA investigation into the Cowboys' recruiting.

NCAA and Big Eight officials have declined comment on published reports of an investigation, but sources in the conference say numerous O-State alumni have been interviewed by NCAA personnel.

"I know the NCAA has talked to a cross-section of people," Stanley said. "I don't think we did anything wrong."

Stanley said the NCAA probe was an extension of a Big Eight investigation which led to penalties being imposed on the Cowboys for recruiting infractions.

Asked if he expected anything of significance to come of the NCAA probe, Stanley said:

"Not that I know of. But I might be the last to know. Anytime you get hit on the wrist they do come in and check. Back there earlier they took three scholarships away from us and this is just an extension of that investigation."

The Big Eight penalized OSU for recruiting violations earlier in the year and it will cost the football program three scholarships each of the next two seasons.

Foreman, Lyle Fight Announce

Beverly Hills, Calif. (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion George Foreman and Ron Lyle, both hoping for another crack at Muhammad Ali, announced Wednesday they will meet Jan. 24 in a nationally televised 12-round bout at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, Nev.

"I think that 1976 is going to be the year of George Foreman," the 27-year-old baby-faced former champ told a packed news conference at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. "Whoever wins the fight is going to have to be considered as the top contender by the champion."

Lyle, 34, was defeated by Ali last May 16 in a technical knockout in Las Vegas. He said his game plan against Foreman would be "to win.

"There is no such thing as a game plan in boxing. When you get right down to the nitty-gritty, it is an act of survival," Lyle said.

"I consider myself as the best contender in the top 10 because I've fought some good fighters and stood up against some good fighters. I don't see George Foreman as being indestructible or invincible. He's human. He knows what its like to be the victim of a knockout."

Foreman, who reigned as world champion for nearly two years, lost his title in October, 1974, when he was stopped by Ali in eight rounds in Zaire, Africa. His record is 40 wins with 37 kos and one loss.

"Africa is in the past," Foreman said. "I think Ali is a tremendous fighter. I lost the fight and the only way I can be champion again is to beat the champion. The history books will say the fight (in Zaire) was fair and square and that's how I must look at it."

Lyle, of Denver, has a record of 32 wins with 22 knockouts and two losses, to Ali and to Jerry Quarry, in his 4½ year professional career.

Both fighters will go into training immediately, Foreman at Livermore, Calif., and Lyle at Denver.

The fight, to be aired by ABC-TV, beginning at approximately 5:30 p.m., EST, will be staged in the indoor sports area of Caesars Palace in the first boxing promotion for the hotel-casino.

Hayes Applauds Very Carefully

Hayes, who attended Tuesday night's annual awards dinner of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame, applauded for the introductions of nine of the 11 seniors who won $1,000 graduate fellowships.

The two players for whom he did not applaud were Kirk Lewis of Michigan, Ohio State's arch-rival, and John Sciarra of UCLA, Ohio State's opponent in next month's Rose Bowl.

Markets...Business

Dow Ind.: +9.84

Technical Rally Lifts Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market put together a technical rally Wednesday with a lift from hopes for strong consumer spending through the Christmas season.

Advances outnumbered declines for the first time in the last eight sessions on the New York Stock Exchange, with 897 issues up and 483 down among the 1,843 traded.

Analysts were inclined to view the upswing inprices as largely the result of technical forces within the market. They noted that some cautious bargain hunting had begun to appear late Tuesday, encouraged by a couple of days of steadiness in the market following last week's steep drop.

The strength of consumer demand, according to a widely shared view on Wall Street, is likely to have a strong influence on the progress of the economic recovery in the immediate future.

Late in the day the government reported that retail sales climbed 1 per cent in November to $50.71 billion from an upward-revised total of $50.19 billion the month before.

One inhibiting influence mentioned by analysts was continuing uncertainty over chances for agreement between the White House and Congress on legislation to extend the 1975 tax cuts into next year.

In retailing issues, J.C. Penney gained 1⅛ to 46⅝; Sears roebuck added 1 to 67⅞; Woolworth climbed ½ to 22, and S.S. Kresge was up ¾ at 32¾.

OSU Calls Query Routine

Stillwater, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma State football coach Jim Stanley described as "routine" today an NCAA investigation into the Cowboys' recruiting.

NCAA and Big Eight officials have declined comment on published reports of an investigation, but sources in the conference say numerous O-State alumni have been interviewed by NCAA personnel.

"I know the NCAA has talked to a cross-section of people," Stanley said. "I don't think we did anything wrong."

Stanley said the NCAA probe was an extension of a Big Eight investigation which led to penalties being imposed on the Cowboys for recruiting infractions.

Asked if he expected anything of significance to come of the NCAA probe, Stanley said:

"Not that I know of. But I might be the last to know. Anytime you get hit on the wrist they do come in and check. Back there earlier they took three scholarships away from us and this is just an extension of that investigation."

The Big Eight penalized OSU for recruiting violations earlier in the year and it will cost the football program three scholarships each of the next two seasons.

Foreman, Lyle Fight Announce

Beverly Hills, Calif. (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion George Foreman and Ron Lyle, both hoping for another crack at Muhammad Ali, announced Wednesday they will meet Jan. 24 in a nationally televised 12-round bout at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, Nev.

"I think that 1976 is going to be the year of George Foreman," the 27-year-old baby-faced former champ told a packed news conference at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. "Whoever wins the fight is going to have to be considered as the top contender by the champion."

Lyle, 34, was defeated by Ali last May 16 in a technical knockout in Las Vegas. He said his game plan against Foreman would be "to win.

"There is no such thing as a game plan in boxing. When you get right down to the nitty-gritty, it is an act of survival," Lyle said.

"I consider myself as the best contender in the top 10 because I've fought some good fighters and stood up against some good fighters. I don't see George Foreman as being indestructible or invincible. He's human. He knows what its like to be the victim of a knockout."

Foreman, who reigned as world champion for nearly two years, lost his title in October, 1974, when he was stopped by Ali in eight rounds in Zaire, Africa. His record is 40 wins with 37 kos and one loss.

"Africa is in the past," Foreman said. "I think Ali is a tremendous fighter. I lost the fight and the only way I can be champion again is to beat the champion. The history books will say the fight (in Zaire) was fair and square and that's how I must look at it."

Lyle, of Denver, has a record of 32 wins with 22 knockouts and two losses, to Ali and to Jerry Quarry, in his 4½ year professional career.

Both fighters will go into training immediately, Foreman at Livermore, Calif., and Lyle at Denver.

The fight, to be aired by ABC-TV, beginning at approximately 5:30 p.m., EST, will be staged in the indoor sports area of Caesars Palace in the first boxing promotion for the hotel-casino.

Technical Rally Lifts Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market put together a technical rally Wednesday with a lift from hopes for strong consumer spending through the Christmas season.

The pace of trading was only moderate, however.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 9.84 to 833.99, with more than half the gain coming in the final hour of the session.

It was the best day for the closely watched average since it took a 13.70-point jump four weeks before, on Nov. 12.

Advances outnumbered declines for the first time in the last eight sessions on the New York Stock Exchange, with 897 issues up and 483 down among the 1,843 traded.

Analysts were inclined to view the upswing inprices as largely the result of technical forces within the market. They noted that some cautious bargain hunting had begun to appear late Tuesday, encouraged by a couple of days of steadiness in the market following last week's steep drop.

The buying did appear, however, to draw some added impetus from signs that retail sales were off to a strong start for the holiday period.

The strength of consumer demand, according to a widely shared view on Wall Street, is likely to have a strong influence on the progress of the economic recovery in the immediate future.

Late in the day the government reported that retail sales climbed 1 per cent in November to $50.71 billion from an upward-revised total of $50.19 billion the month before.

One inhibiting influence mentioned by analysts was continuing uncertainty over chances for agreement between the White House and Congress on legislation to extend the 1975 tax cuts into next year.

In retailing issues, J.C. Penney gained 1⅛ to 46⅝; Sears roebuck added 1 to 67⅞; Woolworth climbed ½ to 22, and S.S. Kresge was up ¾ at 32¾.

Grain Futures Prices Decline

Chicago (AP) — Grain futures fell over a broad area on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

Soybeans closed 5 cents a bushel lower, oats were down nearly 3, corn 2½ and wheat 2. Soybean meal lost nearly $2 a ton but soybean oil and iced broiler prices were irregular in light trade.

Gold futures gained nearly $3 an ounce after reaching a sensitive area on several days of liquidation.

Timm Quits; Bugged By White House

Washington (UPI) — Robert D. Timm, saying he was being harassed by White House staff members, Wednesday submitted his resignation from the Civil Aeronautics Board, a post he has held for five years.

In a letter to President Ford, Timm said, "My resignation is not voluntary but is submitted solely out of respect for the President."

He said White House "staff criticism of me is based upon disagreement with my public position on regulatory policies and not on my qualification to hold this office."

A spokesman for Timm declined to elaborate on the disagreements but but said the CAB member "intends to comment further on those areas shortly."

The resignation will take effect upon the selection of a succesor. Timm's term expires next December.

He told Ford: "I take this step reluctantly because, as you know, I have devoted a large part of my life to public service."

Timm, 54, said that "for the past several months, members of the White House staff have been requesting my resignation and threatening unauthorized administrative proceedings and other actions which . . . can only serve to harass."

A native of Harrington, Wash., Timm was appointed to the CAB by then President Richard M. Nixon.

Tewfik Zayad, an Arab Communist, has been elected mayor of Nazareth, the hillside town where Jesus Christ spent His boyhood. The new mayor, a 46-year-old politician, said Nazareth would remain a loyal part of Israel.

Woman Sues White House, Alleges Sex Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former managing editor of the daily White House news summary, Darlene Schmalzried, filed suit in federal court Wednesday claiming she was denied proper pay because of her sex.

A 27-year-old former newswoman, she joined the White House staff about 15 months ago and became managing editor of the news summary, she said, putting her in charge of the publication.

But, she said in the suit, she was paid only $12,000 a year while the man who had held the job previously received $26,000.

Ms. Schmalzried claimed that the difference in pay was based solely on her sex, in violation of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and other federal stautes, and asked for $100,000 in damages.

The suit also asks for reinstatement as editor of the summary. She resigned from the job three months ago saying she could not tolerate working there without the formal title of editor and commensurate pay.

Named as defendants in the suit are President Ford, White House Chief of Staff Richard Cheney, former chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld, Press Secretary Ron Nessen and James Shuman, who is officially editor of the daily news summary.

Later the White House made public a letter presidential counsel Philip W. Buchen wrote to Ms. Schmalzried's attorney in which Buchen denied any discrimination.

"The White House employment policy has been and continues to be one of nondiscrimiation," Buchen wrote.

Buchen wrote that Shuman will remain as editor and that Ms. Schmalzried can apply for a job if a vacancy occurs.

Rosemary Woods Retires

Washington (UPI) — Rosemary Woods, who served as secretary to President Richard M. Nixon, has retired from the government payroll, the General Services Administration confirmed Wednesday.

Miss Woods, who earned $36,000 a year, remained on the GSA payroll after Nixon resigned Aug. 9, 1974, until her own retirement Nov. 22. She was paid during that period as part of a transition staff arranged for the former president by Congress.

She reportedly will receive an annual pension of $15,000.

Two Senators With Minority

Washington (AP) — Nebraska Republican Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska voted with the minority Wednesday when the Senate approved, on a 72-23 roll-call vote, a $10.3 billion supplemental money bill that includes $2.3 billion for New York City.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Thursday, December 11, 1975

Taurus and Libra have an affinity for flowers — and jewelry. The beauty, the luxury, the fine points and small print appeal to these Venus signs. Taurus is an Earth sign, Libra belongs to the Air trinity. Taurus can be more sensual in a direct manner — Libra resorts to perfume and candy. Which would most appeal to you — Taurus or Libra?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Lunar position accents new starts, added independence, surge of creativity. Highlight originality, inventiveness. Dance to your own tune. Be direct enough to get to heart of matters. Leo, Aquarius persons are in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on backstage, the whisper, the clandestine meeting. Play cards close to chest. Visit one confined to home, hospital. Don't give up something of value for nothing. Older individual has your best interests at heart.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You get what you want of versatile, flexible, willing to move with the times. Another Gemini — and a Sagittarian — could be in picture. Hopes, wishes might be fulfilled. Romance plays a paramount role. Long-distance call could relate to plans for travel, vacation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be specific about needs, requirements. One who has authority is willing to listen — and respond. Take positive steps toward goal. Stand tall for principles. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio could figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent philosophical concepts. Improve communications. Perceive potential. Look beyond the immediate. Be ready for change, travel, variety. One who taught you in past could make reappearance. Special message is highlighted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Concern with hidden matters is accented. Family member talks of money, investment. Consultation with accountant may be in order. Reunion could be on agenda. Get appraisal, take inventory, get priorities in focus.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be sure, direct, positive — and define terms. Avoid any tendency to take others for granted. You are vulnerable in area of being misquoted. Accent on contracts, partnerships, public relations, involvements of a permanent nature.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Organize thoughts — decide priorities. Display ability to handle added pressures, responsibilities. Capricorn, Cancer individuals could be in picture. Questions concerning health and employment will be satisfactorily resolved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good lunar aspect coincides now with love relationship — your ability to create, to express emotions is highlighted. Nothing is halfway — it is all or nothing. You learn where you stand — and what you can do about it. Aries, Gemini, Libra persons figure in picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You make contacts, get encouragement from member of opposite sex, gain proverbial "second chance." Accent is on solidity, construction, laying cornerstone for major move to improve position. Emphasize security — and receive credit that is due.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on short trips, confusion, humor and ability to plow through red tape. Sense of humor proves valuably ally. Trust hunch — follow through on heeding of "inner voice." Cancer and Aquarian play important roles.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Count your change. Protect valuables. Check rental fees on post office box, safety vault. Be aware of investment opportunities, possible tax advantages. Make inquiries. Now you can plan on expansion program. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals might be in picture.

IF DEC. 11 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, a natural teacher, more attached to family than average person. Leo, Cance and Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. You soon will embark on new adventure — and July could be your most significant month of 1976. Keep health resolutions during this month. December. You are frank, direct, fond of travel and you have finished a "situation" which drained you financially and in emotional areas.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
